United Way campaign tops goal

United Way campaign for Charlevoix has topped its goal, but it took longer than organizers hoped.

Contributions have reached $12,000 — well over the goal of $87,000.

The United Way drive was intended for October and November, but continued until the end of the year.

And Nancy Porter, co-chairman with Bob Rajewski, says contributions are still coming in.

"There was a lot of hard work by a lot of people," Porter says. "We're real pleased with how we did."

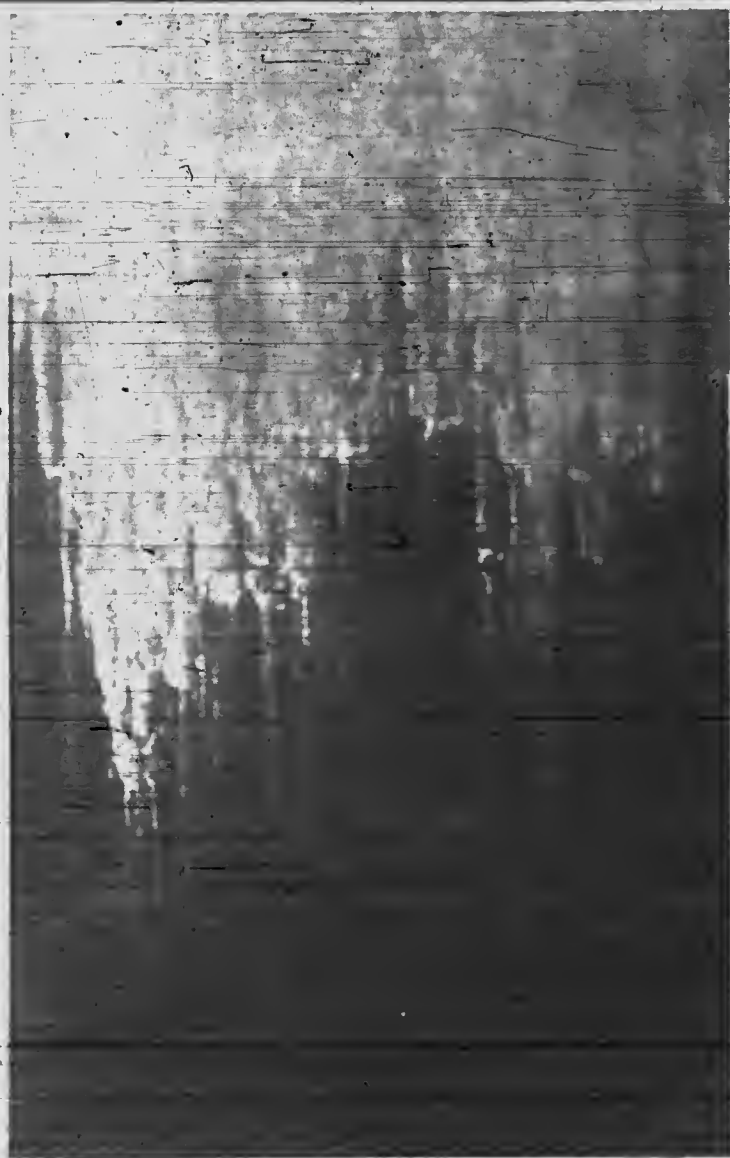

United Way raises funds for 17 area organizations.

"I'd like to thank the whole community and everyone who contributed," says Porter. "This does affect everybody in the community. Everyone uses one or more of these services during their life here."

WINTERTIME FUN TIME

Bone-chilling weather has given the area a fantasyland look and has given winter sports enthusiasts the playland they've been waiting for. Ice has transformed the look of the north pier (right), while snow has created several traditional sledding hills, such as the one at Mount McSauba (below). McSauba's ski hill is in full operation and ice-makers are busy getting the rink at the middle school ready for this weekend.

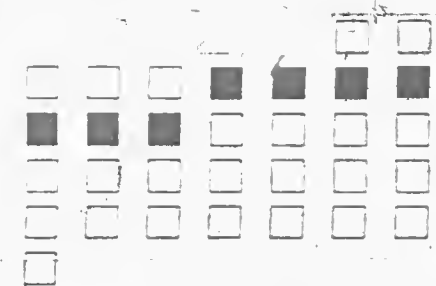

Dear ...
You've probably noticed a big change in this week's Courier. We've gone to a smaller page size — called tabloid by printers — as part of our continuing effort to bring you a better paper.
How does changing the page size help? It allows us to better organize the content by grouping related items in more readable packages. Better display, we hope, will make it easier for you to find what interests you.
We've also taken this opportunity to make our type more readable. We've sized the letters a little — so, for instance, an O is a little rounder than before. Surveys show the rounder type is easier to read.
There are some other changes inside, too. We've enlarged the regular Charlevoix Yesterday feature by adding Fran Martin's memories of past goings-on. We've instituted a regular business page, with the return of Jacquie Merita's Chamber of Commerce column as its anchor.
We've moved some other regular features to more logical places. And the widely read Calendar has been restyled to make it easier to read, and we've added a feature looking ahead at an upcoming story.
These may seem like a lot of changes all at once, but we thought you'd like a better paper as soon as possible. There will be more changes in the months ahead, too, as we find more ways to make The Courier a better paper for Charlevoix.
Don't be shy about letting us know what you think. After all, the Courier is not just our paper. It's yours, too.

Best regards,

Don Dibley
Editor

Ahead-lines Shoreline zoning

Proposed changes in lakeshore zoning regulations are expected to be discussed at the planning commission's Monday, Jan. 11, meeting.
The planners meet in city council chambers in City Hall at 5:30 p.m. Also on the agenda will be an altered site plan for Pointes North Inn (formerly called Rysberg Inn).
The lakeshore recommendations were made by a seven-person panel empowered by city council after a summer-long dispute over common-law, multiple-family buildings—commonly called condos.
Mayor Ralph McRae led forces which captured 800 names on petitions calling for a ban on condo construction near the lakes and channel.
He asked the planning commission to ban condos and to impose a moratorium on construction until zoning ordinance amendments could be written. Both requests were turned down.
City planner Gerry Harsch requested 45 days with a group of six residents to draw up proposals, which were delivered to council in December.
Serving with Harsch were council members Bill Haggard and Norm Probert, planning commissioners Al Ranger and Walt Hufford and residents D'Ann Rothenberger and Pat Russell.
They came up with 12 recommended changes to the zoning ordinance dealing with building heights; boat houses, boat docks and related parking; yard setbacks near the water; view corridors; and providing discretionary powers for the council to further regulate lakefront property uses.
The planners will discuss the proposals for the first time at their meeting, then set the date for a public hearing on the amendments.
After they make a recommendation to city council, the matter returns to council for discussion, public hearing and action.

Debate: Charlevoix will participate in the Marshall tournament.

'Big city' girl pays a visit

by PEG OHLE

The English-language dictionary calls a resident of Madrid, Spain a "Madri-le-nian." Without trying to pronounce the word, we shall just report that Andrea Mijares, an exchange student at Charlevoix High School this year is a Madri-le-nian.

Seventeen-year-old Andrea is basically a "big city" girl, but she is thoroughly enjoying living in a smaller community and going to a smaller high school. Madrid, the capital city of Spain, has a population of 3 million, compared with Charlevoix' population of slightly more than 3,000.

But that's not the only difference, according to Andrea. "Charlevoix is colder, too," she says.

Andrea is studying in the United States under the sponsorship of the American Scandinavian Student Exchange, the same group that is sponsoring Dora Skuladottir of Iceland.

She studied English for four years at home and hopes that living in Charlevoix for a year will add to her proficiency in the language.

Were she going to school in Madrid this year, Andrea would be taking class work in Latin, English, math, history and philosophy.

She explained that at the end of the 11th grade students decide whether they want to continue with science or concentrate on social studies. She chose the latter.

At Charlevoix High School, Andrea is studying history, algebra, English, Spanish, French and performing arts.

She is also a cheerleader and laughs about weight-lifting exercises to build her muscles. While cheerleading is keeping her busy now, Andrea is looking forward to playing tennis in the spring.

What has surprised Andrea most about the United States? "The food. There is so much of it and people eat all the time. At home, when we sit down to eat with our family, it takes about two hours. Here it's over so fast."

However, Andrea has fallen into line with American eating habits. She likes French fries with catsup and hamburgers.

Andrea is the fourth exchange student at Charlevoix High School the Courier has interviewed this fall. Asked if she conversed in Spanish with Marta SanJuan, whose home is the Spanish-speaking Canary Islands, Andrea said she did, but Marta has a different accent and uses some different words.

This is much the same story told by Mark Dietrich, an exchange student from Germany, who noted there were different German language accents in his country as there are different accents in the United States.

All of the five exchange students at Charlevoix High School are friends but they also have their own separate friends at school and out of school, according to Andrea.

One thing they did do altogether, however, was take a trip to Lansing to see the state's capital and learn about state government.

Andrea's father is a lawyer who works for the Spanish government. She has a 21-year-old brother and a 20-year-old sister, both of whom are attending universities.

Andrea plans to study economics in the university and hopes eventually to work for an American company in Spain.

"I hope my English will be good enough by then," she says.

In the meantime, Andrea feels very much at home with Tom and Sue Erber and their four children, although only one, John Paul, who is 12, is now at home.

AROUND THE TOWN

A piece of literature intending to show what Charlevoix could be provides a glimpse at what Charlevoix was.... A two-sided full-color flyer designed to look on the front like a magazine cover is being distributed by a downtown realty firm hired to find companies for Charlevoix's industrial park....

The piece is a companion for a 10-minute videotape made in the summer, carrying on the theme "Charlevoix... a city without limits."... The text uses words such as "premier," "unmatched," "idyllic," "playground" in describing the area....

Covering half the back is a full-color aerial photo of Round Lake—taken during Venetian Festival, if the flags on the Coast Guard cutter in the harbor are a clue.... But right there, in the foreground, where the Edgewater Inn should be, sits the old lumber yard—stretching from near the lake up the hill to Thistle-down. And across the street is the Fochtman Oil building, where the Pointes North Inn will be.

Buying a community tent is among the projects being considered by the Downtown Development Authority.... A large tent could be useful during Venetian Festival, the trout tournament, Waterfront Art Fair and several other events, authority members reason....

And it's possible there would be a market for rentals at lower rates than private parties are paying now, they say.... If the city got into the tent rent business, the best bet would be a brightly colored canvas, says Jeff Porter, who came up with the idea....

Right now, the tent most often used for civic functions comes from the cemetery, where it is used for... ah, cemetery functions.

Leadership skills development goal of series of workshops

Helping county residents develop and refine their leadership skills is the goal of a series of workshops in February and March.

"Leadership development... the key of the future of Charlevoix County" is the theme of the program.

The workshops are sponsored by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service's county office.

The idea grew out of a Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce goal to provide educational opportunities for businesses and the community.

Similar workshops have been held in other parts of the state by the extension service. This will be the first time the program is offered in Charlevoix County.

The program was put together by extension service staff members and a group of individuals from the three cities in the county.

The workshops are designed for about 40 participants with an interest in developing leadership skills so they may help their communities.

A social and economic cross-section of men and women is being sought. And couples are being urged to register.

The sessions will begin with a Friday-Saturday, Feb. 12-13, overnight session at Camp Hayo-Went-Ha on Torch Lake.

The overnight session help meld the individuals involved into a closer-knit group which will interact more easily in later sessions, says Dean Rhoads, district extension leader-resource development.

Several workshops will take place at that session.

Following workshops will be held at various locations around the county on Wednesday nights in February and March.

Among the skills to be explored are developing leadership, strengthening organizational effectiveness, positively managing conflict, managing time, dealing with stress and understanding others' leadership styles.

Other subjects include getting to know Charlevoix County, understanding the community power structure, understanding local government and evaluating your leadership style.

The entire program is designed to take about 40 to 50 hours of participants' time over the two-month period.

The registration fee is $40, with another $22 needed for overnight session lodging and meals. The fee is $75 for a couple, plus lodging costs.

Brochures and additional information on the sessions are available from the cooperative extension service office in Boyne City or from steering committee members.

Committee members are Tom Wieland at Wieland Farms, John Ochs at Central Drug Store in Charlevoix, Doug Shaw at Bridge Street Inn in Charlevoix, Jacquie Merta at Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Bruce MacArthur of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

Also, Boyne City manager Randy Frykberg, Dick Beagle of the Antrim-Charlevoix Growth Alliance, Susan VanWierden of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Al Stallard of East Jordan Iron Works and Don Dibley of the Charlevoix Courier.

Project coordinator is Rod Cortright of the extension service office in Boyne City.

OPINIONS

Don't wiggle the scales

Charlevoix maintains a delicate balance. Nine months of the year, we're another sleepy northwoods town. But the other three... look out, here they come!

Bumper-to-bumper, they fill one of the state's star tourist attractions. And we say thank you to every one of them.

They come here for the sights. They come here for the shops.

For most visitors, the first summer glimpse of Charlevoix's beauty comes as they begin to decline the south hill into the downtown.

The picture-perfect harbor. The jam-packed sidewalk. Crowds of cars inching down the street.

Now picture the setting again: The harbor is still picture perfect, but the sidewalk is filled with skateboarders and empty cafe tables. No one is inching down Bridge Street as four unencumbered lanes clear traffic swiftly.

Gone are the allure. The charm. The crowds. Farfetched? Who knows?

Who knows what combination of magnetic ingredients lures tourists by the thousands to an out-of-the-way little town with no amusement park?

The beaches, sure. The scenery, of course. But what role does the feel of the quaint downtown, tucked in a valley along the lake, play?

There's really no way to tell. But do we want to take a chance on upsetting that delicate balance that allows a sleepy town to awaken with a roar each spring?

Major changes in downtown traffic patterns, such as those suggested by the state highway department, would have long-term implications. And nobody can say for sure what they would be.

But it's hard to imagine a four-lane thoroughfare — with that ghost-town look of no-parking zones — having a positive result.

And routing southbound traffic away from the shopping area on State Street has faults.

This is a town for slowing down, for window shopping, for gawking at yachts, for snapping photos of the bridge in action.

It's not a town for whizzing through on the way to somewhere else. Why should we be in such a hurry to get people out of town?

Sure, it's inconvenient to have traffic stopped up in summer. But it's more inconvenient to have stores locked up in winter.

The following was written to another newspaper about another town wrestling with traffic problems on the same highway. It's from a man opposed to widening U.S. 31 through Bay View.

"Why would any summer community in northern Michigan want a four-lane highway so that more vehicles could move through it more quickly? Petoskey, Charlevoix and Traverse City are destinations, places to be enjoyed... (not) impediments to the free flow of traffic."

Let's not chance ruining what we've got.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Going over the edge

After driving from Charlevoix to Petoskey almost every morning for 22 years in all kinds of weather, it was bound to happen.

I ran off the road. No, I didn't skid on icy pavement. No, I didn't dodge to avoid a deer. No, I wasn't exceeding the speed limit.

U.S. 31 simply disappeared at about 7:15 a.m. Monday — in a total whiteout along the Lake Michigan shore one mile east of Burgess Road.

There was a sickening crunch as I plowed through the snowbank on the right side of the road. Then I had a sinking feeling as the car slithered down an embankment in soft snow and came to a stop in the ditch.

My first feeling was one of immense relief. At least I was off the road and still alive. Visibility was so poor that I had a scary feeling ever since leaving Charlevoix that I might encounter a westbound car traveling in the wrong lane.

Of course, I made an attempt to climb the embankment by shifting the car into reverse. But it didn't work.

So I left the key in the ignition, extricated my camera bag and Fran Martin's daily pouch of copy for the Petoskey News-Review from the back seat and scrambled up onto the highway through deep snow.

Visibility was almost zero, the wind was biting and across the highway Lake Michigan boomed in one long, unending roar. I took a few steps down the highway and turned around to look at my car. I couldn't see it.

A few cars were passing, very slowly, in both directions. Most of them had their blinkers on.

A short distance down the highway I came to a driveway, at the end of which I could vaguely make out a house with lighted windows. But there were no other signs of occupancy. I suspected the owners were away and the lights had been turned on by an automatic switch to ward off burglars.

I returned to the car, slid down the bank, climbed inside and turned on the engine and the heater. Everything worked and I was soon warm enough to venture out again. This time I turned toward Petoskey but made little progress against the blinding snow.

I had almost decided to return to the car and wait for daylight when a westbound car slowed down, pulled over on the shoulder, turned around and stopped behind me. The driver was Tracy Penfold of Charlevoix who offered me a ride back to town. In fact he delivered me to my doorstep.

The rest of the scenario was fairly routine. I called Phillips Northside Standard and yes, they would take me back to my car with a tow truck. The sky was getting lighter and the driver had no trouble pulling my Ford out of the ditch. Minutes later I continued my trip to Petoskey.

There must be a moral to the story, but for the present I am still too cold to decide what it is.

I do know that whiteouts — which are so common on the Lake Michigan shore — are just as treacherous as icy roads. Perhaps more so, since there is absolutely nothing you can do about them. You can't even pull over on the shoulder — when you don't know where the shoulder is.

I guess I have just been terribly lucky for a very long time.

Jaycees, symphonic band left out

The Jaycees and symphonic band should have been in last week's Courier, but weren't.

An Around the Town item about the Charlevoix Kiwanis getting its first female member failed to mention that the Charlevoix Jaycees had women members for several years.

The Kiwanians have selected Jacquie Merta for membership in the organization. The local Lions Club and Rotary do not yet have women members.

A federal lawsuit against a Rotary chapter led to the change in policy by the previously all-male service groups.

The symphonic band's all-I top rating at the state band competition should have been listed among state championship achievements by Charlevoix High students.

The band received all I's for the first time since 1984 at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Festival in Holt. Scores were obtained in sight reading and concert judging.

The band also received perfect scores at the district competition.

New council member Alvin "Butch" Russell (left) is sworn in Monday along with re-elected incumbents Earl Muma (center) and Norm Probert. Reading the pledge of office is Arlene Staley, who was re-elected in November as city clerk.

Council makes appointments, names Roloff mayor pro tem

Council member Shirley Roloff has once again been selected as mayor pro tem by her colleagues.

As pro tem, it's Roloff's job to run council meetings and perform other mayoral duties in Mayor Ralph McRae's absence.

Among the duties Roloff found most interesting in her past year as pro tem, she says, was officiating at weddings. The mayor has the power to conduct marriage ceremonies.

Sworn into office at Monday's meeting was Alvin "Butch" Russell, who was elected to a Second Ward seat in November.

Also sworn in by clerk Arlene Staley were incumbents Norm Probert and Earl Muma, who were re-elected. Staley also was re-elected in November.

Council made several appointments to city commissions.

Named to fill a vacancy on the recreation commission was John Hess, former chairman of that panel who wrote the present five-year recreation plan.

The board of review will consist of council members Earl Muma and Roloff and former councilman Bob Timms, who becomes the citizen member of the panel. The board of review considers property owners' requests for decreases in property tax assessments.

Appointments of alternates to the zoning board of appeals will be made later. Council members will interview prospective candidates at Monday's work session.

The alternates must be appointed to fill two vacancies left by the appointment of former alternates Kevin Whitley and Larry Sullivan as members when long-time members Ted Felter and Charles Scherping were not re-appointed.

Bob Timms receives a plaque and a handshake from Mayor Ralph McRae at the end of his 13 years as a council member. Timms, who was defeated in the November election, was honored at the final council meeting of 1987.

Several council members have been critical of zoning board decisions in recent months, saying the panel has been too lenient in granting variances from zoning ordinance restrictions.

Patty Sitzema and Evelyn Noirot were nominated by Roloff and Joan Wagner was nominated by councilman Norm Probert.

Hagan Manker said he approached Probert about filling an earlier vacancy on the zoning board and wondered if he was excluded from consideration because his answers to questions about condominiums and other developments were "not appropriate."

Roloff suggested Manker attend the interviews if he wants to be considered for the board.

While saying he had no objection to the people nominated,

Bill Supernaw suggested others be considered.

"All these people seem to be of the same political persuasion," he said.

Roloff took exception to a Petoskey News-Review article which said Felter and Scherping "got the boot" because council members did not agree with their rulings.

The zoning board is an independent body over which the council has no veto power. Council members also formed the zoning board until a 1982 lawsuit pointed out a charter prohibition against them being on any other board.

"This board has the right to do whatever you want to," she told other council members. "I'm getting tired of being put on the spot."

Mayor gives review, preview in 'state of city' talk

Mayor Ralph McRae began his second year in office by reviewing the accomplishments of city government in the last year and previewing what may be done this year.

"Charlevoix is a wonderful place," he said, "but it can be better."

His review of 1987 included:

- A needs study that resulted in a decision to embark on an infrastructure program.

- To fund this capital improvement outlay, city taxes were increased almost four mills.

- Consequently, almost three miles of streets were resurfaced.

- Fire and safety building was completed.

- All residential property was reassessed. A few will pay less taxes.

- An industrial development committee started a move to promote and sell our industrial park. A southfield firm will make special efforts to bring new plants to our city.

- A 10-minute videotape was produced to let other people know why they should come to Charlevoix.

- A very important development was completing the Erber parking lot.

- Council voted to give the Star of Charlevoix a very encouraging contract.

- Council also called for a study and possible revision of the zoning ordinances to control waterfront development.

- Minor, but important item was installation of wells at the city golf course.

- 105 and 107 Park Avenue took up a lot of everyone's time. (This is the site of a proposed condominium or hotel development.)

McRae's preview of possible 1988 council activity includes:

- Downtown walks and curbs by Downtown Development Authority. Also by Downtown Development Authority completion of Hoffman Park and the interpretive display by the bridge.

- Acquisition of the White property, and possibly a gravel parking area at that location.

- Citywide replacing of bad sidewalks with no special assessments to affected property owners.

- A new sidewalk on the east side of Bridge Street - down to the Captain's Corner shopping center.

- Council will decide a parking policy for downtown apartments.

- The Planning Commission, under council urging, will recommend new ordinances for shoreline development controls.

- One of the most important decisions affecting every taxpayer will be improving the traffic flow on Bridge Street. It will be a difficult decision.

- As a result of the needs study, Dixon Avenue will be repaved after the installation of a storm sewer between Michigan Avenue and Meech Street.

- Some electric outages will be a thing of the past with the start of the almost one million dollar improvement to our overloaded electric system.

- One of my personal goals is to urge council to do something about our deplorable bandstand.

Other things the mayor says the council should move on:

- Adoption of a master plan for the airport.

- Make a decision whether to enter the cable TV business.

- Make the Star of Charlevoix a local success story. The council should cooperate in this project. Most of the cost of extending the docks will be paid by the local Star of Charlevoix corporation.

- Seriously study Round Lake docking problems.

- Additional work will be done on pruning and trimming trees.

- A decision must be made on the removal of the water tower.

- The council should consider a study to improve the water frontage between Clinton Street and the bridge.

- In the next few days a final decision will be given on the Ferry Avenue project. With or without the state grant a capital improvement program will be coming up on the whole Ferry Avenue area owned by the city of Charlevoix.

- Sewer rates should be reduced this year.

- This spring a public walkway will be installed on the south side of the channel.

- Michigan Bell Telephone Co. will attempt again to bore 80 feet under the channel. In this small tunnel will be a city electrical cable, several communication tubes connecting the south and north sides of the city of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix.

The U.S. Corp of Engineers will remove and relocate the south pier and the lighthouse.

- To later complete needed loops, an electrical cable will be submerged just east of the old railroad bridge.

McRae asked each council member to make a list of six items they would like council to consider during the year.

Contrary to what you may believe, many everyday items cost no more at 7-Eleven than they do at the huge supermarkets. Yet 7-Eleven gives you front-door parking and no long lines. Just check these prices to see how little it costs to get the good things easy!

Barge house finds home on 2nd try

With the need to return moving equipment as soon as possible, a house transported 294 miles to Beaver Island was placed on a different lot than originally intended.

The house, which was barged to the island from Holland, was moved to a lot on Bay Street in the village of St. James instead of to Indian Point on the north end of the island, according to Ed Wojan of Wojan Realty.

Donegal Bay Road had been widened in preparation for the move, but the uncertainty of moving Top O' Michigan power lines to allow the structure to make the trip to its planned location resulted in a change of plans.

The lot was purchased by the owner of the house, Paul VanHuis of Holland, and the structure was moved to Bay Street north of the Beaver Haven Marine.

The 14-story frame building was placed on a barge in early fall for removal from the city of Holland to a lot in an adjacent township.

Its construction, however, did not meet township zoning standards and it was not allowed ashore.

After two months and the sale of the barge on which it rested, it was towed to Beaver Island last week.

Perrault-Mosley wedding

Dorene Kay Perrault and Mark Timothy Mosley were married Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Church of the Nazarene in Charlevoix. The Rev. Duane Nelson performed the double-ring ceremony in the presence of 125 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Donald Eggers of Alma and Darlene Perrault of Charlevoix. The bridegroom is the son of Elwood Mosley and Mary Mosley, both of Charlevoix.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore an off-the-shoulder gown of taffeta. It was fashioned with renaissance sleeves, a bodice trimmed with lace, beads and sequins, and a semi-cathedral train with Venise lace trimmed hemline.

Her headpiece was a wreath of silk flowers with simulated pearls, and her bouquet was an arrangement of baby pink roses and baby white carnations with baby's breath.

The bride's sister, Debbie Eggers, served as maid of honor, and another sister, Dorothy Perrault, and Becky Doan were bridesmaids.

They wore floor-length gowns of pink satin with hoop skirts and carried arrangements of baby pink and white carnations.

Mike Fels assisted the bridegroom as best man, with Robert Russell serving as groomsmen. Justin Paul Mosley and Joshua Lee Mosley, sons of the bride and bridegroom, were ringbearers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Anne Fiedler.

A reception was held at the Edgewater Inn following the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's father at his home.

Following a wedding trip to Traverse City and a stay at the Grand Traverse Resort, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix. They will soon move to East Lansing, where the bridegroom is enrolled at Michigan State University.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Have you ever driven a car through steep hilly country? You might have noticed on particularly steep hills, ones that you can't see down the other side of, that you get an occasional sinking feeling just before you get to the top. You know the other side is there. But your stomach tells you, just for a moment, what if it isn't there?

Some folks just can't easily shake their fears, unless you can give them an explanation or give them a handle to deal with them. It's like walking through the woods. In the daylight, everything is so beautiful and unspoiled. In the dark, there's lions and tigers and bears, oh my!

David reminds us "the Lord is my light and my salvation—whom shall I fear?" The Lord shines over the hills we cannot. He has traveled ground that we haven't covered yet. He exposes the shadows for what they are.

Do we realize what we have in our faith? Whether it is reassurance over worry, freedom from fear, breaking old habits, really coming alive in our faith, God has what it takes and more to meet our needs. But when are we going to realize that God goes beyond just meeting our needs?

Salvation is the need of every sin sick soul. Without real change, without real faith, where's the difference in your life going to come from? We don't sing the hymn "I Surrender Just What I Want." We sing "I Surrender All." Salvation is the beginning of a whole new life. We ought to willingly let the changes God wants to make in our lives happen.

SHOPTALK

JACQUIE MERTA

Jacque Merta is executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

In December's "Business Focus" you will find a survey asking for your opinion regarding several Chamber areas of concern.

We would appreciate you taking a few minutes of your time to answer the questions. The tabulated results will help prioritize the direction the Board of Directors moves in 1988. Each year the board participates in a Leadership Retreat for the purpose of setting the new year's Program of Work. Ironically this intense, thought-provoking meeting is called a retreat when actually the process generates new ideas through evaluation and brainstorming.

Let me focus on one question the survey asks, "Should the Venetian Festival continue in 1988 and if so what events should be included in the festival?" There has been discussion regarding whether or not this festival is good for business and good for the town. It definitely occurs at a time of the year when it seems like people are short on time to contribute.

As you know there are some events of Venetian that are sponsored by other organizations, i.e. the cross country race is put on by the Charlevoix Cross Country team and the baseball tournament by the Recreation Department.

Do you think the Chamber should sponsor the events outlined in the survey, or do you think another organization would be more appropriate, or maybe a particular Venetian event should be discontinued? We have left room on the survey for your comments and they would very much be appreciated.

As an organization we would like to serve our membership better and in order to do so we need your participation... please return the survey to the Chamber office as soon as possible as we have scheduled the board retreat for Jan. 19 and 20.

Farmers entering programs must verify compliance with sodbuster regulations

To participate in 1988 farm programs, producers must certify they will not violate sodbuster and swampbuster regulations, says Elaine Richardson, county executive director of Emmet-Charlevoix Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service.

Farmers who do not certify will be ineligible for program benefits for the 1988-crop year on all land in which they have an interest," Richardson said. Program benefits include price and income supports, disaster payments, crop insurance, Farmers Home Administration loans and other U.S. Department of Agriculture programs.

Producers who have recently cultivated highly erodible land for producing an agricultural commodity must certify they are producing the crop under an approved conservation plan, if the land has not been exempted from these requirements.

Highly erodible land is exempt through Jan. 1, 1990, if it was planted to an agricultural commodity or used as conservation use acreage or acreage conservation reserve at least one year between 1981 and 1985.

Richardson said sodbuster and swampbuster provisions encourage reduction of soil erosion and the retention of wetlands and will reduce production of surplus commodities.

County taxes lowest in 4-county region

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County residents who grumbled at the news of a 5.86 percent increase in next year's county budget, and therefore in their taxes, might have reason to smile just a bit:

At $196 per capita, property taxes in Charlevoix County are the lowest in any of four adjoining counties.

Emmet County taxes, at $208 per capita, are the next highest, followed by Antrim County at $217 per capita, and Otsego County at $248 per capita.

Because all four counties use different accounting systems and include different items under department headings, there is no way to determine why similar services cost more in one county than in another. One difference could be the amount of debt the county is paying off.

Also, Charlevoix County is the only one of the four counties that does not operate an airport. Just one cleanup of a fuel spill at Emmet County Airport cost over $22,000, and Otsego County had $48,654 in its budget to pay for airport operations that will not be covered by landing fees.

Court date looms in lawsuit over channel construction

Construction of a condominium on Park Avenue continues as a court date in a lawsuit to stop it approaches.

Neighbor David Miles, who is suing the building owner and the city over approval of the project, is also fighting construction outside the courtroom. At the Dec. 21 city council meeting, Miles read a seven-page list of alleged irregularities in the manner the issue has been handled at City Hall.

The court challenge is the latest entanglement in the dispute over Don Berlage's plans to build a condominium townhouse or hotel on the site at 105 and 107 Park Avenue overlooking Pine River Channel.

The city's attorney has asked council to reconsider action sending the hotel site plan back to the planning commission and zoning board of appeals. The council has taken no further action, however.

Meanwhile, Berlage has asked the city to halt consideration of the plan until after the court hearing.

Miles' lawsuit, filed Nov. 30, claims some zoning ordinance variances were improperly granted and others that should have been considered were not taken up.

The suit also asks circuit court to reverse a city zoning board of appeals ruling that a hotel is an allowable use in the commercial-scenic portion of the city.

A show cause hearing is scheduled before Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 12, in the county courthouse. At that time, the judge will hear arguments on whether Miles has a case that should be pursued in the court.

At the Dec. 21 council meeting, Miles said walls were being built on the condominium building although the only permit issued was for footings and foundations.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said Wednesday, Dec. 23, that Berlage was issued a zoning permit for construction of the building that day. The county building department was issuing a building permit, Wiesner said Monday, Dec. 28, after discussions by Berlage, Wiesner and building officials.

Wiesner told council that follow-up on building permits was not within the city's jurisdiction. The county building department enforces construction laws; the city handles zoning matters.

The building is being put up by Northern Michigan Realty Services. Berlage, president of the firm, has repeatedly said he does not know yet whether the building will be condominium units or a hotel.

The zoning board, in reversing a planning commission decision, determined a hotel could be built on the site. Either way, Berlage says, the same building exterior will be constructed — the only difference would be in the number and size of units inside.

City council in September approved a site development plan for the condominiums.

In December it sent the site plan for the hotel back to the planning commission and zoning board for review.

City attorney Jeff VanTreese cautioned against the council's action, saying there was no basis in Michigan law for returning the plan to those boards at this stage in the approval procedure.

Council took the action, on a 4-3 vote with the mayor breaking a tie, because members said a council policy was violated. That policy — approved in September, three months after Berlage submitted his plans — dictates the path a proposal must take through the planning commission, council and zoning

Boarding houses 'reborn'

An earlier generation called them "boarding houses," but a present-day government agency has come up with the name "shared housing."

This concept of a "new" housing plan for senior citizens was explained to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners by Judith Shea of Northwest Senior Resources Inc.

The plan is described as a means of providing "physically independent older persons who need moderate cost housing the alternative of living in an extended family environment where they can find companionship, security and attention to their every-day needs while maintaining their dignity, privacy, and independence."

To test the acceptability of such a plan in northwest Michigan, Northwest Senior Resources is proposing to build a specially designed barrier-free four-bedroom ranch style house in a quiet residential setting in Traverse City close to community conveniences.

The house would be architecturally, environmentally and scientifically designed to meet the specific needs and requirements of older persons.

Each resident would have a private bedroom and bath while sharing kitchen, dining and social areas.

If the pilot program house is built in Traverse City and proves to be successful, others could be built elsewhere in the area, including Charlevoix, according to Shea.

Construction is underway on the Pine River Club, a condominium or hotel on Park Avenue. Next door (at right in photo) is the house of David Miles, who is suing to halt construction.

City planner Gerry Harsch told the zoning board at its December meeting that VanTreese had determined that the council's policy had been adhered to.

The council received, then tabled, the matter at an earlier meeting, Harsch said, because the planning commission had not taken any action pending a decision from the zoning board.

Berlage appealed the city council's decision to return the matter to the planning and zoning boards. That appeal would be heard by the zoning board, but was not taken up Dec. 16.

Harsch suggested the zoning board wait to see if the council reconsiders its decision.

Berlage's attorney has asked the circuit court on Dec. 23 to throw out portions of the lawsuit. Judge Richard Pajtas took the request under advisement.

REFLECTIONS

FRAN MARTIN

This column was "born" when a picture of bobsledding on Bridge Street appeared in "Charlevoix Yesterday." I was telling the editor what fun it was and how the entire community got involved in this wintertime sport.

He suggested I write a column recalling some of the events and what-have-yous as I remember them. I think he thinks I was here when the community was called something other than "Charlevoix." I wasn't.

I agreed to give the idea a try. If you've any ideas or pictures, pass them along. I'd appreciate it. One thing I would like you to keep in mind: What I write will be as I remember it. It may not coincide with your recollections of it.

E.A.M.

It is hard to believe, with present problems about parking on Bridge Street, that those problems did not always exist. In fact, during the 1920's there were very few vehicles operating in the area during the winter months.

Winters seemed to start earlier in those days and streets were not plowed down to the blacktop as they are now.

As the winter progressed, a track was formed down the middle of Bridge Street all the way to the highway bridge with snow banked on the sides except at cross streets.

As the weather grew colder, water would be added to the track to make it icy in preparation for the coasting.

Meanwhile, the owners of the bobsleds — which would be from 16 feet to more than 20 feet in length — would ready the sled by polishing the runners and painting the planks where riders sat (to make sure there were no slivers) in readiness for the first frosty night cold enough for coasting. It had to be cold or the track wouldn't hold up.

I remember only one man who had a sled. He was Frank Bird, who had a really big one. I recalled that Frank Olmstead had been injured in an accident with a sled so I called him (he now lives in LaCrescenta, Calif.) to ask him about it.

He advised me to call his cousin, Helen Mary (Campbell) Buckler in Norwood, whose father, Allen Campbell, had a sled which she was to describe as a "small one... only 16 feet."

The secret of this type of bobsledding is weight: the longer the sled, the more riders. The more riders the more weight and the faster and farther the sled would travel.

When conditions were "just right," a loaded sled would travel from the top of the southside hill to a point halfway up the northside hill.

The best way to load a sled was to place adults, the heavier ones toward the back of the sleigh and then put kids on the laps of each. It was amazing how many you could pile on a big sled.

By the time you got to Mason Street, you were really traveling and even the smaller sleds would coast to Park Avenue or even the bridge.

Among those who had sleds, Mrs. Buckler recalled, were P.D. Campbell, Frank Bird and Allen Campbell. Also, Oscar Stoud had one. I'm sure there were probably others but those are the ones we could recall.

Undoubtedly, there were frosted fingers and toes, but who remembers anything but the fun it was for adults as well as the teenagers and the younger kids?

Charlevoix Yesterday

This picture of third grade students, taken in 1913, was furnished by Ralph Hamilton, who writes: "I can only identify a few, maybe your readers can identify more — Harold Geiken, Elizabeth Clark, Alice Lynn, Clara Marshall, Margaret Brown and Sylvia Black. I am discreetly hidden just below the picture of the teacher whose name I don't remember."

YES, NO & MAYBE

It looked so easy.

When the state Department of Natural Resources handed out pledges of hundreds of thousands of dollars last week, there was the $400,000 the Little Traverse Conservancy wanted to help purchase North Point.

While the Natural Resources Land Trust board was in session in North Point, a was... to Charlevoix's Ferry Beach and... to the island park and beach.

It was Charlevoix's first request, but Bay Township...

$400,000 big boost in North Point campaign

Christmas came a few days late for supporters of the effort to preserve the North Point dunes area. But the state's gift was well appreciated.

The Little Traverse Conservancy-led effort to purchase the 28-acre Lake Michigan site took a giant leap forward with approval of a $400,000 grant from the state.

The conservancy has a two-year option — through October 1989 — on the half-mile stretch of lakefront, but is closing in on its goal in short order.

The option was signed in October and fund-raising began in earnest in December but already more than 75 percent of the needed money has been pledged or donated.

Along with the state Natural Resources Land Trust Fund's $400,000, local contributors have donated $135,000 in less than

Reality replaces optimism for Ferry Beach project

Jim Withers began the day in Lansing optimistic about the city's chances of getting $666,000 to fix up Ferry Beach.

"I sat there all day listening to 30-some communities making presentations and realized I was in the middle of the Harlem Globetrotters — they were all really good," Withers recalls.

It was then that the sport fisherman realized the city grant request before the Natural Resources Land Trust board was in jeopardy.

"Why should we be so special to be selected?" he thought.

Charlevoix had been on the state's list, then off it, and then back on — being added with two other communities to a possible funding list the October day Withers accompanied City Manager Mike Wisner and other officials to Lansing to plead their

MAYBE

4-year effort comes down to final hours

It seemed like a simple request to the folks in Bay Township.

They just wanted to buy a small piece of land so some day in the future they could make the first township park and beach.

That simple request has turned into a four-year series of wait-a-minutes, but-firs and but-what-about-thises.

Each year's application for state Land Trust Fund money has ended with the request stamped MAYBE. But this year's MAYBE is the closest yet to being a YES.

In fact, it is a yes. But with conditions. The township has been awarded $90,000 if it can get a court judgment erased. And it took a whirlwind of telephone activity to get that far.

On Monday, Jan. 4, the township was off the funding list. On Wednesday, Jan. 6, it was back on.

Ahead-lines

Barbed wire debate

The thorny issue of barbed wire will resurface at the zoning board of appeals meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 20, in City Hall.
City boards have been wrestling with two requests for barbed wire - eventually approving one, then halting action on both.
A legal opinion from city attorney Jeff VanTreese, however, has cleared up confusion over whether the zoning board has the right to allow barbed wire.
The city zoning ordinance forbids the wire's use except in the industrial park. The zoning board, VanTreese decided, can waive the restriction in certain cases.
Already approved is wire for the top of a security fence at an auto impound yard behind Ron's Mobil. The yard is used by police and insurance companies to secure cars.
The other request, by Charlevoix Schools, is for barbed wire, already in place, around the football field. The wire replaces older barbed wire and expands its use along a new section of fence.

Then and now: Changes in party politics

1915: Friendship for 'hearty men'

by PEG OHLE

For those who may feel there is too much emphasis on party politics these days, we transport you back to the Charlevoix County Republican Club's 10th annual banquet - Friday, Aug. 27, 1915, at the Wolverine Hotel in Boyne City.

The four-page souvenir program is enclosed in a gray cardboard cover, printed in blue and gold and tied together with gold twine.

The first page is devoted to a short essay on "Friendship," followed by a page detailing the program, another page devoted to the menu, and the last page taken up by a six-stanza poem titled "A Tribute to Charlevoix County Michigan."

A short sentence at the top of the menu page reads, "Light refreshments for hearty men," which suggests only men are present on this occasion.

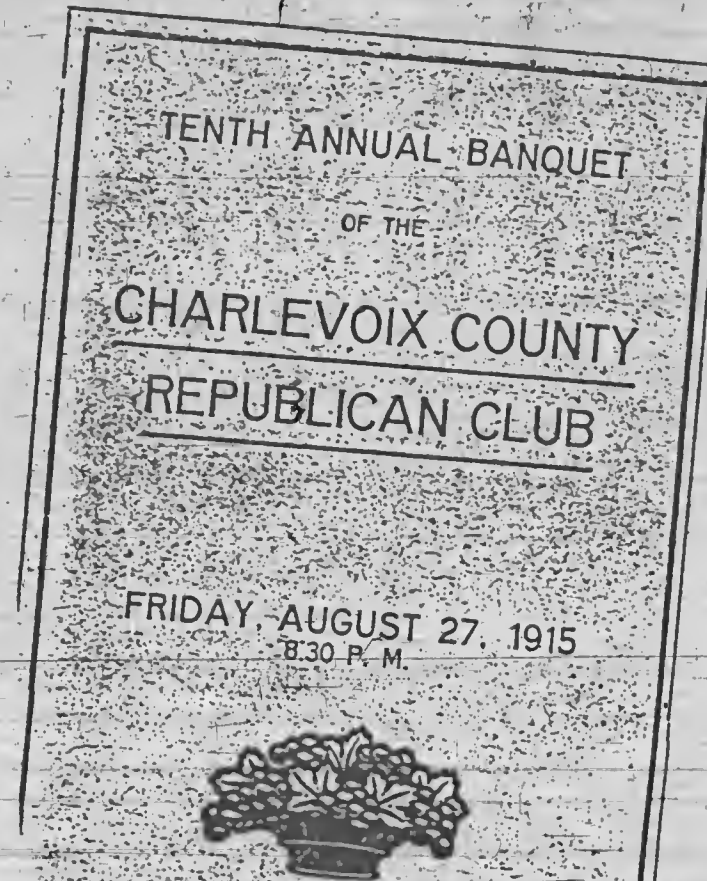

Be that as it may, the program is certainly for men only.

Harry Curkendall, president of the club, introduces the Hon. William J. Pearson, who serves as toastmaster. A local historian remembers Pearson as a sheriff of Charlevoix County.

The list of dinner speakers and their subjects is impressive: Hon. J. Lee Morford, "Affairs in Michigan;" Hon. Frank D. Scott, "The Experiences of a New Congressman in a New District;" Hon. G. J. Dickens, "The Present Administration;" Hon. Charles E. Townsend, "Tariff for Revenue Only;" Hon. William Alden Smith of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, "Foreign Affairs."

Note that in 1915, all officeholders are considered to be Honorable men.

The local banquet committee for this occasion is made up of Hon. Judge Mayne of Charlevoix, Hon. H. I. McMillan of East Jordan and Hon. J. M. Harris, E. W. Abbott, A. C. Urquhart and Sabin Hooper, all of Boyne City, along with Pearson of Boyne Falls.

The days of Republican banquets, or even big dinners, in Charlevoix County are long since gone.

Party members now gather each year for a picnic at Whiting Park, attended largely by officeholders (many of whom are now women) and their families, along with a party faithful.

The congressman and state legislators representing Charlevoix County usually turn out to eat chicken, bring greetings and say a few well chosen words.

In recent years, there have been only two such guests, Congressman Bob Davis and State Rep. Ralph Ostling. The county's representative in the State Senate is Mitch Irwin, a Democrat.

If a present-day member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations could find his way to northern Michigan to attend the Charlevoix County Republican picnic and talk about "Foreign Affairs," it would be interesting.

Or, perhaps some one in the know could come to talk about "The Present Administration." He would really draw a crowd and lots of press.

In any case, we have to quote just one stanza of "A Tribute to Charlevoix County Michigan," which could encourage or discourage any invited speaker:

Go search for charms and foreign shores,

Enthuse of wonders as you roam,

I choose the splendors at our doors,

I sing the rich delights of home.

The trees in garth of glory dressed,

Our fertile field. Oh, glorious joy!

I sing of charms that fill my breasts.

The wooderous land of Charlevoix.

1988: Battle over delegates

by PEG OHLE

When the 39 delegates to the Charlevoix County Republican Convention meet Thursday, Jan. 14, to select delegates to the state convention, it will be under circumstances quite different from the usual cut-and-dried convention in this Republican stronghold.

The call to the convention carries the words, "In order to be seated as a delegate, you MUST present this notice and a picture ID." This careful screening of those attending the convention is a reflection of a struggle of almost two years between party supporters of Vice President George Bush and TV evangelist Pat Robertson, who recently formed a coalition with New York Congressman Jack Kemp.

Both groups have sought court rulings on who should be seated at county conventions and how their votes should be counted - the candidate receiving most votes given all the votes, or each candidate receiving the number of votes cast for him.

For several months this fall, elected Republican county officials, who for years have been considered delegates to the county convention, were denied convention votes by party decision.

That was changed by a circuit court ruling Dec. 4. The decision was important to supporters of Bush, who believe most county officials are in their camp.

However, this court decision is being appealed by Robertson-Kemp supporters, with a ruling expected today. If the earlier court decision is overturned, 12 Charlevoix County officials will not be able to cast votes for delegates to the state convention or to be delegates themselves.

Without the 12 county officials: the Charlevoix County delegates are believed divided almost evenly between Bush and Robertson-Kemp. Little mention of candidate Kansas Senator Robert Dole is being made, although it is believed some support for him may surface at the convention.

All Republican county conventions in the state are being held tomorrow night, with similar divisions in party loyalty. According to a Detroit Sunday News report, the division could carry through to the state convention, ending in "a solid chance that Michigan will send two separate delegations to the National Convention in New Orleans and force the national party to decide which will be seated."

In addition to the 12 county officials (who may or may not be able to vote), the elected delegates to the Charlevoix County convention who will choose five delegates and five alternates to the state convention in Grand Rapids Jan. 29 and 30 are:

Donald Smith, Ronald Geer, and John Haggard, Charlevoix Township; F. Earl Muma, Robert Timms, Barbara Timms, Donald Volsin, and Bonnie Bellows, City of Charlevoix; William Huber and Donald Hufford, Hayes Township; Bruce Lanphar, Norwood Township; Kevin Green, St. James Township; Lyle W. Harper, William G. Sanderson, and Dorothy G. Sanderson, Eveline Township.

Also, William H. Ohle and Margaret A. Ohle, Bay Township; Delbert E. Nixon, Evangeline Township; Barbara Elliott and Eileen D. Laurie, Melrose Township; Glenn D. Piepenburg, Boyne Valley Township; Randy Witten, Charles W. Inman, and Betty A. Inman, South Arm Township; Harrietta B. Jackson, Wilson Township; Galen W. Sells, East Jordan, and Arthur Rouse, Boyne City.

Lake proposal clears hurdle

by PEG OHLE

The much-discussed Lake Charlevoix Management Plan passed its first acceptance hurdle last week.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission voted unanimously to approve the plan's recommendations for the present and future protection of the lake.

The next step for the plan is submission to the County Board of Commissioners for its acceptance and/or approval. Following that, it will go to the cities and townships within the Lake Charlevoix Watershed, about nine percent of the county area.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Plan is designed to give each local unit of government a chance to include in its own ordinance any part of or all of the recommendations it contains.

It is expected that such features as suggested densities for development, watercraft regulations, dock and mooring placements, and water quality monitoring will be accepted in varying degrees by most townships and cities.

The plan was written over a period of three years by a committee of county residents who served without remuneration. The final plan differs in many ways from earlier drafts, with changes being made as a result of public input.

Writer apologizes

Editor,

I recently wrote the Charlevoix Courier concerning the poll that was taken about the Bridge Street Park plan. In my letter I did use some rather destructive criticisms towards the Burnside clothing store... that was not my intent when drafting the letter.

I would like to apologize to the Burnside family and to others who may have found the letter somewhat "overbearing." We Texans have a problem with that at times.

The tux is back in style

Changing Times — If I were a betting person, I'd give you odds if you could guess how many Charlevoix year 'round residents own their own tuxedos. I counted over 30 at the bash given by the Tom Bickersteths and Doug Boyers last week.

The glamorous fashions reminded me of Hollywood premieres which we used to attend before moving to Michigan. It's nice to know that there are plenty of beautiful people right here in Charlevoix who are willing to pitch their parkas once a year and trot out the black tuxedo.

GYPSY SERENADE — If I weren't so fond of Doris and Gunnar Lundteigen, I'd turn green with envy. The mailman has been bringing me postcards from Budapest, Vienna and Paris describing fabulous meals, beautifully served with real gypsy serenades every night, manicure shops on every street, trips down the blue Danube, a visit to the Chagall museum and Christmas in Oslo.

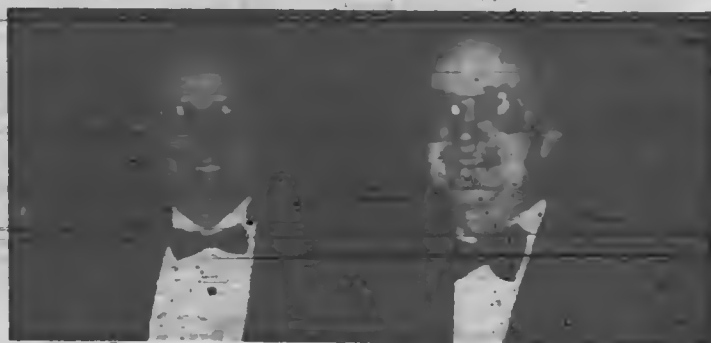

These energetic retired school teachers are making their headquarters in Norway for six months, with scheduled side trips to the continent. After New Year's they will do Spain and Portugal. Ole!

MORE ABOUT DEER ALERT DEVICES — If I didn't level with you, you wouldn't trust me. Mel Matchett likes reading my column, but wants us all to know that Charlevoix and Emmet counties do not have the highest record in the state for deer accidents. Forty-eight counties in Michigan had three to four times as many accidents.

Also that my 20,000 figure on deer-car related accidents is low — according to an official map he enclosed. In 1985 it was closer to 29,000, and it's higher today. Thanks for straightening us out, Mel.

Now I want to add a personal note regarding the deer alert device. (Attached to the front bumper of your car, it alerts the deer via ultrasonic sound waves and prevents accidents.) It's tricky to attach, at least it was for me. One of the pair fell off, but luckily I found it. Put the device on when the car is warm. I was told. Besides, I put one of the pair on backwards. Jimmy Testa, a nice young man at Kusina's, offered to do it right for me.

Timms will be missed

No one was surprised when former Councilman Bob Timms showed up at city hall Monday, Jan. 4, for the council meeting.

That's what he has been doing just about every Monday night for the past 13 years.

But Timms no longer sits on the speakers' platform. Since he was defeated in the November municipal election by his friend Alvin "Butch" Russell, Timms is now a member of the audience.

Although Timms has been involved in all of the city's major political decisions since the early 1970s, I think his most memorable evening came early in his career when council was on the verge of postponing action a citizen's request for something or other.

The poor beggar had made two or three appearances before the council and each time the council had been tabled his request.

When it appeared the council was about to sidestep the question again, Timms said no.

"This fellow has been here before. We are going to give him an answer one way or the other tonight," Timms said flatly.

And the council did. It's funny how I don't remember what the issue was; but I remember how Timms handled it.

And that same philosophy has more or less permeated his long years of public service.

Timms' former colleagues and the public at large are going to miss him on the council. He did his homework, studied the issues and didn't hesitate to take a stand.

We need more like him.

WHAT KIND of a winter are we going to have?

Check with me in April. In December I thought we were in for a repeat of 1985-'86 when we hardly had winter at all.

However, the first week of January was a real barn-burner, so to speak, with zero temperatures, snow and lots of wind.

Furthermore, Lake Charlevoix froze almost on schedule over the weekend and there was even ice on Round Lake Saturday morning, with floes bobbing up and down in Pine River Channel.

Everytime I look at the TV weather channel, however, I am encouraged to see the Jet Stream swooping down from the Northwest over Kentucky before it swoops back north toward New England. If storms follow the Jet Stream, much of the nation's yearly allocation of snow should fall on Dixie rather than Northern Michigan.

Cold weather is something else.

What we need is a high wall the length of Minnesota's northern border and along the Upper Peninsula's Lake Superior shore to keep the chill winds in Canada.

However, Lake Michigan was unusually warm this summer, and we won't get many sub-zero days until the lake freezes. With any luck, it won't freeze and we'll be home free.

Tennis, anyone?

ISN'T IT NICE to have the skating rink back at the Middle School?

I haven't tried it yet, but I did get my skates sharpened, so I'll be out there some night soon.

What I like about the Middle School site is that it is protected from the wind by the Lake Michigan bluff, the school building and nearby houses. The climate is almost comfortable.

The high school location wasn't bad, but it was a bit drafty. The Ferry Beach parking lot rink was terrible. Not only did you have to fight winds off Lake Charlevoix but you had to skate uphill half the time, since the parking lot slopes toward the lake.

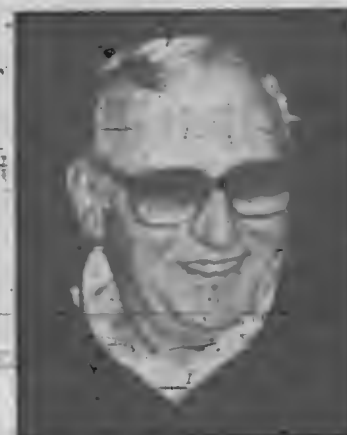

At least the Middle School rink is level — and that's half the battle.

County gathering law upsets Castle owner, may lead to suit

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Gathering Ordinance adopted by the county board of commissioners in November may be in for trouble even before it goes into effect.

After the ordinance was approved by the commissioners, it was sent to Lansing for the signature of Gov. James Blanchard, a required procedure before it can become law.

The ordinance with the governor's signature has not yet been returned to the county, but last week it became evident the ordinance would not go into effect un-noticed.

Arthur Reibel, owner of The Castle, home of rock and other musical concerts for the past several years, appeared at the county board meeting last week to tell its members, "If this ordinance is signed by the governor and you try to enforce it, I will have no alternative but to become involved, to litigate."

Reibel said he was simply reiterating what he had said in an earlier letter to the board of commissioners.

"Your proposed ordinance is unconstitutional because it excludes government and tax-exempt properties," he told the commissioners. "Everybody should have to comply with a law. You need professional help."

The Gathering Ordinance was prepared by County Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman at the request of the county board after a three-year campaign by the Charlevoix County Chapter of the Michigan Townships Association.

Township officials have long felt they cannot handle the ramifications of large gatherings with which they have been threatened from time to time. The Castle is located in Marion Township.

The County Gathering Ordinance, as written, covers outdoor gatherings of 2,000 or more people who pay to enter "a permanently enclosed or covered structure for an event not sponsored by a government or tax-exempt agency."

The ordinance was designed to "permit, license, regulate, and control in the interest of public health, safety and welfare" gatherings.

Reibel told county commissioners he and his production company have spent much time and money in recent years upgrading the physical plant at The Castle, as well as changing the type of music to attract a more diversified audience.

He also said professionally trained ushers and security people have been hired for the protection of both concert-goers and the general public.

County board chairman Larry Matthew thanked Reibel for appearing before the board, which took no action.

Island's newest home

This is Beaver Island's newest house, which arrived on a barge from Holland after a 294-mile trip up Lake Michigan. Now, because of ice forming in St. James harbor, the barge and tug may be at the island for awhile, too.

3 city panelists led Miles to WATCH for lawsuit aid

Suggestions by three city panel members prompted David Miles to contact WATCH Inc. about fighting condo construction on Park Avenue. Miles, with the environmental group's financial backing, is suing the city and developer.

The three — Norm Probert, Barbara Fels and Larry Sullivan — are members of boards involved in the months' long dispute over the condominium or hotel being put up by Northern Michigan Realty Services Inc.

None of the three suggested to him that WATCH (Water and Air Team for Charlevoix) might consider suing the city, Miles said in a Dec. 18 deposition in his lawsuit.

They only suggested WATCH may be able to give him advice, he said.

Miles is suing the city and developer over several alleged irregularities in the approval of an 11-unit condominium building on Park Avenue. His suit also requests that a city decision allowing a hotel on the site, at 105 and 107 Park, be thrown out. Miles lives at 109 Park.

A show cause hearing scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 12, in circuit court has been postponed. At an earlier hearing, Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas took under advisement arguments by the defendants that several portions were filed too late, under state law, to be considered.

Mayor Ralph McRae is attempting to get the various parties in the lawsuit to agree to mediation to resolve their differences.

McRae said the city and developer have agreed to discuss mediation, but WATCH has not. He is writing to WATCH board members to try to convince them to change their minds.

"I'm trying to prevent a very costly and lengthy litigation," McRae said.

Probert is a city council member, who told the Courier participation on an ad hoc committee forming possible revisions in lakeshore zoning regulations led to initial contact with Miles and his mother.

When one proposal taking form appeared to affect only the Miles' property, Probert said, he thought it was appropriate to inform them and went to their house. He later talked with Miles two other times, Probert said.

Fels is a member of the city planning commission and Sullivan is a member of the city zoning board of appeals. Both are employees of the county planning department.

Miles said he went to their office seeking information when he was starting his challenge of the project.

Fels and Sullivan told the Courier they gave Miles the same type of information they would give anyone approaching their office for assistance or information.

Miles, in his deposition, says none of the three said WATCH would be interested in filing a lawsuit. "Legal help, legal advice, but not the word lawsuit," he said in response to a question from Dan Barron, attorney for Northern Michigan Realty Services.

Sullivan said he knew WATCH was interested in the construction project and told Miles he might want to contact the organization.

Miles said in his deposition he has not had any discussions with WATCH concerning payment of lawyer Ward Kuhn. Kuhn, the WATCH attorney, is representing Miles.

He said WATCH president Jerry Puhl told him in a telephone conversation that the organization might consider providing financial assistance in a lawsuit. But no further talks were held.

"As far as I know, WATCH is paying Mr. Kuhn," he said.

He told Barron he would have filed the lawsuit even if WATCH were not paying.

Puhl told the Courier in November the organization would be paying Miles' legal fees as long as the case remained a zoning dispute.

LIBRARY LIMBERING

Silence isn't golden in the basement of the library on Saturday mornings. A program of exercise and health education is being conducted for kindergarten through fifth grade students by Candy Smith of Vital Options. At left, a youngster draws the outline of another on paper. As the program goes on, students will learn about various body parts and add them to their drawings. The free activity began Saturday and continues for five more weeks.

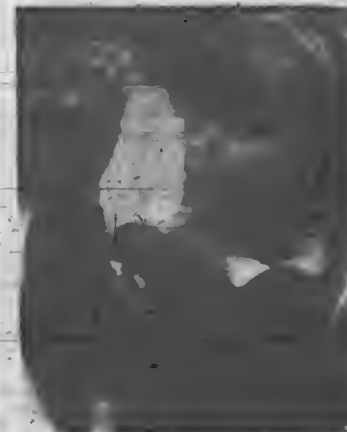

Youngster: "This is a sweatsuit."

Instructor: "Are you sweating yet?"

"Yes."

"Good, then we're doing the right thing."

WATCH essays could lead to scholarship

Applications are being accepted for the 1988 WATCH Inc. scholarship program.

All senior high school students in Charlevoix County are invited to compete.

The 1,000 words or less typewritten essays will discuss the topic "Wetlands in Charlevoix County: Uses, Conflicts and Solutions."

Entry essays may treat ideas on pollution, future use and abuse, land development, recreation, wetlands preservation and greenbelts, as well as other factors affecting the area.

We expect a larger turnout from all five Charlevoix County area schools than last year due to the nature of this important environmental topic. Our hope is to encourage students to be aware of conservation issues which affect their hometown. "Environmental education is the key," said Michelle Rick-Biddick, WATCH executive administrator.

Scholarship awards will be one $1,000 scholarship and two $500 scholarships gifts.

These awards will be applied to higher education at a college, university or vocational school of the student's choice.

Scholarship recipients will be notified within a few weeks following the entry deadline. All essays became the property of WATCH Inc. Details of the awards presentation will be announced.

Applications may be obtained from a high school guidance counselor or by writing WATCH, Inc., P.O. Box 615, Charlevoix 49720.

Applications are due before Feb. 5. The typewritten essays must be postmarked no later than March 4.

35 attending leadership session

Students from the 11 high schools in the Char-Em Intermediate School District will gather at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey Tuesday, Jan. 18, for the annual Student Leadership Forum. The forum is sponsored by Char-Em.

Representatives from the participating schools have been meeting since October to plan the forum which is designed to strengthen relationships between school, home, community and state Department of Education.

Charlevoix has been represented on the planning committee by Lori Jinsky, a senior on the committee for the second year, and Mike Stargardt, a junior and first-year representative.

Jinsky said approximately 35 students will represent Charlevoix at the forum. These students have been recommended by principals, teachers and students for leadership qualities, she said. Numbers are based on school enrollment.

Two keynote speakers will share the podium: Peter Button, educational consultant on technical assistance, Michigan Department of Education, and Duane Taylor, counselor at Petoskey High School.

Speakers at informational seminars will be Charles Bentley, Charlevoix High School counselor; Kathleen McNamara, Beaver Island Community School principal; Mary Biagini, teacher coordinator, Char-Em for School Age Parents program; Duane Taylor, Petoskey High School counselor; a panel of Harbor Spring students, Bobb Otus, Annemarie Salen, and Molly Baker representing Michigan Teen Institute; Michael McGinnity, Beaver Island youth activities director and nurse practitioner; Gary Cass, director of state Student Division and Leadership Forums, Michigan Department of Education; and James Wood, Harbor Springs Middle School principal.

Discussion groups attended only by students will gather recommendations for schools and the state Department of Education.

Freshmen representing Charlevoix High will be: Julie Bush, Sandy Fershee, Heather Keller, Jason Parrish, Stacey Skeel and Matt Stargardt. Sophomores are Chad DeYoung, Chrissy Dillon, Chris Felton, Tammy Felton, Webb Friedly, Tim Henne, Ryan Holmes, Michelle Jacobs, Tim Jervis, Scott Miller and Tricia Sutton.

BEACONS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Last Friday marked the birthday of the oldest member of our congregation. Mrs. Harriet Towdley turned 103 years old. It is an amazing blessing just to think about.

Grover Cleveland was about to be inaugurated for his first term the year she was born. We've had 40 presidents in our country's history and she's lived under 109 of them. The motor car was just a fantasy back then. You could get bread for two cents and milk for a nickel.

Sister Harriet will tell you that she has seen a lot of changes over the years. But she also will tell you that there is one thing that hasn't changed, the faithfulness of God.

Her life is an amazing journey of faith. But, my friend, so is yours. Take a moment as you read this and do a little inventory of the different ways God has shown Himself in your life. Were you in the service? How about in combat? Do you remember the gunfire whizzing by your head? God was there.

How did you and your spouse meet? You know how special the love you have for each other is. God was there.

What made you choose the career you're in? Didn't it feel great the day you began your job, the one you really wanted, for the first time? God was there. I still haven't gotten used to the way the wind can blow around here. There are some nights when it rattles the walls and windows so much that it's kind of scary. But there are other days where that very same wind whistles through the wires or the branches of a tree and I hear music.

There are days were trudging through the snow can be a wet, sloppy experience. Then there is that sunny, cold, crisp day where every step sounds like a drummer beating out cadence and challenging me to do more than ever before.

But perhaps my favorite winter happening is along the Lake Michigan shore. The ice is beginning to build up there. Watching it freeze and the waves splash over the frozen parts and freeze some more, it kind of reminds of a child playing with Playdough. I mean, after all, who's to say that God doesn't like to have a little fun?

God is here. He is here to guide you. He is here to reassure you. He is here for every step of your life to show you just how amazing of a journey it can really be.

I don't know if any of us will live to be 103. But I do know that however long we live, it makes all the difference in the world to know God and to have Him as your friend.

Missionary to Philippines will speak at area church

Baptist church showing film

First Baptist Church of Charlevoix will present the adventure film, "Cry from the Mountain," a story set in Alaska, at the church Sunday, Jan. 17, at 7 p.m.

The story centers around the troubled Sanders family, and includes Billy Graham as himself with a message.

The program is open to the public. An offering will be taken following the program.

County has biggest construction year

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection had its biggest-ever year in 1987, when it issued 657 permits for $17,464,559 worth of construction. Fees for this construction work added $64,784 to the county's coffers.

The department also issued 543 electrical permits, 278 plumbing permits, 427 mechanical permits, and 146 soil erosion permits. Fees for this additional work brought in an additional $63,657.

The largest number of permits, 93, was issued for construction in the City of Charlevoix, mostly for condominium units. (Each condominium unit is counted as one permit.)

The second largest number, 67, was issued for construction in Boyne City, where condominium development was also a factor.

Eveline Township led all non-city areas, with 65 construction permits issued, followed closely by Hayes Township, with 62 permits.

Other political units and the number of construction permits issued in each were: Charlevoix Township, 48; Melfosse Township, 43; Bay Township, 39; City of East Jordan, 34; South Arm Township, 32;

Marion Township, 31; Wilson Township, 29; Evangeline Township, 28; Boyne Valley Township, 27; Norwood Township, 20; Hudson Township, 12; St. James Township, nine; Peaine Township, eight; Boyne Falls, six; and Chandler Township, three.

The department began operation in 1975. That year, 483 construction permits were issued, followed by 649 in 1976 and 677 in 1977.

The following year, 1978, was the highest year in construction costs until this past year. That year, Medusa Cement Co. completed an addition to its plant at a cost of $6,700,000, which brought the year's cost of construction in the county, covered by 673 permits, up to $15,247,635.

In the last several years, the number of permits and construction costs see-sawed, representing economic ups and downs.

In 1979, the department issued 699 permits for $10,867,335 worth of construction; in 1980, 579 permits for $10,751,844; in 1981, 500 permits for $8,742,508; in 1982, 446 for $7,744,485; in 1983, 493 for $8,668,284; in 1984, 520 for $9,295,261; in 1985, 561 for $13,456,021; and in 1986, 584 for $15,377,748.

New name, owner for grocery

Charlevoix Northside Grocery is the new name of the former IGA store.

The store is now being operated by Charlevoix County State Bank.

Former owners Jack and Lois Schmidt informed employees and customers last week that they would be "terminating our ownership."

The Schmidts purchased the store from Dick and Louis Edwards. Dick Edwards had operated the store at the Petoskey Avenue location since 1947.

Crop program sign-up underway

The sign-up period for Emmet and Charlevoix counties Agricultural Conservation Program is open for conservation practices that can be completed this spring.

Farmers faced with severe soil erosion problems may apply for the program until March 31. The program provides technical and financial assistance to help farmers solve severe soil, water and pollution problems.

"Cost-share funds are used to correct conservation problems on a farm beyond that which would be accomplished with farmers' own resources," county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service official Elaine Richardson said.

The following conservation practices are available: permanent vegetative cover establishment and improvement, strip-cropping, diversions, grazing land protection, windbreaks, cover crops, critical area cover, reduced and no-till systems, water impoundment reservoirs, erosion or water control structures, stream protection, animal waste facilities, tree planting and timber stand improvement.

REFLECTIONS

In old shanty town

I was checking on ice conditions on Lake Charlevoix last week, which brought to mind the days when the lake, undisturbed by marine traffic, froze over early and stayed that way until March.

It's hard to believe now but there was a day when even Round Lake would be iced over and early in the year the first fish shanties would make their appearance. By late January there would be a tar-paper village on the lake.

Of course, that was in the days when the Coast Guard station was located on the Pine River Channel; when a cutter such as the Mesquite made Charlevoix a port of call during buoy season and before lake freighters transported coal to the power plant on Lake Charlevoix because the plant at Advance hadn't been thought of yet.

The old lightships would come in after navigation closed Dec. 12 or 15 and possibly a fish tug or two would make a late haul. That would end navigation on Round Lake which would then be given an opportunity to freeze over when the weather got down to freezing.

The water wasn't as polluted as it is now and froze more readily. The winters were colder then, also.

The lake would freeze over except toward the north where the current kept the water moving. Sometimes even that section of the lake would freeze and a few daring lads would skate or walk across the lake. Few took that chance, however.

There are ice fishermen around now but in those days it seemed everyone fished through the ice. Perch was the big thing then, as I remember it. Those fishing for trout and white fish would venture out on the big lake and fish without benefit of a shanty much as today's fishermen.

When the days warmed up and the ice started to melt, the tar-paper village would start to disappear as cautious souls pulled their shanties from the ice which had once supported neighbor onto a hundred shanties.

However, there were those who had to have a few more days of fishing. All too many of those shanties never made it from the ice, especially when a brisk wind blew in off Lake Michigan at the end of a comparatively warm day.

It's a good thing that the lake's as deep as it is or there'd be stove pipes from sunken shanties becoming hazards to navigation!

However, with the open winters, the Coast Guard station now located on the upper channel, the Mesquite homeported here and the fish tugs coming and going, the village on ice will remain just a memory.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Stocking up on wood for the winter is a chore that has found its way back into the lives of many northern Michigan residents. In this undated photo, Harold Bedford prepares for cold weather. The building in the background is probably the Argo Mill.

That leaves only $170,000 of the $700,000 needed to close the deal and turn the land over to Charlevoix Township as a park.

The site is right next to the city's Mount McSaubia recreation area.

"With the kind of support we have from business, industry and individuals in the Charlevoix area, I'm sure we'll make it. The people really want North Point dedicated as public land," said Tom Bailey, executive director of the conservation, after approval of the grant.

Bay Township told 'maybe'

But that's been the history of the township's request.

The idea of a township park grew out of a discussion between township trustee Bill Ohle and county youth activities director Mike Davis. They and township supervisor Carl Skornia carried on the fight — until Skornia died during a December public hearing on a wetlands permit for the site.

The first application to what was then the Kammer Recreational Land Trust Fund was made in 1984. Objections to the plan by the Walloon Lake Association put the application on hold.

The next year, the owners of the property tried to speed things along by letting the Department of Natural Resources know how interested they were in having the project proceed. Their communication filtered into the hands of the DNR's waterways division.

Waterways decided the site would be a perfect spot for a boat launch, and the dispute between the township and DNR division pushed the request off the funding list for another year.

Once that disagreement was resolved, the township tried again in 1986 — only to be told it hadn't adequately resolved the problem of the property being wetlands.

With that process underway, application was made for the fourth time. That's when the court judgment surfaced.

In 1979, the property owners were sued by the Walloon Lake Association for trying to use the property as lake access for the Walloon View Brae Property Club, which is adjacent to it.

As part of the agreement, the owners and association agreed to several restrictions on the recreational use of the land.

Among these were that no more than 35 people could use the site at one time and no more than five cars could be parked there.

When Davis got to work Monday, Jan. 4, he had two pieces of mail waiting for him.

The first, from the executive secretary of the Natural Resources Trust Fund, said the consent judgment prevented the state from funding the project.

The other, from county prosecutor Kraag Lieberman, said the judgment is soundly rooted and would apply to any future owners, such as the township.

Through a series of phone calls to the trust fund, wetlands division and legislators' offices, Davis was able to get the township back on the funding list — if the wetlands permit is approved.

But to get the permit approved, the consent judgment has to be removed. And Davis says he has no idea at this time how to do that.

But, he hopes, maybe there's a way. Maybe.

Ferry Beach grant rejected

In the end, though, the project — reduced in scope to $499,000 — was not on the final list for development funds.

Most of the communities — including Charlevoix — also applied under the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund.

But the state has just received word that only $600,000 will be available in that fund this year, said Department of Natural Resources grant coordinator Deborah Apostol.

The applications not granted funding through the state program will be re-graded and re-ranked later this month under the federal program, she said.

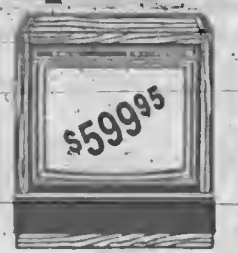

The Charlevoix County Department of Social Services is coordinating registrations for adult home-help services providers. Services are for the elderly and the handicapped and include meal preparation, shopping, laundry, housecleaning, yard work, or live-in personal care. Help is needed in all areas of the county. Time required varies from a couple hours per week to 24 hours per day. Providers are paid $3.35 per hour or a maximum of $333.00 per month by the clients. If you are interested in providing any of these services, please call the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, 547-4471.

Coast Guard units await word on cuts

Charlevoix's two Coast Guard units have been told to wait "a few more days" before they find out how drastic budget cuts may affect them.

At present, the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite and the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station are not on the preliminary list of cuts made necessary by a $100 million budget trimming, according to the office of U.S. Rep. Robert Davis.

The northern Michigan congressman is a member of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

On the list, however, are decommissioning of the icebreaker Mackinaw stationed at Cheboygan and closing of the Marquette Coast Guard Station.

Lt. Cmdr. Thomas Conlan, commanding officer of the Mesquite, and Chief Mark Simmons, commander of the station, received a directive Jan. 10 to "avoid any expendi-

Parking to remain on Bridge

Major revisions in Bridge Street traffic flow have been rejected by city council.

Instead, the council has directed the city manager to implement minor remedies by this summer and to try to convince the Coast Guard to change bridge opening hours.

Also, council members would like to see a traffic officer placed at the Bridge-Clinton street intersection during the summer. The possibility of altering Bridge Street traffic arose during the fall when the city received a state highway department study it had requested.

The highway department recommended eliminating parking on both sides of the downtown street and make the road a three-lane thoroughfare with a center turn lane.

This brought an immediate negative cry from downtown merchants. And that denunciation continued at a Monday public hearing on the study.

Nine business operators spoke against elimination of parking. There were two other speakers — one favoring one-way northbound traffic on Bridge and one-way southbound on State and the other favoring the Clinton traffic director.

No one spoke in favor of the highway department plan, prompting Jim Withers to ask: "If there are a lot of people who want to take the cars off downtown streets, where are they?"

Neither any of the six council members nor the mayor had much to say for the no-parking alternatives either. The highway department study included other three-lane and four-lane options, too.

Several council members suggested using a Downtown Development Authority list of possible traffic flow alterations as a basis for change.

The DDA originally asked for the state study so it would have a better idea how to proceed with a planned sidewalk replacement project. When it saw the state recommendations, it drew up its own list of minor changes.

- Among these are:
- No left turn at the Beaver Island dock for southbound traffic;
  - Northbound left turn lane onto Pine River Lane;
  - Southbound right lane must turn right at Park;
  - Northbound left turn lane onto Mason;

Downtown sidewalk work delayed

Plans to reconstruct deteriorating downtown sidewalks this year have hit a rough spot. There's not enough money.

Projects and payments the Downtown Development Authority is already committed to this year will wipe out over two-thirds of the $250,000 budget.

The sidewalk program — just for Bridge Street and side streets to the alley west of Bridge — is estimated to cost $362,000.

And City Manager Mike

Wiesner is afraid that might be a low estimate. Complicating the work, he says, is the presence of rooms extending under the sidewalk at several businesses.

These rooms often were formerly used for deliveries, with merchandise lowered through trap doors in the sidewalk.

It is not known how much shoring up some of these rooms might need to withstand the construction work above them, Wiesner says.

In giving preliminary approval to their 1988 budget, authority members did OK engineering work on the sidewalk project.

The city staff will also look into the possibility of doing some of the sidewalk work if feasible.

Wiesner says he wants to get with the state highway department to determine if repaving of the federal highway could be coordinated with the city project.

The sidewalk reconstruction includes re-doing curbs and gut-

Ahead-lines

Bridge Park's future

The future of Bridge Park could be discussed at the Monday, Jan. 25, city council meeting. Council meets at 7 p.m. in City Hall.

Landscape designer Pat Jackson volunteered to come up with a design concept for the park during debate over a plan to install a walkway along one end.

City Manager Mike Wiesner says he and city planner Gerry Harsch hope to look over Jackson's ideas before they are presented to council. He thinks Jackson will be ready by the Jan. 25 council work session.

The walkway has been proposed by Charlevoix Development Co. (Dick Georgi and Arch Wright) along the side of the Burnside building. With a plaza-like walk, they say, they could convert the building into five shops facing the park.

The Downtown Development Authority has endorsed the concept, but the council has mixed reactions. No council action has been taken on the proposal.

At the same meeting, council members and the public will probably get an opportunity to see a scale model of the proposal made by Charlevoix Development's architect.

The model shows how the 29-foot-wide walk — with spiral ramp, seating areas and park terracing — would fit into the present park.

School tax vote coming in March?

Charlevoix schools may hold a millage election in March.

Present millage will not allow the district to maintain present programs, the school board was told by Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren and Vincent Olach, business manager.

During 1987 the school district did not receive $198,000 that went to the city Downtown Development Authority and Tax Increment Financing Authority funds under an agreement the district signed.

With new construction in the areas covered by special funds the loss will mount to an estimated $300,000 for 1988, Olach said.

Olach said medical benefits increased 22.5 percent last year and can be expected to increase another 10 to 15 percent this year.

Added to that, he said, a large majority of teachers are edging toward top pay scales.

Auditors advised last fall that the district's low fund equity be increased.

Olach was asked by the board to return to a later meeting with additional information relating to budget needs and with any options the board might have.

The issue will be returned to the board for a decision early in February.

Olach also told the board sites will have to be purchased for building trades houses if the program is to continue.

The board asked for a survey of potential students in the program in Charlevoix and Petoskey high schools before a decision is made.

In other action VanWieren said AIDS instruction in schools has been mandated by the state. Charlevoix already has a program that meets state guidelines, he said.

David J. Smith, high school principal, outlined proposed alcohol breath detector program for the high school. He will return at the Feb. 15 meeting with a final presentation.

AROUND THE TOWN

Charlevoix is getting involved in efforts to influence the eventual path of the U.S. 131 freeway in northwest Michigan.... Mike Greeley of Wharfside Market will be the chamber of commerce representative — in cooperation with the city — to the U.S. 131 Association....

Right now, it appears the freeway will stretch from Cadillac to Kalkaska sometime in the 1990s, if everything goes as planned.... But where it goes from there has raised a ruckus, with mid-staters wanting the highway to cut toward Grayling and Petoskey merchants wanting it to head toward the straits....

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has taken the position that the freeway should continue as far west and north as possible but swing around the eastern side of Lake Charlevoix.... This approach would help vacationers from Chicago or Grand Rapids get here but would not funnel more traffic through downtown Charlevoix.

The water level of Lakes Michigan and Charlevoix at the end of December was about 21 inches below what it was one year ago but about one inch above one month ago.... The Army Corps of Engineers says the December monthly-mean level was about 11 inches above the long-term average and about 23 inches below the all-time high set in 1966....

The six-month forecast expects water to remain above the long-term average but still dropping.... By the end of January, lake levels will be about one inch below what they were at the end of December.... At the end of June, the lakes are expected to be about seven inches below where they were at the same time in 1987....

Edgewater Inn is featured in the latest issue of AAA-Michigan's member magazine.... Edgewater is one of four hotels singled out in an article on "what's new at Michigan's hotels and motels...."

Says the article of Charlevoix: "Long a vacation center in northern Michigan, with its sandy beaches, golf courses, boating facilities, quaint shops and scenic inland lakes...."

Nighttime skating has proven a popular pastime at the city rink beside the middle school. With the warming house and portable restroom nearby, the rink has attracted big crowds, even on near-zero nights.

Fifth graders write about fighting drunk drivers

Charlevoix Elementary fifth graders have been studying and discussing alcohol and drug abuse for the past four months with counselor Gayle Gennett. They have sent 57 letters to the editor expressing their concerns to the Courier and will be gathered Thursday, Jan. 21, for a ceremony during which they will wear red lapel ribbons showing their support for Mothers Against Drunk Drivers and Students Against Drunk Drivers. Here are a letter from the fifth grade class and a sampling of the individual letters.

Editor,
Our fifth grade class has been learning about alcohol and drugs. We're concerned about the number of deaths caused by this. We hope that more people get counseling.

Sincerely,
Our Fifth Grade Class

Thousands of people die from drinking and driving every year. 64,000 more are injured by drunk drivers, the majority of them are kids.

The whole grade agrees that drinking is stupid. So on January 21, 1988, we are wearing red ribbons to show that we care.

I hope that someday we will rid ourselves of drugs and alcohol forever.

Mark Schairbaum

Every year 24,000 people are killed. A lot of the people are teenagers. I think that the law on drunk driving and drugs should be more stronger. I wish more people would think before they drink and drive. The fifth grade classes are going to wear a ribbon all day Jan. 21 to show for S.A.D.D. and M.A.D.D.

Tabatha Potter

Our fifth grade class has been studying about drugs and alcohol for four months.

I'm concerned about how many people and kids are injured and killed each year.

I would like to have Charlevoix stop drinking alcohol while driving.

The fifth grade class will be wearing red ribbons to support S.A.D.D. and M.A.D.D.

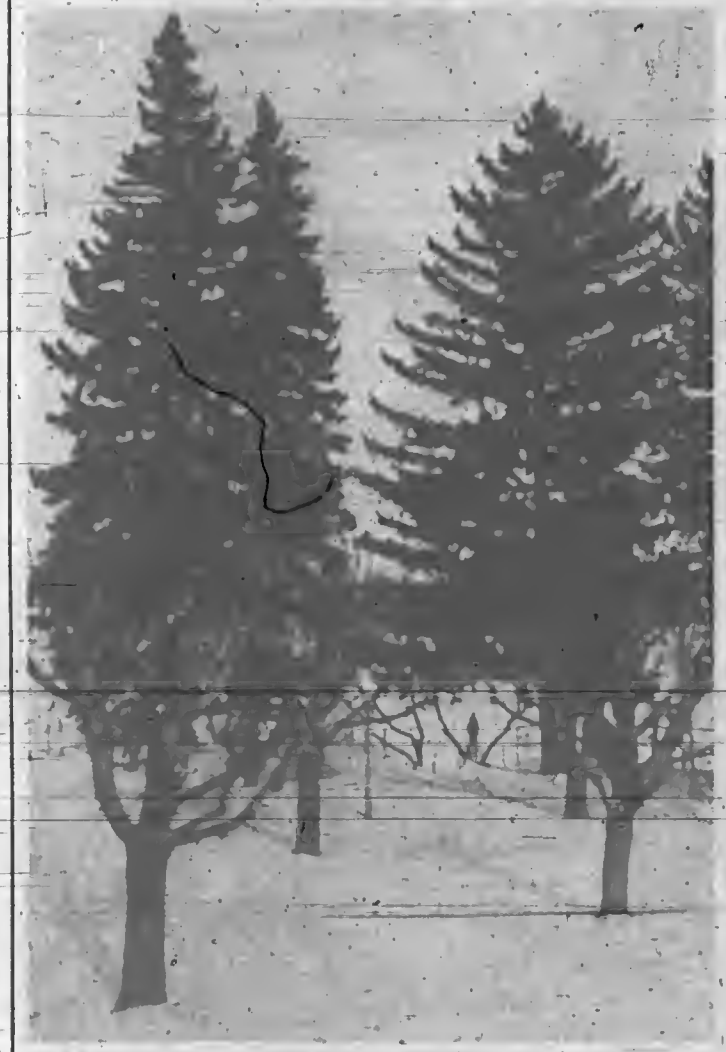

Bridget Drayton

We are studying drug and alcohol abuse in the fifth grade. We are concerned about drunk drivers hitting people in their cars. When I am on my paper route I am scared they will hit me.

On January 21 we will be supporting S.A.D.D. and M.A.D.D. by wearing red ribbons.

Food pantry says thanks

Editor:

May we please speak to our good friends and neighbors through you?

Thanks to the generosity of all you very special Charlevoixans, the Community Food Pantry Advisory Board was able to bring some Christmas cheer in a tangible way to 160 households in our area this year. Four hundred twenty-eight people, including 167 children, received the components of a Christmas dinner with all the trimmings, plus many extra items of food and other household supplies, as well as gifts for all the children and a number of senior citizens. In addition, each of them received mittens and caps or scarves.

One hundred eleven volunteers from all the churches in Charlevoix and the community at large helped to carry out the project in some manner.

$1,945 in cash was contributed in addition to hundreds of items of food and household supplies, gifts, mittens, caps, scarves, candy, tooth paste (to be used in that order!) and stuffed animals. (What a delightful zoo we had!) The Rainbow Shoppe paid the bill of $731 for the food.

Since the project was finished, several more donations of money have been received, which will give us a fine start for next year, enabling us to buy

Because the number of individual donors is so long, we cannot list them here, but we know who you all are, and we thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

In addition to these individuals and all the church organizations including the Ministerial Association to whom we are indebted, we wish to thank the following community organizations and businesses: both Lions Clubs, Kiwanis Club, Knights of Columbus, Charlevoix Masonic Lodge, Barnard Grange, American Legion Auxiliary, VFW Auxiliary, Salvation Army Charlevoix Service Unit, Charlevoix Middle School, Mrs. Raecke's third graders, Northern Michigan

Cable TV, Kit Carson Lumber Co., Rainbow Shoppe and Glen's Market who in addition to contributing the proceeds, gave a lot of kids, young and not so young, the fun of sitting on Santa's lap for a picture.

Also we want to thank all of you who indirectly gave the beautiful Disney character Santa Claus through the cable TV company.

Thank you, one and all, for your kindness. May the Lord bless you and keep you through the new year.

P.S. This is a good time to thank the hundreds of you who continue to support the food pantry throughout the year. Without you, we would have to close shop several months each year.

Making Free Press profitable

You probably are as weary as I am of hearing the plaintive bleats from The Detroit Free Press which, like a lamb headed for the slaughterhouse, is afraid it will not be able to survive unless the federal government allows it to join forces with The Detroit News.

Both newspapers have asked permission to enter a so-called "Joint Operating Agreement" (JOA) which will allow them to cooperate on certain phases of the newspaper publishing business so that each will post a handsome profit—or at least a profit.

The JOA was turned down by a Justice Department administrative law judge in December, but the final decision is still up to Attorney General Edwin Meese.

The publishers of both newspapers claim that Detroit will still be served by two newspapers with separate editorial policies—a fiction that no one actually believes.

If the Free Press and News link arms financially, they will no longer speak with independent voices, at least in the public mind. Oh, they'll play the devil's advocate for one another from time to time, but it won't be the same.

I, for one, have always favored the Free Press' approach to local, state, national and world problems. It is fun to watch the Free Press editorial page lunge from its kennel every morning—a real pit bull terrier, snarling and snapping at the world's fat cats.

It wouldn't be that way if the News has anything to say about it.

I find it hard to believe that the Free Press has lost millions of dollars over the past several years—an era when new technology should have reduced the cost of publication. If the Free Press is losing money, why hasn't someone done something about it sooner?

Furthermore, the News claims it also has lost substantial amounts of money—but not as much as the Free Press.

Can two failing newspapers make one going concern? I doubt it.

Of course, both the Free Press and the News could stay in business, make money and remain independent if they really wanted to.

When was the last time the newspapers did some hard bargaining with their many labor unions? Neither has been in or even near a strike situation for years.

And if things are as tough as the publishers claim, why not try for concessions from the local unions? Guild members, for example, are extremely well paid compared to non-Guild reporters. Most of them could take a modest reduction in pay and still have dinner at the London Chop House a couple times a year.

Of course there are other economies that should be looked into. For example, have the papers investigated the possibility of establishing a separate, independent news service similar to United Press or Associated Press to handle routine city news—police, courts, city hall—as has been done in Chicago for many years?

Or have they looked into establishing a separate, independent printing company for the two papers, which would contract with the company for press time.

Or what about establishing a separate, independent company to handle circulation? Why have two trucks on the road when one larger truck could provide the same service?

And why don't they start charging what the two papers are worth? Twenty cents is pin money today. And the Sunday paper is worth at least the price of a pack of cigarettes.

Arts center looking for part-time puppeteer

EXPERT HELP WANTED—If I knew how to explain and demonstrate the making and manipulation of puppets, I wouldn't need to ask. Starting Feb. 1, the Canadian show, "Puppets From Around the World" will be exhibited for one month at McCune Community Arts Center.

What is needed is a knowledgeable person to do the "hands-on" program every Monday for the benefit of the local area school children, who are given a conducted tour by the docents to the puppet exhibit.

After the tour, the children create their own impressions of what they've seen by making puppets and putting on a show. If you know of a puppeteer or someone who is informed about puppets, please call 347-4337 Tuesday through Friday and leave your name. Your call will be returned by Ann Ford.

ANOTHER CHARLEVOIX SWEATSHIRT—If you had one guess where Mary Lou Campbell saw a Charlevoix sweatshirt, where would you guess? Of course at the Rose Bowl game! We all heard that this was the largest alumni turnout in history—30,000 Michiganders rooting for Michigan State.

But did you know we had several very representative Charlevoix groups in attendance, including the John Campbells, the Ed Budays, the Dennis Wojans, the Don Smiths; also

EDITH GILBERT

Mike Bonello, Chris and Tom Curtin, Mark Beaudoin, Keith Bales, Debbie and Steve Huford. (Here's hoping I haven't omitted someone!) Lenore Erber Thornton, now from New York, was also sighted at the game.

Sam Supernaw wore his Charlevoix hat most of the time. Mary Lou and he stayed at brother Scott Supernaw's who hosted 11 house guests in his spacious home, including nephew Jon Supernaw and friend Matt Lignell.

Sam reports there was more GREEN in California, stretching all the way from Malibu to Rodeo Drive, than has ever been seen before out there. Most Charlevoixans got up at 4 a.m. to watch the Rose Bowl parade to boot. I hope you saw it on TV. If not, Bruce MacArthur has it on tape, but don't tell him I told you.

Heath Green of Charlevoix, a Marine at the Philippines' Subic Bay base, wears a Charlevoix sweatshirt sporting the Courier's front page logo type style and sailboat.

VACATION PROPERTIES NETWORK — CHARLEVOIX WELCOMES DICK and HELEN DILLON

Helen and Dick Dillon recently moved to the Charlevoix area. Helen has been spending her summers here since childhood. For the past two and a half years, the Dillons have lived on a sailboat cruising the Eastern United States, the Great Lakes and the Bahamas. Dick graduated from Michigan State University and is retired from I.B.M. Helen, a former teacher, is a graduate of Oakland University. Besides sailing, they both enjoy cross-country skiing, reading and cooking. They attend St. Mary's Catholic Church and plan to become active in the community.

Trout tournament aims to keep emphasis on fun for family

Promoters of the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament are trying to keep the event from becoming too large.

Rules changes will be instituted this year to ensure the event remains a "family fun time," says chairman Jim Withers.

Withers says the directors do not want the tournament to become too attractive to professional fishermen, so they are intentionally keeping single prizes low.

While there will be at least $30,000 in cash and prizes, Withers says, the top prize will remain $2,000.

Higher awards bring in professionals and take away some of the fun for sport and amateur fishermen, he says.

"You don't have to have a big boat and lots of equipment and lots of knowledge about fishing," Withers says. "You just have to know how to have a good time."

Main events will remain as in past years: fishing in several categories, children's fish pond run by Charlevoix Jaycees, a tagged fish worth $3,000 if caught.

The tournament is being moved back three weeks this year — to Friday-Sunday, June 10-12 — to try to improve the catch.

And a record turn-out is expected for the fourth annual event. Last year's tourney drew 666 entrants, up from 400 in 1986 and 300 the first year.

Withers is expecting about 750 entries this year. He says about 30 percent of the participants come from more than 50 miles away to fish.

The non-profit group receives excellent community support, he says, and has been able to put money back in the community.

From last year's tourney, he says, $2,500 was pledged to the city's Ferry Beach project, $500 was donated to the Northwest Michigan Walleye Association and $500 was given to the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, which handles registration.

Besides registration fees, the tourney makes money off its boat drawing and off a benefit dinner.

The drawing for the 19- to 20-foot boat will be held on Saturday, June 11, during the tournament.

The annual dinner will be held Saturday, April 23, at the American Legion Hall. The 200 tickets for the family-style dinner will be available for $25 per couple at Julleret's Restaurant, Withers says.

Area merchants have donated $5,000 for the dinner. The high school performing arts team will serve the meal and perform as a fund-raiser for their activities.

Other directors of the tourney are vice chairman Don Swartz, secretary-treasurer Sherry Withers, Dave Julleret, Bill Tache, Gary Spencer and Jerry Rakoczy, who is new to the board this year.

Aid for firefighters

Firefighter Doug Bergmann (right) and Charlevoix County State Bank president Gordon Wellman look over equipment the bank has given the volunteer firemen for their aid at three Charlevoix County Industrial Fairs. The inflatable pads are capable of lifting huge weights in short times. The largest pad, purchased following last fall's fair, can lift 74 tons up to 20 inches in just over a minute.

4 juniors going to state debate meet

The high school debate team has qualified for state Class C competition to be held in Ann Arbor Friday and Saturday, Feb. 5 and 6.

The Charlevoix team, composed of four juniors, placed second in competition at Ithaca last week to advance in state competition.

F.L. Dammann and Bob Sell debated the affirmative, winning three points. Jason Wiser and David Salmonson, who took the negative stand on the issue, won one point. The total of four points qualified the team for state competition for the second straight year.

Chrissy Dillon accompanied the teams as timekeeper.

The issue being debated is "Resolved: that the United States should adopt a policy to increase political stability in Latin America."

"We made it because the team was super intense and they wanted it (the win)," said coach Connie Ford. "They put in a lot of time this past week bringing their material up to date."

Ford said the students must have current evidence because the data is changing daily.

The team will travel to southern Michigan on Thursday, Feb. 4, and will do last-minute research at the University of Michigan library in Ann Arbor.

This is the second year he has provided the free services.

Strawbridge is hoping people who do not have dental insurance and cannot afford regular dental care will take advantage of the offer.

Among the services which will be provided are oral exams, cleanings, extractions and silver fillings.

Sheriff gets crime grant

The office of the Charlevoix County Sheriff will be able to continue several crime prevention services through a grant from the Office of Criminal Justice.

In announcing the grant, Sheriff George T. Lasater said it will cover a nine-month period and will be used to expand the Neighborhood Watch and Child Watch programs, initiate drug and alcohol education awareness services (DARE), institute a Crime Watch hotline to the Sheriff's Department, and further develop the Victim-Witness assistance program, already in effect.

Sheriff Lasater has assigned Deputy Sherry Martin to carry out the programs.

Package of legislation could aid area seniors

The state House of Representatives' "House Democratic Senior Action Plan" may affect many of Charlevoix County's 3,416 senior citizens.

The plan is designed to protect and assure the independence of the state's senior citizens. It was developed by members of the majority caucus throughout the past year and following committee work conducted by several representatives.

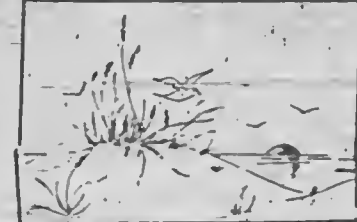

Supporting legislation (35 bills) would:

- Reform the senior health insurance market by setting standards for sale and marketing of long-term care and supplemental health insurance policies.

- Reform nursing home care by setting staffing and training requirements, prohibiting discrimination and reporting abuse.

- Assure community independence through pre-screening, elder abuse preven-

Appointment of three people to the zoning board of appeals came quickly, following several weeks of discussion.

Appointment of a regular member of the board and two alternates came on unanimous 6-0 votes with no discussion Monday, Jan. 18.

The three were among four people interviewed by council a week earlier.

Actions of the zoning board have been a sore subject with several council members in recent months. Two long-time members were not reappointed when their terms ended at the end of the year.

Selected as a full board member was Patty Sitzema, who will be filling the term vacated in the past week by Joan Hoffman, who cited medical reasons for her departure about one-half year after appointment.

Named as alternates were Hagan Manker and Joan Wagner. They replace Larry Sullivan and Kevin Whitley, who became regular members when Ken Felter and Charles Scherpig were not reappointed. Sullivan and Whitley became alternates last fall.

The changes left the zoning board with an inexperienced membership going into the Wednesday, Jan. 20, meeting.

At least three voting members were attending as first-time regular members.

Sullivan and Whitley have acted as voting members in their alternate roles when needed to fill out the five-member board. Sitzema has been attending board meetings for several months as a member of the audience and Wagner has attended some recent meetings.

The two continuing members are John Dixon and Bob Kern. Kern became a full member in June after being an alternate since early 1986. Dixon has been on the board since 1984.

Source of oil spill not found

An investigation by the Coast Guard and city officials failed to locate the source of an oil spill.

The spill apparently started in Round Lake, then flowed through Pine River Channel and into Lake Michigan.

The Coast Guard was alerted to the spill about 10 a.m. Sunday when it was sighted from the highway bridge. A boat was dispatched and city officials notified.

At approximately 2 p.m. a Coast Guard helicopter was called in to survey the extent of the spill, which, at that time, had drifted into Lake Michigan.

The spill was believed to be gasoline or light oil. It had dissipated by Monday morning.

New landfill owner plans to expand facility

by PEG OHLE

Representatives of an industrial giant came to Charlevoix to tell the County Board of Commissioners of their plans for operating a branch of their business in Eveline Township.

The regional vice-president, staff vice-president, marketing manager and environmental manager of Waste Management Inc. introduced their company as operating 300 waste hauling companies and 100 landfills in 46 states; carrying on business activities in Canada, South America, Australia and Saudi Arabia; being listed on stock exchanges in the United States, Japan and Switzerland; and doing business amounting to $2.75 billion last year.

Waste Management is the new owner of the Charlevoix County Landfill, which has been operated since 1982 by Dawson and Barney Way, and before that by Wes Beebe.

While the Ways have been using only 40 acres of land for the landfill, the sale included an additional 60 acres.

Waste Management is asking the county to make the entire purchase available for landfill purposes. This can be done by designating the property in the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, now in its final stages of preparation.

Waste Management personnel said they estimated there was only slightly more than five years of use left in the present 40-acre landfill site and said adding another 60 acres would lengthen its life span to about 20 years.

They emphasized they needed the space to "be able to do what has to be done to provide the type of landfill you want."

The additional space would also make it possible for Waste Management to accept waste from a larger area of northern Michigan.

Up to now, most of the waste has come from Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Cheboygan counties, with occasional loads from other places.

Again, "to provide the type of landfill you want," Waste Management intends to bring in "new systems, new engineering features, collection system, ground water monitoring system, DNR-approved soil liner, and later on, a monitoring system for methane gas and possible re-use of the gas, along with recycling facilities."

Plans for a waste-disposal operation of this size in the midst of a long-established resort area brought many questions from county commissioners and others at the meeting.

Commissioner Don Smith, who represents part of Eveline Township on the county board, said he does not want to see Charlevoix County become the dumping grounds of northern Michigan.

"I don't think being a good neighbor means taking their garbage and helping to lower their hauling rates," he said of other counties.

Eveline Township Supervisor David Willson said he is most concerned about possible water and air pollution of a prime resort area and asked if geography didn't mean anything. His question followed Waste Management's praise of the geology of the Charlevoix County Landfill.

Charlevoix Mayor Ralph McRae expressed concerns about waste-hauling becoming a monopoly in the area. He also said a constant line of large garbage trucks going through Charlevoix could cause problems.

When he asked if Waste Management was considering raising hauling rates, McRae was told the company had not yet addressed that question.

The landfill is the only licensed dump in this part of Northern Michigan, which makes it much in demand for many types of waste disposal and the subject of much criticism.

Several months ago, area residents complained of odors from oil- and chemical-soaked material which has been brought from the Gaylord area. The Proctor and Gamble Co. is a regular supplier of imperfect Pampers from its Cheboygan plant.

The landfill is on the Department of Natural Resources list as a Type II landfill, eligible to accept some commercial and industrial wastes as well as household wastes.

Following rumors that polybrominated-biphenyl (PBB) from an abandoned farm in the Upper Peninsula would be brought to the Charlevoix landfill, the county board in November instructed the county prosecuting attorney to seek an injunction if an attempt were made.

However, the state Department of Agriculture said the contaminated soil and building materials would be deposited in a hazardous waste landfill.

In 1984, Eveline Township filed suit against Way and the DNR, claiming Way was not operating the landfill under the guidelines of the state Solid Waste Management Act and the DNR was not enforcing the law.

The suit was settled out of court after the defendants agreed to several operating stipulations.

The new Solid Waste Management plan is now being prepared by a committee representing waste haulers, the general public and various units of government. Its completion is expected by the end of this month. The county board has assigned county planner Larry Sullivan to coordinate the work of the committee writing the plan.

He says he believes that operation of the local landfill by Waste Management will make for more expertise and a greater willingness to monitor the operation.

A spokesman for the landfill told the Courier Dawson Way's son, Barney, will be site manager for the new owners, with Don Pizzurro serving as hauling operator.

Dawson Way will serve as a part-time consultant.

For most of us, the answer is yes.

We need a doctor who can help us stay well, one who can guide our care when we're ill. We need someone who is there for us and our family in an emergency.

Finding a doctor who meets your individual needs is not always easy. That's why it's important to find a doctor before you need one when you have the time and energy to make a careful choice. Now, there is a new, free service that can help you with this important decision — HealthSource Physician Referral.

At HealthSource Physician Referral, trained staff will personally answer your call and give you the names of physicians whose location and hours are most convenient for you. ## Plan for home over boathouse, dredging bothers councilmen

The City of Charlevoix will express its concerns about feared loss of riparian rights in Round Lake.

Council has directed the city manager to write the federal Army Corps of Engineers and state Department of Natural Resources about a proposal to install pilings and dredge near the planned Herbert Dow house on the lakefront.

Several council members are also attempting to halt construction of the house to replace an existing boathouse extending into the lake.

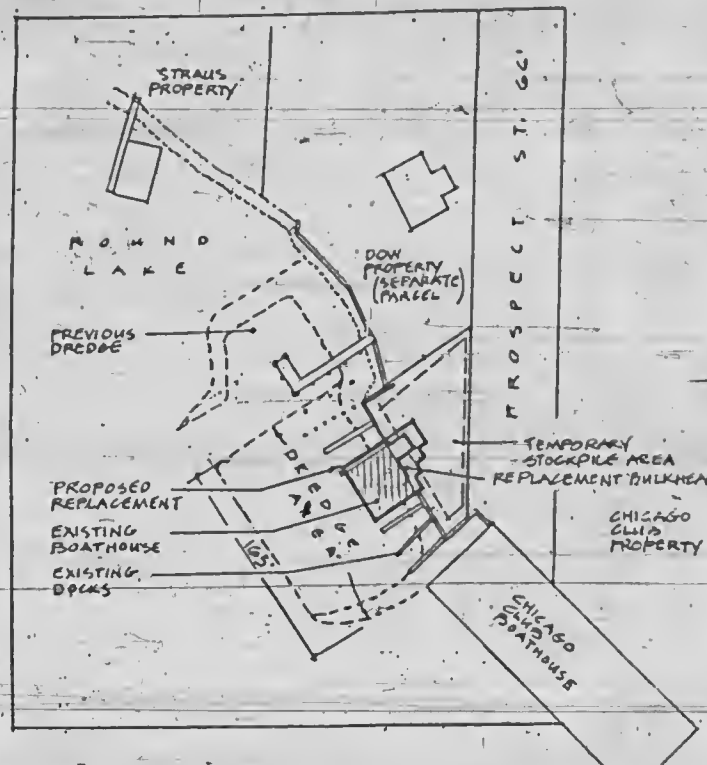

Confusion over jurisdiction in zoning matters on the water and questions about the small, odd-shaped lot have arisen.

The zoning board of appeals granted variances so the building could be constructed, but said it did not have jurisdiction over the part of the structure over the water.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said he would seek an attorney's opinion on the jurisdictional question.

Meanwhile, the council will let the federal and state agencies know about concerns regarding possible infringement on city property if pilings and dredging are outside the property line.

Of particular concern is a narrow boat slip between the Chicago Club boathouse and the Dow property at the foot of Prospect Street.

Dow lawyer Scott Beatty and construction agent John Campbell told council they understand the city's concerns and have no problem with the letter being sent.

Council members reminded residents in the audience who are concerned about the project that the deadline for writing the Corps and DNR is Monday, Jan. 25.

All parties in Park Avenue condo lawsuit agree to try mediation

All parties involved in a lawsuit over construction of a condominium on Park Avenue have agreed to attempt to mediate the dispute.

Mayor Ralph McRae led an effort to seek mediation, hoping to avoid a potentially costly and lengthy court battle.

The city and Northern Michigan Realty Services Inc. are being sued by David Miles and his mother Esther Miles, neighbors of the project, and WATCH Inc.

WATCH, an area environmental group, has joined the suit as a plaintiff. Originally, WATCH had agreed to pay Miles' legal costs.

In mediation, the parties involved sit down with an impartial intermediary in an attempt to iron out an agreement.

McRae says he hopes agreement on a mediator can come in a few days.

Once a mediator is chosen, the principals begin what is normally a four-step process. The sessions are confidential and nobody loses any basic legal rights.

The four steps are giving each side time to have its uninterrupted say, exchanging questions and ideas, negotiating an agreement and writing the agreement.

Miles is suing over city zoning board of appeals approval of variances for the condo project at 105 and 107 Park Avenue. His suit also alleges at least one other variance should have been considered but was not.

Zoning board determination that a hotel is a permissible building on the site is also being challenged in the lawsuit.

Clarification: Petitions all had same wording

The wording of an item in the year-end roundup in the Dec. 30 Courier left an inaccurate impression.

Last summer about 800 people signed petitions calling for limits on condominium-type construction around the city's waterways.

Those petitions contained two proposed amendments to the city zoning ordinance. The wording on all petitions was the same.

However, Mayor Ralph McRae presented two exceptions dealing with Lake Charlevoix and the west side of Round Lake when discussing the proposals with the planning commission.

Those exceptions were not printed on the petitions, but were included with the amendments on a separate sheet distributed during the meeting and with the petitions at a city council meeting that followed.

The Dec. 30 item could have been read to imply that various forms of the petition were involved in subsequent rejections by the planning commission. It was various forms of the proposals which were rejected by the planning commission and city attorney.

Council picks modification over full-scale road change

- More parking signs and installation of Walk-Wait signs for pedestrians;
- Mark intersections for pedestrians;
- Enforce ban on truck parking on Bridge;
- Install light at Antrim and State.

Other possibilities raised at city meetings on the proposals include:

- Move Clinton-Bridge light to Park and Bridge;
- Begin merge of northbound Bridge lanes further to south;
- Northbound left turn lane onto Antrim.

Wiesner said he would get with state highway engineers to see what modifications would work.

Requesting a change in hours when the bridge opens on demand of boaters received a lot of backing.

Pushing the on-half-hour-only openings back to 9 or 11 p.m. would help, several people said. Presently, the bridge rises on boater demand after 6 p.m.

Wiesner said he has been working with the highway department on a request to the Coast Guard and is putting together additional data to support the request.

ters and changing the vehicle turning radius at some corners.

Besides sidewalk engineering, the authority's budget includes:

- Finishing Hoffmann Park and the interpretive display where Round Lake meets Pine River Channel.

- Purchasing and demolishing the White property on Clinton Street for parking. The property is next to the Erber parking lot.

- Supplying grates and paver bricks for the sidewalk at Pointes North Inn (formerly Rysberg Inn). The developer is using the same scheme the DDA plans for downtown, with concrete and brick.

- Making payments on the post office, which the authority purchased for future parking use.

- Constructing the under-bridge walkway on the south side of Pine River Channel in conjunction with the Army Corps of Engineers' walkway project.

- Studying possible renovation of the pump house on the marina into a combination restroom, marina office and pumping station facility.

That leaves about $100,000 of ## Blood drive tops quota

Charlevoix blood drive collected 121 pints, says coordinator Nancy Fowler.

Of 140 potential donors, 19 were deferred for various reasons. Six donors were first-time donors, Fowler said.

"The Coast Guard really came through for us and made it possible for us to collect a little above our quota," she said.

The next visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be on Thursday, May 26.

Medusa aids band

Medusa Cement Co. has donated $500 to the Charlevoix High Band Boosters for their upcoming band day.

This is the second year Medusa has donated the money, which is used as the prize in a drawing at the Friday, Feb. 26, dinner.

tures that are not absolutely necessary."

The directive included a list of ways expenditures might be cut.

The Coast Guard budget was cut in the federal budget approved by Congress last month. In addition to the reduction, the Coast Guard must pay its personnel a two percent raise out of existing operating funds.

The chief mission of the Coast Guard is search and rescue. The directive states that will remain the primary duty of the service. The Mesquite, which has been stationed in Charlevoix since 1958, also takes care of aids to navigation in northern Lake Michigan, the Straits of Mackinac and northern Lake Huron.

The Coast Guard station, which has been part of the Charlevoix scene since 1893, covers an area that extends from the Straits to Frankfort.

Workshop lets parents help kids 'say no'

A workshop to help parents prepare with peer pressures for sexual involvement will be held at Charlevoix Middle School at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 28.

The workshop is designed to help parents support teens decisions to say "no" to sexual involvement and other peer pressures.

Eighth graders will be participating in the "How to Say No" project in February.

The "say no" series was begun in 1984 by the Michigan Department of Social Services and coordinated in this area by Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood.

Specially trained teen presenters, recruited from high schools around the area, tell teens they don't have to be embarrassed to stand up for their rights and say "no" to peer pressure.

Bush, Dole delegates going to state event

The Charlevoix County Republican Convention turned out to be a quiet expression of support.

Receiving the majority of support was Vice President George Bush, while Kansas Sen. Robert Dole received moderate support.

Garnering a smattering of support were New York Congressman Jack Kemp, Delaware Gov. Pierre DuPont and evangelist Pat Robertson. A few in attendance said they were "undecided."

The tone of the convention was in contrast with many downstate conventions which ended in confusion and division as Bush and Robertson-Kemp supporters clashed.

Eighteen of the elected 27 precinct delegates attended the convention along with eight of the 12 eligible delegates-at-large. They elected eight of their number as delegates and alternates to the Republican State Convention, to be held Friday-Saturday, Jan. 29-30, in Grand Rapids.

Those elected as delegates were Arthur Rouse of Boyne City, Don Hufford of Hayes Township, John Haggard of Charlevoix Township and William Ohle of Horton Bay.

Rouse and Haggard expressed support for Bush while Hufford and Ohle said they backed Dole. Alternates will be Bernard Ba-jko of Boyne City, Kevin Green of St. James, Phyllis Haggard of Charlevoix Township and Margaret Ohle of Horton Bay.

The most important piece of business at the state convention will be the selection of 77 delegates to the Republican National Convention in New Orleans in August. The Republican candidate for president will be nominated in New Orleans.

Library contest starts

The Charlevoix Public Library winter coloring contest begins Thursday, Jan. 25.

The theme will be "Who's Keeping Books Out Too Long?" The picture to be colored is a take off on Goldilocks and the Three Bears encouraging young readers to return borrowed books on schedule, librarian Marybeth Wallick said.

The contest will be divided into four categories from preschool through fifth grade.

Copies of the pictures to be colored will be distributed in classrooms of local schools Thursday, Jan. 21. The deadline for entering finished pictures in the contest is 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 6, at the library.

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by the Rev. Jeb Brushard
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Once upon a time there was a handsome prince and a beautiful princess who were meeting in the princess's garden but never knew they were meeting.

You see, a long time ago there was a wicked old witch who desired the handsome young prince, but the prince showed no interest and had no desire for the wicked, old, wort-nosed witch.

The wicked old witch burned with anger toward the prince, and in her anger she thought, "If I can't have him no one can."

With a Shuss! Boom! Bam! the wicked old witch turned the handsome young prince into an ugly slimy frog and destined him to live in the garden at the beautiful princess's castle and be tormented by her beauty and ashamed of his ugliness.

Now, of course there was a way to break the evil spell. The wicked old witch had stipulated that should this ugly frog ever be kissed by a princess, the curse would be broken.

Time passed. Days would go by and the little frog would sit out on his lily pad in the pond, which was located in the middle of the garden.

This had gone on for several weeks and the princess had begun taking an interest in the frog. In fact, she had become so attached to the little frog she began to hold him. Now the frog thought this was great, but he wondered, "How will I ever get this beautiful young princess to kiss me?"

So there he sat in her hand day after day, until one day when the princess brought the frog up to her mouth and began talking to him, telling him all about her problems. "Oh, I have no prince to marry; no prince to love; no prince to kiss."

The whole time the princess was talking the frog was listening intently to her dilemma, until she mentioned, "no prince to kiss," and suddenly his little frog eyes brightened as if to say, "kiss me," but before he could finished the thought, the princess had leaned forward and planted a little peck of a kiss right between the frog's eyes.

Suddenly Bam! Boom! Shuss! the spell had been broken and there stood the handsome young prince. The prince and princess married and lived happily ever after.

The point of the story is this: How many frogs has God brought into your life, and put into your care? The fact is that we all were frogs once until God sent His Son to kiss us, thus making princes and princesses out of all of us and in turn has called us to be frog kissers.

There are a lot of people in this world who feel like frogs and with a few kisses from a princess or a prince the potential that God intended us all to live in can be brought out.

Rayders roll to easy win

The Charlevoix Rayders moved into a tie for second place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference by defeating Rogers City 64-48.

"It was our strong defense that gave us an easy win over Rogers City," said coach Jim Kanine.

"We played good enough (to win). We looked good at times but we have to improve."

The Rayders surged to a 7-0 lead before the visitors got on the scoreboard. Rogers City closed the gap to two points, before Charlevoix pulled away to a 19-13 advantage after eight minutes.

In the second period, the Rayders outscored the Hurons 17-10 for a comfortable 36-23 lead at halftime.

In the third period, the Rayder defense held the visitors to six points as Charlevoix took a 48-29 lead.

The line-up changed repeatedly in the final quarter as Kanine saw that everyone got playing time. At one time in the period, the Rayders led by 25 points.

Scott DeYoung scored 15 points and Roger Smith 13 to lead the scoring for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix's Roger Smith gets off a shot even though Robert Allum of Rogers City gets a hand on it during the Rayders' fourth straight victory.

Ski teams trail leaders at Highlands

Rayder boys placed third and girls fourth in a four-team ski meet at Nubs Nob.

Wes Cumberland placed first in slalom for the boys while Allison Hall came in third in slalom and fourth in giant slalom.

Charlie Witthoeft placed eighth in both events and Heather Keller 10th in both.

"We have a lot of work to do if we want to improve and become real competitive," said coach Erik Lundteigen.

Petoskey won the boys meet with 46 points, followed by Traverse City with 63, Charlevoix 83 and Harbor Springs 91.

Heath Moore came in 14th in slalom and giant slalom, Dan Bjckersteth 19th in slalom and 20th in giant, Jake Smith 18th in slalom and 23rd in giant, and Matt Miller 21st in slalom and 24th in giant.

Middle school teams split pair

Second straight league leader is defeated

For the second time in five days the Rayders basketball team defeated a Michigan-Huron Shores Conference leader as Grayling fell 79-53.

"I was a bit concerned about the game, our second big one in less than a week," said coach Jim Kanine. "The Cheboygan win was a big one and I thought they might let down. However, the kids did a nice job."

"They came to play. They did well in the press, especially in the third quarters. "As he had done the week before, Scott DeYoung came through with two quick shots when Grayling started closing the gap. They played as a team."

The game got off to a slow start as each team jockeyed for control. Late in the first period Grayling went ahead 12-11 but Dan Drury connected for a three-pointer at the buzzer.

Charlevoix outscored the Vikings 18-13 in the second period for a 32-23 halftime lead.

As the second half got underway, the Rayders had a 17-point run before the Vikings started to hit. Grayling collected most of its points in the final four minutes as they were outscored 21-12.

With time running out, Grayling scrambled for the ball and lost three starters to fouls as Kanine gave his bench some playing time.

The Rayders scored 25 field goals plus two three-pointers and 23 of 40 free throws while they had 22 personal fouls. Grayling made 17 field goals, three three-pointers, 10 of 24 from the line and committed 28 personal fouls.

Owen Phillips scored 19 points, four assists and eight rebounds. DeYoung added 13 points and 11 rebounds. Chad DeVries 12 points and 10 rebounds, Drury six assists and Rogers Smith four assists.

JVs breeze past Grayling

The Rayder JV's took to the court to defeat the Grayling Vikings 68-45.

Charlevoix took over early and had no trouble outscoring their hosts 27-16 from the floor and adding 14 of 24 from the line. Grayling hit on 13 of 32 free throws.

Charlevoix was ahead 15-7 at the quarter and increased the lead to 31-12 at halftime. The Rayders outscored the Vikings 19-10 for a 50-22 advantage going into the final period when Coach Dick Swenor emptied the bench. Webb Friedly led the scoring with 14 points. Greg Lewis had 10.

11 JVs score in easy win

The Rayder JV's had a good workout as the entire squad saw action against Rogers City in Charlevoix's 70-39 victory.

Webb Friedly with 22 points headed the list of 11 players who scored as the Rayders led 21-10, 47-15 and 65-19 by quarters.

Greg Lewis added nine points and James Corwin eight.

Snowmobiles must obey road rules

Sheriff George T. Lasater reminds area residents that there are no roads in Charlevoix County designated for use by snowmobiles.

Therefore, a person may not operate a snowmobile on a public highway, airport area or street except under certain conditions:

— By single file at the extreme right of right-of-way of a highway or street, except on a limited access highway.

— When necessary to cross a bridge or culvert. Snowmobile must be brought to a complete stop before entering roadway or right-of-way and yield right of way to approaching vehicles on the highway.

— When necessary to get from one side of the highway to another. Snowmobile must cross at right angles to the highway when the operation can be done safely and another vehicle is not crossing the highway at the same time in the same general area. The snowmobile must come to a complete stop before proceeding across the highway and yield the right of way to all oncoming traffic.

In the case of collision with a snowmobile on a roadway, the driver of the snowmobile involved in the collision is considered prima facie negligent.

Store ads wrong, break pact, former grocery owner says

Publicity concerning the former Charlevoix IGA grocery store has prompted the former owner to make public terms of the agreement terminating his ownership.

The Jan. 7 accord transfers ownership of the store to Charlevoix County State Bank and releases Jack Schmidt from his debt.

The agreement, signed by bank president Gordon Wellman and Schmidt, was the culmination of negotiations which followed preparation of a lawsuit against the bank and former store owners by Schmidt.

Schmidt, who purchased the store in 1985, showed the Courier documents pertaining to the settlement after the bank ran newspaper and radio advertisements which upset him.

Schmidt said the ads' statement that the bank "has had to take over operation" of the store, recently called Charlevoix IGA, was incorrect.

He also said the bank violated their agreement not to air their disagreement in public by publishing the ad.

Bank president Wellman issued a prepared statement in response to Schmidt's disclosures.

"The Charlevoix County State Bank has an agreement with the former owner of the store, whereby the bank took over the ownership and operation of Edwards of Charlevoix, now known as Charlevoix Northside Grocery. We believe the agreement to be in the best interests of all concerned. Any comment on the nature of the discussions or the substance of the agreement would be contrary to the spirit of the settlement," the statement said.

Schmidt said the ads' statement that the bank "has had to take over operation" of the store, recently called Charlevoix IGA, was incorrect.

him. These include his house and cars.

In exchange, the bank received the business, building and inventory. Schmidt said he paid bills that were owned and kept receivables owed the business.

He said he was never in default on the loan with the bank.

Schmidt said the agreement was reached after he had attorneys prepare a lawsuit against the bank and against Richard and Elaine Edwards, former owners.

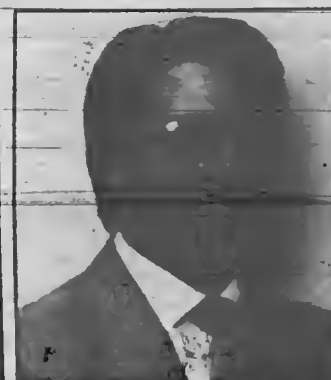

The lawsuit was never filed, he said, because he took it to the bank and asked if a negotiated, private settlement were preferred to a public lawsuit.

On Nov. 12, he said, negotiations began.

The store was closed Jan. 7 and 8 for inventory and transfer of ownership. It reopened Saturday, Jan. 9, as Charlevoix Northside Grocery.

BUSINESS NAMES

The following assumed business names were recently registered with the Charlevoix County Clerk:

Charlevoix Screen Masters, 1002 Taylor Road, Charlevoix, by Roger Nesburg.

Lost Arts Deer Antler Co., Inc., 02887 Etcher Road, Boyne City, by Ron Kuhns.

K. T. & Co., 10056 Ferry Road, Charlevoix, by James R. Stapleton.

There's a 2,800-foot strip of Lake Charlevoix shoreline at Oyster Bay in Hayes Township that has received a lot of attention during the last three years and which seems destined to receive a lot more.

A new wrinkle has been introduced into the dispute over plans to build on the property.

It is the shoreline of former Camp Charlevoix, now owned by a Detroit-area businessman, William Fox, under the company name Fox & Associates.

Fox has been trying for almost three years to gain the township's zoning approval for residential development of the shoreline and the 338 acres of land behind it, but always his plans have not met with one of the regulations of the township zoning ordinance.

The regulation calls for limiting lake access to one housing unit for each 100 feet of lake frontage and one slip or dock space for each 100 feet of lake frontage.

Fox finally went to court, and on Sept. 8, 1987, the Michigan Court of Appeals ruled that the township's zoning provisions designed to limit boat dockage and lake access are invalid because the Township Rural Zoning Act does not give Hayes Township the right to regulate dock space on water or to limit riparian owners' access to the lake.

The Rural Zoning Act has to do only with the regulation of land development and structures, the court said.

Now, Hayes Township has asked the State Supreme Court to hear the case.

In the meantime, there is action in Lansing that could change the whole situation. Rep.

Claude Trim of Waterford has introduced a bill that would amend the Inland Lakes and Streams Act to allow cities, villages and townships to adopt ordinances regulating docking, mooring and watercraft on inland lakes and streams.

If this bill becomes law, Hayes Township's shoreline regulation would presumably be valid and that 2,800 feet of Oyster Bay could be regulated by number of boat docks and access.

But, the Goemaere-Anderson Wetlands Protection Act also applies to this property, and both the Department of Natural Resources and the Army Corps of Engineers have been evaluating the shoreline for the marina which Fox would like to build, as well as the upland part of the property.

It is not known if or when the Supreme Court will decide to hear the Hayes Township case, whether the legislature will pass or defeat Rep. Trim's bill, or what the wetlands decision will be. But that 2,800 feet of Oyster Bay will be in the news again.

REFLECTIONS

Before McSaubas was sloped

Mount McSaubas ski slope is a popular place these days.

The mountain is actually a sand dune as is a good part of the area from North Point along the lake south to Pine River Channel.

The ski slope, as we know it today, is a man-made slope resulting from a lot of earth moving in the late 1950's to build an incline rather than the steep unsafe area it was.

The steep area, however, was always a favorite place to ski and toboggan.

We were talking about it one day recently, and Bruce Reinhart recalled when he and several friends — including Vernon Gimble, the late Don Hiller, Sandy Shearer and Glenroy Ikens and others — cut out a ski slope such steeper than today's on the northeast side of the dune, west of the entrance.

"It had trees on either side and was very steep but it served the purpose. Why we didn't all end up with injuries is a mystery but kids don't think of that," Reinhart remarked.

He also said they used trees they'd cut to make a jump, really a very dangerous one as he looks back on it now.

There was an area to the west of the present clearing where trees were cut out to make a great toboggan slide. That was great fun. Like the ski slide, it was more than a little dangerous because it came down between trees.

It was a great place to slide but, after someone was badly injured, that sport came to a sudden halt.

Later a daredevil skier by the name of Fred Hardy, who was stationed at the old Coast Guard station in the late '30s and early '40s, "discovered" the mountain and, the way I understand it, would ski down the south side of Mount McSaubas, probably its steepest part.

Some sixty years later the kids of Charlevoix, and some adults, too, are enjoying an area that had a potential just waiting to be developed into a safer slope enjoyed by countless people.

What's in Bridge Park future?

"What is the city's view of what the city's very unique park system can be 20 years from now?"

That question by Traver Wood was echoed by several other design specialists asking city council to consider the future of Bridge Park.

Present considerations concerned council members as much as future ones, though, Monday as they again debated the merits of a proposal to build a walkway along the edge of the park.

Using a slide show and cross-section drawings, Pat Jackson reminded council members the park is part of an unusual system stretching through downtown and linking three distinctly different bodies of water.

As work is completed this year, the ribbon-like park system will string from Veterans, East and Bridge parks on Round Lake, to a new underbridge walkway and Pine River Channel revetment and on to Lake Michigan Beach.

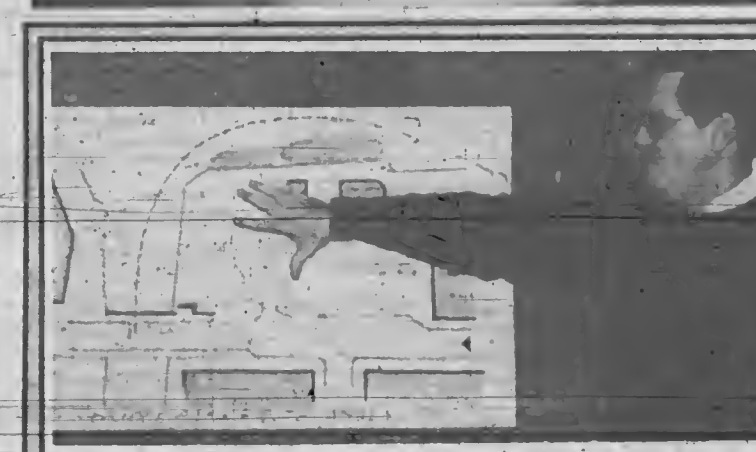

The park is also part of the city economic system, Jackson pointed out, with Beaver Islander storage, Coast Guard cutter Mesquite operations, sewage pump station and city parking lot breaking into views and parkland.

Jackson said he and fellow volunteer Wood could not present a plan for the park before the council made basic decisions about its future.

One basic decision, he said, is deciding if it is feasible to relocate the pumping station sometime in the future.

City Manager Mike Wiesner is proposing in his 1988 budget a $16,000 study of the pump station area — whether it can be converted into a multi-use facility, whether it can be moved. The Downtown Development Authority requested the study.

Carol Sullivan said she and the other designers were not advocating getting rid of a well-functioning station, but could better recommend possible long-term changes in the park if council knew whether it wanted to move the station and whether

The city master plan already anticipates a major reworking of the park, planning commission chairman Walt Hufford said.

Endorsing Wiesner's support of the study, Hufford said, "Doing big projects a little at a time is not constructive."

Jackson said the city is asking private property owners to preserve views to the water and should consider opening "a major view corridor" to Round Lake.

He suggested council make a "broad-scale decision" on the future of the park, which he called more important than debating whether a sidewalk should be six or eight or 12 feet wide.

Council, though, returned its attention to a request for a 29-foot sidewalk and seating area which prompted discussion of the park in the first place.

That proposal is to use up to $70,000 in Downtown Development Authority money to install a plaza along the edge of the Burnside building on the south end of the park.

This renovation would allow the building to be converted into five shops, dressing up the first view of downtown visitors from the north get as they cross the bridge, says Dick Georgi of Charlevoix Development Co.

Taxes on the increased value would repay the cost in about 10

Ahead-lines

Race for Congress?

Mitch Irwin, the Sault Ste. Marie Democrat who followed Republican Bob Davis into the state's 37th District Senate seat, may attempt to follow him into the state's 11th Congressional District seat in the House of Representatives.
Gary Fralick, Irwin's legislative aide, has confirmed that Irwin has filed with the Federal Elections Commission to form an "exploratory committee" to raise funds for a "look at" possibilities.
"Mitch spent the Christmas holidays traveling around the district and assessing his support," Fralick said. "He has raised more than $30,000 and he is much encouraged."
Irwin will decide before the end of February whether he will run.
If he decides to seek the congressional office, Irwin will run on his record in the state legislature, Fralick added.
Bill Huber, local representative of Davis, told the Courier that Irwin would be a "tough opponent."
He said, however, that the Davis campaign would stress what the loss of Davis' seniority would mean to northern Michigan.
He is vice-chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and a senior member of the Armed Services Committee.
Both Irwin and Davis assumed their present offices in January 1978.

Charlevoix Board of Education meets at high school study hall, 7:30 p.m.

Performers ready for try at 5th state title

'West Side Story' cast is selected

Charlevoix High's 60-student performing arts team is rehearsing the musical-tragedy "West Side Story" for state-wide competition.
The student-actor team will travel to Chesaning on Saturday, Jan. 30, for district drama competition, the first event of what they hope will be a series of competitions.

In rehearsal since late November, the team will attempt to match its finish of the past four years: the state Class C-D drama championship.

If successful at district, they will compete in regional competition Feb. 13. State finals will be held Feb. 20.

Coach Connie Ford said this year's team is facing a double challenge. "They're young. There are few seniors and only one, Marvin Witthoef, has played a lead before. However, we have made some changes that we think have improved the play."

"They are shooting to do as well as 'Oklahoma' was last season. That is their second challenge."

"West Side Story," the Broadway musical and motion picture by Leonard Bernstein and Stephen Sondheim, restages

F.L. Dammann and Jennifer Bonar share the spotlight as Tony and Maria in "West Side Story."

Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" in a New York street gang setting.

Action focuses on the rivalry and racial prejudice between two gangs, native New Yorkers and immigrant Puerto Ricans.

Drama team raises most of expenses

The cost is considerable to a debate team which travels across the state; a drama team which takes a full-blown musical into state-wide competition and a forensics team which sees speech teams travel to competitions across Michigan.

The Charlevoix High School performing arts team has annual costs for 60 students involved in performing arts, debate, drama and forensics of approximately $10,000.

The school board contributes $1,000 annually and provides transportation by school bus or van.

Compared to Charlevoix's annual athletic budget of $117,731 the performing arts $10,000 budget is small but parents and students must raise the $9,000 not budgeted by the school board.

To meet the expenses, a Committee for the Advancement of Charlevoix High School's Performing Arts Department has begun direct solicitation for donations, contacting businesses and individuals.

This year's major expense will be staging the musical

"West Side Story" as the 60 student-performers attempt to retain their four-year title of Class C state drama champions.

Royalties, music, stage sets and costumes are just the beginning of the group's costs. For district and regional drama competition, the students will leave Charlevoix in the early morning hours and return late the same night to avoid lodging costs.

State finals, however, require two overnights in the Detroit area. Students and their families cover most of the meal expenses, but the costs of entering Charlevoix in the state drama competition alone is estimated at better than $5,000.

Several area businesses have already donated funds and food.

Kwikie Duplicating has aided program preparation. Jerry's Meats is donating food during the long final rehearsal schedule and 7-Eleven is donating pop and has arranged a special performing arts coupon fund-raising campaign.

Traditionally Oleson's and Glen's have donated food for the students' breakfasts during long bus trips to competition.

Donations to "Charlevoix High School performing arts" are tax deductible.

AROUND THE TOWN

Mid-June cruises on the new Star of Charlevoix paddlewheeler are inching closer to reality.... Work is continuing on the boat, which has been moved to the Annapolis, Md., area after finally being put in the water about a half-year behind schedule at a South Carolina boatyard....

And representatives of the Department of Natural Resources have been meeting with engineers and city officials on renovation of the Round Lake marina.... Formal application is expected soon with a possible April 15 construction date being shot for.... The city will be lengthening several docks in addition to those being made longer by the Star group to replace slips being lost in renovations to allow the boat to park parallel to the shoreline....

Meanwhile, the legal papers linking the local investors group with Star Line, operator of the ship and previous Stars, are still being prepared.... Jon Hisey, Dick Georgi and Doug Shaw are rounding up investors for 20 local $7,500 shares which make up the Charlevoix portion of the deal.

A no-wake ordinance nearly became no-go for this summer because of a mixup in communications.... The city is trying to get a law in place by the boating season to follow an emergency law approved last summer....

A state official's secretary told the city that council could alter the proposed ordinance, as written by the Department of Natural Resources, without slowing the process.... But the official, when he returned from vacation, said the city would have to start over to move the zone boundary from the lake end of the Lake Michigan piers to the shoreline....

So council has decided to leave the proposed ordinance intact so a public hearing can be held and the law can be enacted.

WATCH scholarship deadline near

Students interested in competing for a college scholarship from WATCH Inc. have until Friday, Feb. 5, to submit an application.

This year's essay contest will focus on wetlands in Charlevoix County.

The winning essay will earn the student a $1,000 scholarship. Two $500 scholarships will also be awarded.

The scholarships can be used for full-time enrollment at the college, university or vocational schools of the students' choosing.

The deadline for essays is Friday, March 4. The papers will be of 1,000 words or less in a format outlined on the application.

The program is open to all senior high school students in the Charlevoix County area.

For applications and information, call Michelle Riek-Biddick, WATCH executive administrator, at 547-5530, or write WATCH at P.O. Box 615, Charlevoix.

OPINIONS

Keeping the door open

Newspapers are always quick — and proper — to point out government's violations of the state Open Meetings and Freedom of Information laws.

At the same time, though, they should applaud a board that keeps open a meeting that legally could have been closed.

So here's a hand for the Charlevoix city council.

Last Friday, the council intended to meet in open session just long enough to vote to go into closed session to discuss what was posted as a special meeting on "city property rights."

What that really meant was they wanted to talk about a letter from city attorney Jeff VanTreese concerning proposed construction of a house over a boat house on Round Lake.

When City Manager Mike Wiesner asked VanTreese if the council were allowed to hold a closed session on the matter, the attorney said attorney-client privilege was involved.

And he told the Courier that privilege did not diminish just because the client was a governmental body.

The state attorney general's office, which makes a special effort to ensure that the public's business is conducted in public, agreed with VanTreese that the meeting could be held in private.

When the meeting began, though, VanTreese told the council he wanted to talk in public about the issue. If any questions came up concerning his private letter, he said, the council should then close the meeting.

A wide-ranging, 45-minute discussion followed — in public.

Unfortunately, the public was limited to the Courier, probably because the meeting was posted as being a closed session. But the council can take a bow for keeping the meeting open.

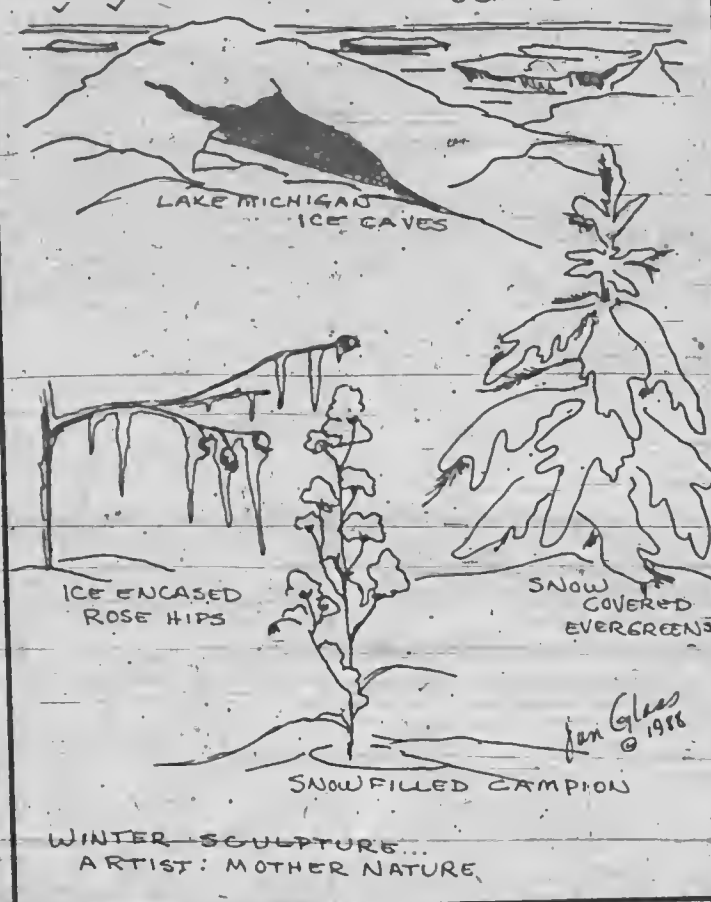

Council members — and other government panels — should always be reluctant to close a meeting. The public's business should be conducted in public.

Laws such as the Open Meetings Act and Freedom of Information Act are not intended as tools for the press to pry into places they aren't invited. And they aren't intended as roadblocks for governments to try to get around.

They are laws to protect the people both the government and the press are doing their jobs for — the public.

Spelling error cause for laugh

Editor,
I always enjoy reading Chuck Duerr's witty corner of the Courier's editorial page, and am sure he is not responsible for the very amusing typo which appeared in the "Quote-Unquote" box in the issue of Jan. 13, but I could not resist making my own comment on it:

It read: "A Florida corporation wants to orbit 150-kilogram reflective spheres filled with ashes from cremations."

Try driving Chicago if you want traffic

Editor,
I'm lucky to own a place in Ironton and all my vacations are in your area. I'll trade your minor summer congestions over what I put up with in Chicago areas any day, and that being my support for the Tums Co. for traffic indigestion.

I can't remember in all my years in your area having parked on Bridge Street during the daytime. In the evening you don't block anybody as traffic is a lot slower and off Bridge Street parking is easier. Even during the craft show or any show, if you are so unfortunate to maybe end up a hefty-four blocks away, rare! The crises is overcome by a pleasant little walk, life is so bitter at times.

Who wrote that tourists aren't shoppers anyway! Nonsense! The shops of Charlevoix fill half my closets. Although I'm not a true blue tourist of your area, I'm there too much, I do have friends who seem to fill their trunks with your wares before returning home.

Charlevoix has had some congestion for years. Just think, if you didn't have any, people wouldn't stop to see what's so interesting. People draw people.

Maybe you will need a minor change as things will get more congested as I plan to bring more of my friends this summer, just to show them why I like it so much. Maybe when I come into the craft show I can squeeze them all in one car. Darn traffic!

I guess I'll have to submit myself to that nasty scene again this coming summer, and the following summers, until I can retire up there and sit around and worry about the traffic on Bridge Street. Aw shucks! It ain't so bad. Frantz R. Cook Westchester, Ill.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Travel, but not too far

I once knew an old fellow in Cass City, Sam Bigelow, owner of the local hardware store, who seldom ventured beyond city limits.

"Actually, Sam's a great traveler," his sister Nellie confided in me one day. "Why, he would like to roam all over the world — just so long as he could sleep in his own bed at night."

Move over, Sam, because I think I'm joining your club.

The Clocks made a quick trip to Grand Rapids Sunday to return daughter Allison, to her books at Davenport College and it was so nice to get back home in time for "Upstairs, Downstairs" on TV.

However, it did us good to get out of town for a few hours just to make sure the rest of the world is still out there — waiting. In fact, everyone should try it.

But you don't have to go to Grand Rapids. You can take my word for it that the parking lots at every fast-food restaurant on 25th Street are filled to capacity and that shoppers at Eastbrook Mall are still jostling each other in the never-ending search for bargains.

Eastbrook was playing host to a boat show while we were there and I have never seen so many watercraft under one roof in my life. If they all congregated in Round Lake there wouldn't be room between them for a dead alewife.

The boat prices were breathtaking, but they didn't seem to discourage shoppers who had turned out in droves to examine the merchandise, compare prices and in some cases make down payments on next summer's vacation fun.

Grand Rapids, in short, has come full circle from the staid, Puritan town it was a few short years ago when it was considered an affront to the Almighty to so much as venture out of the house on Sunday — except to go to church.

In any event it was fun to visit the big city — and still sleep, a la Sam Bigelow, in my own bed Sunday night.

ANOTHER THING about winter travel through Michigan — particularly Northern Michigan — is that it underscores the fact that we live in an extremely profligate society.

In summer you zip through mile after mile of woodlands in full leaf without giving the forest a second thought. But in winter, with a nice cover of snow; you can't help but notice that there are almost as many horizontal trees in the woods as there are vertical trees still alive and well.

Unless someone cuts them up for stove wood, they are going to rot into the forest floor and be of no use to anyone except bugs and other creepy things that live in hollow logs.

I've never learned how to scale timber, but there must be millions of dollars worth of dead and dying BTUs within eye-shot of U.S. 131 alone.

You'd think the owners of the trees — both public and private — would want to have the dead wood removed to improve both the appearance of the forest and health of the remaining trees.

We passed enough stove wood Sunday to heat all of Northern Michigan — forever.

WE ALSO WERE surprised at the number of southbound automobiles and pickup trucks when we came home Sunday night. There were almost as many vehicles as you would encounter on the same road in midsummer.

But most of these cars and trucks were driven by snowmobilers who had taken their favorite toys north for a winter outing.

No one was counting, but there must have been thousands of them. And here I thought the snowmobile boom of the 60s and 70s was beginning to fade.

Near Mancelona, we encountered a number of snowmobilers skimming along the shoulder of the highway at breakneck speeds in a near-total whiteout. It was all I could do to stay on the road; it was all they could do to stay off it.

Thank goodness spring is less than two months away.

Condo suit mediation set to start

A mediator has been selected in a lawsuit over construction of an 11-unit condominium on Pine River Channel.

Attorney Lawrence J. Stockler of Southfield, who specializes in zoning and land use law, was selected from a list of three possible mediators submitted by the American Arbitration Association.

Stockler is scheduled to meet with the four parties involved in the lawsuit Monday and Tuesday; Feb. 1-2.

Neighbor David Miles and the environmental organization WATCH Inc. are suing Northern Michigan Realty Services and the city of Charlevoix.

WATCH originally was funding Miles' litigation but has joined the suit as a plaintiff.

They are suing over alleged irregularities in approval of variances granted by the city zoning board of appeals for the building and in an attempt to overturn zoning board determination that a hotel could be built on the site.

Mayor Ralph McRae led the effort to get the four parties to agree to an attempt at mediation of their differences.

In mediation, the sides present their arguments, then try to draw up an agreement.

The lawsuit is put on hold while the mediation takes place.

Boosters prepare for band day

The second annual Band Day in Charlevoix will be held Friday, Feb. 26, by the Band Boosters organization.

The day will climax a month-long fund-raising campaign on behalf of the band program in Charlevoix public schools.

Don Volsin, president of Band Boosters, said last year the organization was able to designate $6,000 towards the uniform fund. This year, with a drawing and spaghetti dinner, the Boosters again hope to raise another $6,000.

Medusa Cement Co. has again donated $500 for the grand prize. Band students will sell tickets and the boosters will sell the tickets at home basketball games.

Prize committee chairman Connie Hudson is asking businesses for donations of any size for additional prizes to be drawn at halftime of the Cheboygan-Charlevoix basketball game on Band Day.

The boosters' annual spaghetti dinner will be held in the high school cafeteria. In the past, the dinner has served more than 200 people.

The band program involves more than 200 students in sixth through 12th grades.

The high school band participates in home football games, presents a fall concert and works toward auditions for honors band. It also performs a Christmas concert, plays in the Solo and Ensemble Festival and the District 2 Band Festival.

The middle school band prepares for festivals and participates in state festivals during the spring.

During the basketball season, the pep band plays at Friday home games and pep rallies. All bands participate in the annual spring concert and the marching band participates in the Memorial Day parade. The symphonic band plays at commencement, and the marching band leads the Venetian Festival parade in July.

As they did last year, the boosters plan to send seniors who have spent seven years in band on a weekend trip. Last year they went to Chicago.

Over-lake home questions cleared up

Questions about legality of a plan to build a house partly over the water of Round Lake may have been answered, but some city council members are still upset about the propriety of the proposal.

The house would be constructed over a boathouse that would replace a present steel boathouse next to the Chicago Club boathouse on the north side of the lake.

The property, owned by Herbert Dow, is a triangular, small lot extending off the end of Prospect Street.

As owner of the street right-of-way, the city is an adjoining property owner from which the state Department of Natural Resources and federal Army Corps of Engineers want opinions on the project.

Some council members and residents have questioned whether the property is a legal lot and whether the city zoning board of appeals acted properly when it said the city had no jurisdiction over the portion of the house being built over the water.

City attorney Jeff VanTreese, in a special meeting Friday, Jan. 22, said procedures have been followed correctly.

The property has been a separate lot since sometime before 1959, VanTreese said, and has been taxed as one. Any property considered a "lot of record" when the present zoning ordinance took effect in 1974 is a legal lot.

And, VanTreese said, the zoning ordinance does not give the city jurisdiction over what is constructed over the water.

City planner Gerry Harsch spotted that shortcoming last fall, VanTreese said, and has had an amendment written to give the city jurisdiction.

The amendment has already received planning commission approval and will soon be going before council for public hearings and action.

Under the amendment, the city's authority will stretch to the center of the lake.

"Under the amendment, the city will have the authority and will exercise that authority," VanTreese said.

The zoning board granted a rear-yard setback variance, which allowed the structure to be built on what normally would be a too-small lot. The board said it had no power to prevent anything from being built over the water.

Council members considered including their opposition to building over the water in a letter of protest being sent to the state and federal regulators.

They decided, however, to keep the letter as approved at their Monday, Jan. 18, meeting — objecting to any dredging or pilings which might infringe on their property rights as neighbors.

City access to the lake off the end of Prospect Street has been another sore spot with council members.

Council member Norm Probert has repeatedly stated his position that the city's riparian rights — its access to and use of the waterway adjacent to its property — extend in a pie shape to the center of the lake.

Based on that, Probert says, developments such as the Dow building should not include pilings or docks which extend straight out from the property line, but should be tied in toward the center of the lake.

VanTreese, however, says court cases support a theory of equal division of the underwater land surface among on-shore property owners.

How a lake can be divided at "reasonable angles" usually ends up being decided by a judge, he said.

The city's interest in this case, he said, boils down to retention of access to the lake. Right now there is a narrow boat slip between the Chicago Club boathouse and the Dow property.

How far and what direction docks and pilings stretch into the water are things the DNR and Corps look at in their review of permit proposals, VanTreese said.

Probert suggested the city object to any residential buildings over the lake. Council member Bill Haggard said he has no problem with the building extending into the lake.

The present boathouse goes about two feet further into the water than the house-boathouse would, according to the plan. It would be about six feet wider than the present boathouse.

Mayor Ralph McRae said he understood there are several letters of objection to the plan being submitted by residents.

VanTreese said, if that is the case, the DNR and Corps may call for a public hearing on the proposal before passing judgment on the dredging and piling permit.

The deadline for sending written comments to the agencies involved was Monday, Jan. 25.

No city site plan approval is required, since the project is a single-family home in a residential district.

Both one-family homes and boathouses are allowed in the residential zone, VanTreese said.

So when the "new board" — with two of its seven members having less than six months experience and three having none — acts on its first request, what happens?

Your headline should say "zoning board approves three variances," Kern kidded later.

But the zoning board was serious in its deliberations — which took place under the watchful eyes of the mayor, two council members, a former zoning board member and several residents.

And Kern was serious when he issued a warning at the end of the meeting: From now on, the zoning board will not look favorably at requests brought in after the fact.

Pointing to the "penalties" section of the zoning ordinance, the vice chairman said the board would be encouraging enforcement of those provisions for fines and jailing.

Chairman John Dixon said the separation of the zoning administrator's and city planner's jobs should also help deter people from building things and asking for approval later.

A zoning administrator has been on the job for a couple months. Previously, planner Gerry Harsch split his nine-hour-a-week job with the city between his planning and zoning functions.

Administrator Sue Erber is working about twice that many hours just on zoning matters.

Dixon was elected chairman and Kern vice-chairman after former chairman Ted Feller and Charles Scherping were not re-appointed by council when their terms concluded at the end of the year.

Also serving as regular members of the board are Larry Sullivan and Kevin Whitley, who were elevated from non-voting alternates to replace Feller and Scherping, and Patty Sitzema.

Sitzema directly became a regular board member, replacing Joan Hoffman who resigned as city council members debated filling alternate vacancies left open for several weeks after Sullivan and Whitley were appointed.

New alternates, selected two days before the zoning board meeting along with Sitzema, are Joan Wagner and Hagan Manker.

Alternates participate in discussion, but do not vote. When a regular member is absent, an alternate becomes a temporary voting member to keep the decision-making board at five.

The zoning board has been under fire for several months because of the perception of some — including Mayor Ralph McRae — that too many variances from zoning ordinance regulations are granted.

Variances allow property owners to use their property beyond the prescribed limits in the ordinance. The process was built into the zoning ordinance when it was drafted in the early 1970s.

Proponents of the practice say many of the variances granted in Charlevoix are caused by the small size of lots platted earlier in this century.

For example, they say, the mandated 15-foot empty space required from each side lot line to a building in residential areas makes it nearly impossible to build or expand on a 50-foot lot.

Opponents say the process has been abused, particularly on large projects that could be built within the "constraints of the ordinance."

Zoning board decisions on variances cannot be overturned by the city council. They can only be challenged in court.

The first case to go before the zoning board after its most recent appointments was one of those "after-the-fact" cases Kern warned against.

But this one was after-the-fact because of a long-standing misconception held by the city and the school district.

It was improperly thought the school district was immune from local zoning laws when it repositioned a barbed wire-topped fence and installed new light towers at Kipke Field last summer.

A decision on the request was then delayed for a attorney's decision on whether the zoning board has the authority to grant the use of barbed wire. The city attorney says it does.

Rather than approve the school district's belated request in the form the work was done, the zoning board reduced the amount of barbed wire.

On a unanimous vote, the board OK'd a seven-foot chain-link fence with three strands of barbed wire pointing outside the field and with non-barbed wire adjacent to three residences.

The school district wanted approval for six strands of wire — three pointed in and three out — on the fence installed where an alley used to run between the field and Bridge Street.

On another unanimous vote, the board approved a 55-foot height variance for the football lights, provided shields be installed on two towers where lights shine toward the airport. The shields have already been ordered.

The four 80-foot poles (about 90 feet including the light mounts) replaced eight 70-foot poles. The normal height restriction on light poles is 35 feet.

Bob Kern laughed at the irony of the situation.

The city zoning board of appeals has been essentially reconstituted in recent months because of council displeasure with "too many variances."

So when the "new board" — with two of its seven members having less than six months experience and three having none — acts on its first request, what happens?

March of Dimes underway

The annual Mothers March for the Northwest Division of the Northern Michigan chapter of March of Dimes is being held this week.

The door-to-door solicitation is taking place through Wednesday, Feb. 3.

Area coordinator is Joy Halverson at 547-4813.

This year, Oleson's Food Stores is a corporate sponsor of the fund-raiser and is providing coupons for every household.

In addition, Milliken's department store is hosting a kit return party on Sunday, Feb. 7, at its Traverse City, Cadillac and Manistee stores for marchers.

South pier hearing set

A public information hearing on the proposed realignment of the south pier into Lake Michigan will be held next week.

A representative from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will meet with city officials at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 3, at City Hall.

The corps' plan includes moving the bulk of the pier to the south and zig-zagging to meet with the section now containing the lighthouse.

Cribbage lead grows Park questions remain

The Oddfellows continued to pile up points in the annual Mason-Oddfellow cribbage tournament, winning by 276 points to open their lead to 441 points. The Masons had 305 points to the winners' 581.

For the second week, a member of the Oddfellow team, Chet Otmanowski, had a perfect 968 score. Hugh Mayne had 942 for the Masons. Six and one-half tables were in play.

This week, the tournament will be played at the Masonic Temple.

years, Charlevoix Development has figured. Architect Bill Fuller showed how the project could look, using a scale model of the park.

Council members Bill Bellows and Shirley Roloff suggested a narrower sidewalk — more the width of other downtown sidewalks — might be OK.

And Bellows thought a wider walk would be all right if the developer paid for the extra work.

Earl Muma said the DDA should concentrate on sidewalk repair and on parking problems, but showed some support for a walkway along the side of the building.

Norm Probert and Alvin Russell were against using city money on city property to aid private business.

Joining Mayor Ralph McRae in supporting both the Burnsides project and the overall concept of renovating the park was council member Bill Haggard.

Wiesner said he would talk to the developer about possibly sharing the cost of the project with the city if council wanted him to.

But he said he did not think the council had enough information to make a decision without a feasibility study on the pump station.

Council reached no consensus and took no action on either overall goals for the park or the Burnsides proposal.

FAMILY

Moore-Stoughton wedding

Chaya Lynn Moore, daughter of Ronald and Linda Moore of Charlevoix, became the bride of Scott Richard Stoughton Saturday afternoon, Jan. 2, at First Congregational Church. The bridegroom is the son of Richard and Karen Stoughton of Milford.

The Rev. Phil Schairbaum officiated at the double-ring rites in which the bride was given in marriage by her parents.

Approximately 175 guests filled the church sanctuary, which was decorated with pew markers and hurricane lamps trimmed with fresh evergreens, mauve bows and baby's breath, and an altar arrangement of mauve roses, miniature carnations, and fresh greens and baby's breath.

The bride's wedding gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice covered with seed pearls and sequins, a sweetheart neckline, cap sleeves, and princess waistline.

The full skirt was of organdy over silk, with gatherings of bows and white organdy flowers in the back and along the cathedral train.

The bride's fingertip veil of white illusion was attached to a half wreath of white miniature organdy flowers. Her bouquet was composed of mauve roses, balsam, and baby's breath, with accents of mauve ribbon.

Shannon Tittsworth of Petoskey served the bride as maid of honor, and Stacy Way of Charlevoix and Stacy Stoughton of Milford, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids.

They wore tea-length mauve gowns with fitted waists topped with ivory lace collars, and full sleeves. Their bouquets were composed of mauve and ivory roses with balsam, baby's breath, and mauve and ivory ribbons.

Megan Tompkins, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a tea-length mauve dress with a lace collar and carried a mini basket of mauve sweetheart roses.

Mark Nesz, cousin of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Steve Leiberman of West Bloomfield served as best man, and Greg Neper of Keego Harbor and Eric Moore, brother of the bride, were groomsmen.

Jeanie Lignell provided organ music for the ceremony and

Nancy MacArthur sang "The Wedding Song" and "This Is My Beloved."

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the Edgewater Inn, with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rice, uncle and aunt of the bride, serving as master and mistress of ceremonies.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Weatherly Inn.

The newlyweds will live in Birmingham, Ala., where he is employed by Key Royal Automotive Co. as an account executive and she will continue her college education.

Defense leads Rayders to easy victory

The Rayder basketball team invaded St. Ignace and came away with a 74-54 victory.

The team, determined to avenge an earlier loss to the Saints, took an early lead, controlled the boards, was selective in taking shots and, played outstanding defense, coach Jim Kamine said.

"It was definitely our defense that won us the game," Kamine said, adding, "We didn't stop (Pat) Gallagher but we made him work for everything he got."

"I believe that if you are willing to work hard you've got it made and our kids worked. Scott (DeYoung), Roger (Smith) and Chad (DeVries) swept the board repeatedly and Owen (Phillips) and Dan (Drury) did great jobs at their positions.

"When they made a run on us, Roger and Owen came through with key buckets to move us out of their reach. The kids who came off the bench (Shawn Putman, Bob Jess, Dave Miller, Marty Joy) did their part.

"Everyone did a good job but it was the outstanding defense that did the job for us."

DeYoung collected 17 rebounds, DeVries had 20 and Phillips six. Drury and Smith had four assists each. DeVries made four steals and DeYoung, Phillips and Drury made two steals each.

Smith scored 21 points, Phillips 17 and DeYoung 15 points.

The Rayders scored early but the Saints came back to tie the score 7-7 before the Rayders pulled to a 17-10 first period advantage.

With various combinations of players on the floor as early as the first period, the Rayders led by as many as 12 points. The Saints, however, made a run to trim the lead before Charlevoix took a 35-28 advantage into intermission.

In the third period, the Rayders continued to press and control the boards. Again the Saints closed down margin but four buckets by Phillips including a three-pointer, and two by Smith pulled the Rayders ahead.

Repeated trips to the free throw line as the Saints battled for the ball gave the Rayders 10 or their 20 fourth period points.

The Rayders made 27 field goals plus two three-pointers and 15 of 23 free throws. The team committed 16 personal fouls. St. Ignace had 19 two-pointers, two three-pointers and 10 of 18 charity shots. They made 19 fouls.

Wrestlers fall short in four-team match

Charlevoix played host to wrestlers from Petoskey, Traverse City and Grayling and sent all three home happy.

In a meet in which all four teams wrestled against each other, the Rayders were unable to fill several weight classes.

Charlevoix lost to Petoskey 52-27, Traverse City 52-21 and Grayling 50-32.

Scott Novotny (119-pounds) wrestled well, upsetting Petoskey's Chris Gleznor, last year's conference champ, and Jason Whitley (145) went undefeated as he tied Tim Colling of Grayling 2-2 in one of the most exciting matches of the night, coach Greg Bryan said.

In the Petoskey matches, the Rayders gave up the 98-, 105- and 138-pound matches by forfeit. The teams had a double forfeit in the 155-pound class.

The results of the Petoskey match follow:

112: Matt Harbison lost by a pin in 1:59.

Tough losses hurt in tourney

Charlevoix's wrestling team placed last among five teams entered in the Manistee Catholic Invitational meet.

Hesperia won the meet with 163 points followed by Reed City with 138, Mason County Central with 112½, Allendale with 85 and Charlevoix with 84.

Two Charlevoix wrestlers won second place honors, two placed third and one was fourth.

Jason Whitley, wrestling in the 155-pound class, and Jamie Montieth (167-pounds) came in second with two wins and one loss each. Scott Novotny (119) and Jim Tilton (198) had 3-1 records to place third and Brian Darrah (132) was 2-2 to place fourth.

Others who participated and their records for the day: Steve Hopkins (156), 1-2; Robin Mervyn (185), 0-2; Jim Marquardt (heavyweight), 0-2; and Matt Harbison (112), 0-2.

"The team wrestled much better than earlier, especially considering that five wrestled above their regular weight classes and that we were short four weight classes," said coach Greg Bryan.

Novotny, Whitley and Darrah all lost close and exciting matches by one point or they would have finished higher in the standings, Bryan said.

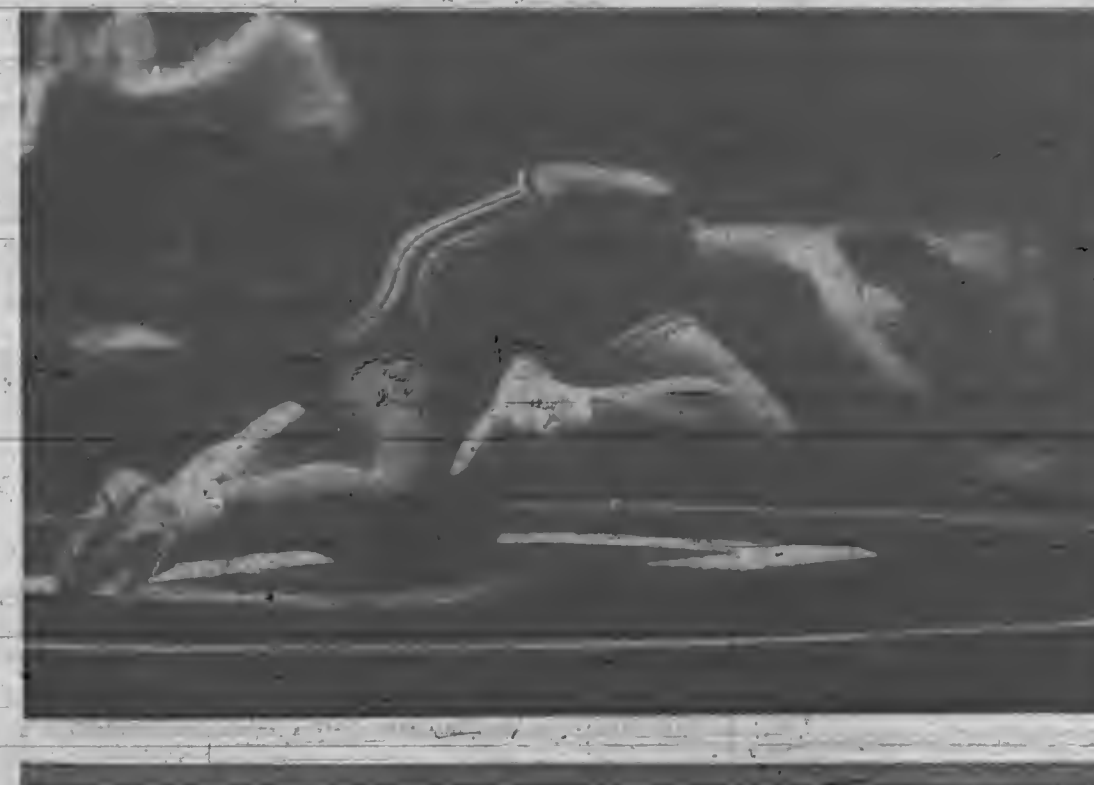

Darrah, who was unseeded, gave the first-seeded wrestler a run in the opening round. He then lost to the second seed in the last second of the consolation

Patty Reinhart straightens out books on a rack at Bridge Street Book and Music Shop. The store is located in the Market Mall.

Mall book store gets new name, new owner

Patty Reinhart is the new owner of Bridge Street Book and Music Shop in the Market Mall. The store formerly was Connie's Place.

The shop has hardcover and paperback books, magazines, newspapers, records, cassettes, tapes, compact discs, sweat-suits, separate sweat pants and shirts, and T-shirts.

The shop keeps in stock the top 10 best-selling hardcover books, other best-sellers in paperback, and both hardcover and paperback fiction and non-fiction books for all types of interests.

Reinhart says if a wanted book is not on her shelves, she can probably get it within a few days.

The store carries the top 40 tapes as well as country and western, easy listening, jazz and others.

In records, the shop carries the top 20 most popular 45's, and some albums. There are also single cassettes and compact discs.

"I have three distributors to order from and I don't charge for search or special orders," Reinhart says.

Leisure wear in all sizes from children's to extra-large is available, and special transfers and printing can be applied in minutes.

Reinhart bought the store after working there for a year and a half. She renamed it and is building her stock on the basis of the requests she receives.

Before going into the book and music business, Reinhart worked for the Dairy Queen for 18 years.

She has lived in Charlevoix for 21 years with her husband, Michael, who is superintendent of the Charlevoix water plant. They have two children, Scott, 19, and Bruce, 9.

REFLECTIONS

Keeping the ice box stocked

"Ice house? What's an ice house? I've never heard of such a thing!" was a comment made when a couple of us were discussing the harvesting of ice and storing it in an ice house.

Of course, you haven't heard of such a thing because you get your ice cubes from a refrigerator, a place for storing food. However, this has not always been the norm.

It was probably in the 1950's that the last ice house was razed after refrigerators replaced the last of the ice boxes.

Time was when people who needed refrigeration kept close watch on the ice situation in Lake Charlevoix, hopeful that as February approached temperatures would go down so there would be a good crop of ice to harvest.

To have good solid ice, it was necessary to have very cold, calm weather so the water of the lake would freeze solid and then continue to freeze, becoming thicker and thicker. Snow on the ice served as insulation which prevented a fast freeze that would result in clear blue ice.

By about the middle of February, those who contracted to harvest the ice would prepared their equipment — which would include a circular saw powered by an engine mounted on a sleigh and, in early years, pulled by a team of horses. The saw was controlled by a man who was protected from the cold by a small house-like enclosure built over the equipment.

As the slabs of ice were cut, they were pulled from the open water by workmen using pike poles. After the ice was cut into square blocks, they were stacked on horse-drawn sleighs and taken to ice house where they were stored in sawdust from mills. This served as insulation.

Ice houses on the north side would be filled from a harvest north of the railroad bridge and those on the southside from one off Ferry Avenue.

At the ice houses an ample supply of clean sawdust would be placed on the ground, ice placed on it and sawdust packed around the outside, between and over the ice as layer after layer was stored to the very top of the building.

I lived on a dairy farm just north of town and we had our own ice house, so that's why I know as much as I do about this operation.

Businesses that needed ice — such as Robbins Fish Co. or Booth Fisheries, now the site of Bellinger's Marine — which required ice for shipping fish to market, had their own ice supply as did dairies in the area.

Then there were the summer hotels — the Belvedere, the Inn and the Beach — that used a lot of ice during the summer and had their own ice houses.

And lastly, there were those in the business of supplying the community with ice for their ice boxes — which were usually located on the back porch... certainly not in the kitchen where the ice would be melted by the heat from the cooking stove!

The big ice dealer, as I remember it, was Harry W. Widdfield who had a big ice house on the north side of East Lincoln in the area across from what, for many years, was Gebeau's Store (now Jerry's Meats).

The remains of the old sugar beet factory at Irish Boat Shop were also used as a storage place for ice, and there were others around town.

Besides the Widdfield operation, were Frank Noble, Jim Earl and the last one to go out of business, Charlevoix Coal and Ice Co. owned by the late Charlie Heise. Heise like nothing better than to relate the story of the ice harvest.

In the early days the ice, washed clean of sawdust, was delivered by horse and ice wagon. Selling it by the pound, the ice man would weigh the block of ice on scales hanging from the rear of the wagon, deposit it in the ice compartment on the top of the homeowner's ice box, mark the poundage and date on paper tacked to the wall and go on his way, peddling his product along a given route.

When he thought the ice was about gone, he'd stop by, check the supply and leave more if needed. At the end of the month,

Troupe wins district, eyes 5th state title

Charlevoix's performing arts team has reached the first goal in its hunt for a fifth straight state championship.

Victory in the district competition puts Charlevoix in regional dramatic arts competition.

Charlevoix's presentation of "West Side Story" scored 268 points out of a possible 300 and earned an excellent ensemble award for every member of the 60-person cast.

The troupe received marks of 93, 92 and 88 from the three judges.

"You can't do too much better than that," coach Connie Ford said.

"Equally exciting to the cast, she said was topping St. Johns, a school they have played second fiddle to in recent years. St. Johns had a score of 255.

"Comments by judges best portray why we received the marks we got and the first place finish," Ford said.

One judge said, "Everything on stage had a purpose and it was used effectively. This resulted from good company work. They were able to convey a most effective sense of foreboding."

Another said, "I was very impressed with the total production."

Said Ford: "It was comments such as these that brought the excellence award for the entire cast. The entire cast did a superb job. A couple did outstanding jobs. Only two excellent ensemble awards were given during the day. Charlevoix and St. Johns got them."

In addition to straight I's and the excellent ensemble award, superior awards were given to Jennifer Bonar and Marvin Witthoeft for acting and excellence awards went to Bob Sell, Jeff Skeel and Witthoeft for set design, and Laura Willmot for costumes.

The Class C regional competition will be held Saturday, Feb. 13, at a site to be announced.

Condos OK, other accord terms secret

In a private resolution of a seven-month public battle, it has been decided a building on Pine River Channel will be residential condominiums instead of a hotel.

An all-day mediation session Monday resulted in a settlement which all sides have agreed will "remain confidential," except for announcement that construction of an 11-unit condominium will continue.

The mediation came in a lawsuit filed against Northern Michigan Realty Services and the city of Charlevoix by David and Esther Miles, neighbors of the project. The environmental group WATCH Inc., which initially was financing the suit, later joined as a plaintiff.

The lawsuit claimed the city zoning board of appeals acted incorrectly in granting variances from zoning regulations and ruled incorrectly that a hotel was an allowable use on the property.

At the urging of Mayor Ralph McRae and several other residents, the four parties involved agreed to mediation, which was expected to take two days.

The project has been the cause

School board asks increase in taxes

A 1.2-mill increase in taxes will be sought Monday, March 28, by Charlevoix Schools.

The ballot proposal will seek three mills for two years, but the tax bite will be less because other taxes have expired, said Vincent Olach, schools business manager.

The date and amount for the election were set Monday, Feb. 1, by the school board.

At an earlier meeting, Olach listed several reasons the district needs more tax revenue:

- The district's fund equity (money left for unexpected expenses) has decreased drastically;

- Funds siphoned off by the Downtown Development Authority and Ferry Avenue Tax Increment Financing district will increase from $198,000 in 1987 to an estimated $300,000 in 1988;

- Medical benefits rose 2 1/2 percent in 1987 and are expected to rise another 10-15 percent this year.

In addition, teachers and administrators are receiving raises of seven percent in each of the next three years under a contract approved in October.

The school district has an anticipated budget of $5.206 million for the next school year.

Olach said the millage levied if the tax hike is approved would be 1.2 mills more than in 1987.

This is because 1.25 mills for two years used to renovate the high school athletic field and .55 mills of debt retirement for the elementary school expired at the end of 1987, Olach said.

One mill of taxation raises $1 for every $1,000 in state equalized valuation of property, which is one-half the market value. So 1.2 mills would increase the taxes on a $50,000 house by $30 a year.

Olach said this is the first time since 1975 that the district is asking for more than 15.25 mills for operations.

AROUND THE TOWN

And now it's time for that Charlevoix quiz game, "Name That Place".... Sound-alike names have been causing some confusion among people around the town - names like Water's Edge and Edgewater, names like North Point and Pointes North, and names like Pine River Inn and Pine River Place....

Now, something else is happening to add to the confusion.... Places are getting renamed as they are getting built....

The latest hotel north of the bridge has had its name changed from Rysberg Inn to Pointes North Inn.... And the condominium in litigation limbo on Park Avenue has gone from Pine River Inn to Pine River Club and now to Park Place....

Sometimes it gets a little mind-boggling for the people involved, too, as evidenced by one set of revised plans submitted to the city by the office of architect Jack Begrow, who is working on both projects.... Along the bottom of the plan for the Rysberg building in two-inch letters were the words Pine River Inn.

People with questions about home re-appraisal notices just sent out by the city will have an opportunity Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 4-6, to ask those questions.... Special informational meetings have been set up with the company that decided property values for taxation purposes....

These are not the normal board of review hearings, which will be held in March, and not a time to request an assessment change.... They are just a time to get information, which may be useful at board of review time....

The city's entire housing stock, except condominiums, was re-appraised last fall by a Lansing-area firm hired by the city.... On the average, property assessments climbed about six percent, which is close to what City Manager Mike Wiesner says the county equalization department was planning to boost them.... Some assessments actually decreased....

The informational meetings will be held at City Hall from 12:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.... The review board meetings are March 14-16.

This one-time garage for The Inn hotel would be remade into an 18-unit apartment complex if a rezoning and four variances are approved by city officials.

Inn garage may become 18 apartments

The old Inn garage might go from housing cars to housing people.

A proposal to convert the large building between Cherry and Elm near Central into 18 apartments will soon go before city commissions.

The proposal needs a rezoning by city council from single-family residential to multiple-family. And it needs four variances of density and off-road setback requirements from the zoning board of appeals.

The first step, however, is the planning commission, which will make recommendations on both requests.

Planners will hear the requests - which include site plan approval by council - at its 5:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 8, meeting in City Hall.

The council will get the request at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 15, and the zoning board at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 17.

Submitting the application was Rick Lobenherz. Jon Hilsey filed the Carriage Club business name with the county.

Lobenherz said the units would be apartments for rent.

The proposal calls for tearing off an addition to the building - leaving the original structure, and converting the building into 14 one-bedroom apartments and four two-bedroom apartments.

The exterior would return to the look of the original Inn garage, built in the 1920s. The building has had several uses since, including - for a short time after World War II - a summer theater.

Each unit would have its own exit into a separate courtyard adjacent to parking.

The only addition to the building would be space for the second bedroom of two apartments attached at one end. The similar space at the other end is within the floorplan of the original building.

The addition added on would be too close to Cherry, according to the zoning ordinance, and would require a variance.

The other variances would be for two parking spaces also too close to Cherry, for lot coverage and for density.

The project would encompass 9,450 square feet; 7,500 are allowed. The existing building is 18,520 square feet.

Of the 18 units asked, 17.2 are allowed on the parcels.

OPINIONS

Community thanked

One more year in the life of the Rainbow Shoppe. It's about time for another annual report and a most sincere tribute to the good people of Charlevoix. Without your contributions, patronage and, of course, all the volunteers that gave of their time working in the store, we would not have been able to serve many worthy non-profit organizations.

Throughout the year of 1987, we financially assisted the Charlevoix Senior Center, Alano Club, Community Food Pantry Christmas Project, Sunshine Club, Compassionate Friends, Chaplaincy at Grandview Medical Facility and VIP-VORP of Charlevoix-Emmet counties.

We also donated clothing to be used as costumes to students of Charlevoix and Boyne City high school performing arts. The Christian video rentals in the shop were purchased by us, but the proceeds will be given to the Ministerial Association of Charlevoix.

We also have an on-going emergency outreach fund that is used for the needy for diapers, gasoline, food, security deposits, etc.

Total contributions to the above recipients were approximately $10,000. Our most sincere gratitude is extended to all the generous citizens of Charlevoix who helped to carry on the Lord's work.

First stop: Reflections

Editor,

First of all, the jury is still out on the physical change of the Courier. I'm not that crazy about it because I resent change, especially anything that has to do with the town I grew up in.

Second, and most importantly, I would like to thank the Courier and Fran Martin for Reflections. This is the first place I go when I get my Courier, not to the obituaries like I used to.

Let me say as far as I am concerned Fran is one of the most loved and respected citizens of Charlevoix, and she is as "Charlevoix" as Joe Williams Cigar Store, the Grill, the Belvedere, BoBo Bennett, and the Venetian Festival.

I hope Fran will really get into it and recall some events that she has witnessed over the years that have left an impression on her and helped make Charlevoix such a wonderful place to spend your childhood. If Fran is anything like I am, she has very good recall of things that happened 30 years ago but at supper time can't remember what she had for lunch.

Let's really use this column to interest those readers who grew up in Charlevoix and have since moved away, and also give those "new" citizens an idea of how it was, and why it is.

Charleviews

Seeing old friends on living room screen

Now, I'm no couch potato, but I do enjoy watching TV. This year's viewing has been fun and rewarding.

So far, I've seen my neighbor, lovely Wendy Voljin, in Detroit's Thanksgiving Parade, as well as Benji Wineman, age 12, who rode the petunia truck with Wendy.

In fact, you probably didn't know that having the petunia truck in the parade was Benji's original idea. His grandfather is James Wineman, long-time summer resident on Michigan Avenue, and staunch supporter of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

While Grampa was chatting with Dale Boss about past parades, Benji said, "Why don't we have the truck in Detroit's Thanksgiving Day Parade?" That's all it took.

Next I was surprised to see Charles Elsendrath's pleasant face on ABC's "Good Morning America." The subject was ethics in journalism. Since Charles serves as the director of Michigan Journalism Fellows Program at the University of Michigan, he is well qualified to comment on most anything pertaining to journalism.

However, privately he prefers to think of himself as a Charlevoix cherry farmer. Old timers may recall that the Charles Rice family from St. Louis, Elsendrath's grandparents, were early, early summer residents at 415 Michigan Avenue.

I hear through the grapevine that another Elsendrath, cousin John from Chicago, is now writing "dramady" (combination of drama-comedy) for NBC. The episode is to be aired this month. Watch for "Beverly Hills Buntz."

Finally, late one Sunday evening, I caught a glimpse of Gardner Stern on Channel 6. "Gardner" was in the audience at John Calloway's program sponsored by the University of Chicago.

He's been coming to Charlevoix every summer forever and ever, and you can catch him daily, when he's in town, having breakfast at the Parkside Restaurant. He's that tall, distinguished, grey haired gentleman.

Unless there are more surprises, we can now look forward this spring to the "Hemingway" six-hour mini-series starring Stacy Keach. The opening scenes were filmed, you remember, at historic Bay View, with lots of valuable props from Charlevoix, such as antique rowboats, hand-embroidered linens, furniture and even a butterfly collection.

Pat Ranger can tell you more details since she served as an extra during the lively production.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Funny-looking snowshoes

You're never too old to learn. Take winter footwear, for example.

For years I carped at the kids about going outdoors all winter long with nothing on their feet but tennis shoes.

"You'll catch your death of cold," I'd croak when I saw them heading outdoors with the temperature hovering near zero and a heavy blanket of snow on the ground. "Come back and put something decent on your feet."

By "something decent" I meant leather boots, or at least a pair of galoshes.

But they never listened. None of them. Ever. They'd skip off through the snow in their gym shoes as merry as lambs, never realizing the Grim Reaper was following in their footsteps. The funny thing is, they never seemed to have more colds than anyone else. And they never complained about their feet being cold.

The other day I learned why. My own sturdy leather boots had become saturated with water and while they were drying by the stove I had to run to the grocery store. So I put on a pair of badly worn sneakers and headed down the street.

The first thing I realized was that tennis shoes give you a lot more traction on slippery pavement than smooth-soled boots.

Then I realized that my feet weren't cold at all. In fact, they were quite comfortable. Actually warm.

Ever since, I have worn my old tennies outside whenever I get a chance. My feet are always comfortable — and even if I get the fabric wet it dries in a jiffy, which is more than I can say for leather boots.

Of course, I have stopped complaining to my kids about what they wear on their feet. They have discovered something I wish I had known when I was a boy. I remember spending a good part of every winter day lacing and unlacing my high-top leather boots.

In physical education class, for example, boys were called in from the gym floor five minutes earlier than the girls so we could line up against the wall and put on our boots. We also started later than the girls since we had to get our boots off before we could start playing.

I always liked my high-tops because they had a little pocket on the side for a jackknife. Beyond that, they were a nuisance, particularly when your father insisted, as mine did, that you waterproof them once a week with mutton tallow.

Actually, mutton tallow didn't do that good a job and I hated having to go to school smelling like a dead sheep. Dogs loved me, however, and I always had quite a pack at my heels whenever I left the house.

So the next time you see a kid in the dead of winter wearing a pair of sneakers, relax. Today's tennis shoes are a lot better — and a lot more expensive — than the canvas and gum rubber shoes we used to wear. The uppers are usually well-padded and the soles are heavier than they used to be. But they still allow the blood to circulate freely in the toes, which is the secret to keeping the feet warm in cold weather.

GETTING BACK to galoshes, whatever became of them?

They have gone into such an eclipse that there probably are kids today who think that "galoshes" is one of the books of the Bible.

Not too many years ago, most folks wore galoshes over their street shoes when venturing out-of-doors in snowy weather — unless they wore high-tops. They were clumsy rubber and fabric affairs with metal buckles down the front. Sometimes they were called "arctics."

As I remember they gave you a lumbering gait, like Attila the Hun.

Women still wear a type of galosh, but they are usually quite stylish and don't look anything like the ugly black monstrosities of yesteryear. Most of them are designed to be worn over stockinged feet, which means you have to carry your shoes.

Which must be a nuisance. Give me tennis shoes any day.

Marrow donor found for Cody

Dear Charlevoix, I'm writing once again in answer to your many requests and questions concerning our son Cody and our trip to Iowa for his bone marrow transplant. By the time this appears in the paper, we will already be in Iowa. We received a call Friday and were asked to be there by Tuesday.

Well, let me start by review our situation. Cody, who's now 4 months old, has been diagnosed with osteopetrosis, a rare and serious bone disorder that will prove fatal eventually if not treated with a bone marrow transplant.

In early January we made a trip to Iowa to meet with Dr. Michael Trigg of the University of Iowa Medical Center, a top figure in the field of bone marrow transplants using unrelated donors.

He explained to us that he has seen four cases like Cody's in the last 15 years and has transplanted one other child so far. That child survived for two years, but then died of an infection. Dr. Trigg feels quite confident of the transplant itself being successful, but because of the small number of cases of osteopetrosis, he cannot predict or guarantee Cody's long-term survival.

After a degree of testing for reactions in three possible unrelated donors for Cody, they have come up with one person whose blood did not reset with his, therefore making her a perfectly compatible match. This is the person we've chosen to be Cody's donor.

This woman will receive no money for this procedure and will have to take time off work with no compensation. Cody's insurance pays for her procedure and hospital costs, because she's donating out of the goodness of her heart. We would like to meet with her to thank her if she agrees to that.

Let me go on now to explain what a bone marrow transplant consists of in respects to the donor and to the recipient.

First of all, contrary to popular belief, a bone marrow transplant is not the surgical removal of bone from the donor to be implanted into the leg of the recipient nor is it the hollowing out of the recipient's bones to shoot marrow into the empty chambers.

A bone marrow transplant in respect to the donor consists of being put to sleep and then having a needle inserted up to 200 times in the front and back of both hips to draw out the correct amount of marrow. (However, when donating for a baby, the needle will only be inserted up to 50 times.) This procedure is relatively safe, and the amount of pain involved depends on the person.

Dr. Trigg has done this procedure on children donating for a sibling with leukemia and has seen them up running around the next day. On the other hand, he's had adults for whom he's had to prescribe morphine for three days!

Now, the transplant in regards to the recipient is fairly simple and not quite as painful.

After receiving drugs similar to those used in chemotherapy 8 to 10 days to suppress all of his immunities, an I.V. will be started and the bone marrow is infused much like a blood transfusion. The bone marrow cells automatically know which area of the body they belong in and find their way there to begin grafting new and improved marrow for Cody!

Oh, the wonders of medical science! In 21 days, we'll know if the graft has taken and is growing and at that point, they'll begin raising Cody's immunities to a more acceptable level. He'll have to be hospitalized for 6-8 weeks following the transplant and then, once discharged, we'll have to remain in the immediate area of the university for another 4-6 weeks before returning home. So, if everything goes well, that puts us at about mid-May for return to Charlevoix.

Well, I guess that sums up the procedure itself. Now I can answer some of your most commonly asked questions like "How's the baby doing?" He's doing just fine, as babies go. He's growing and acting like a normal 4 month old. He smiles and laughs and loves to play. Since his return home in December, Cody has had a blood transfusion about once a week at Northern Michigan Hospitals. We are sincerely grateful to everyone out there who gives blood! I guess you could say that some of you saved my son's life about once a week!

We have found an apartment that's less than 10 minutes from the hospital, and I have a part-time job lined up at a flower shop near there. My husband will be coming back and forth to Charlevoix to work throughout the winter. We find Iowa City and nearby Coralville to be very nice places. Iowa City is about the size of Traverse City with a large university campus attached. The people there are all very friendly and helpful. I'm sure that will really help lessen the blow of being 600 miles from home.

Once again, we owe thanks to so many for so many things. Community and area churches, friends, neighbors and relatives for donations — but not just donations of money for expenses — for donations of love and support;

Transplant explained

taking time out each day for a short prayer or to call us or to stop by or even to be concerned enough to stop me in the store to ask about Cody. Your support and concern has not dissipated over the last month, and you'll never know how much it is appreciated.

It's a pretty scary feeling, not knowing if we'll be bringing Cody home again or not. We've prepared ourselves for the worst, but have never given up hope for the best. Cody's a pretty spirited little guy and I think it would take quite a lot for him to give up his fight for life. Thank you again, Charlevoix and everyone in nearby areas who've given us your love, prayers and support.

However, the list of closings may not be complete, said Lt. Ernest Delbueno of the Ninth District office in Cleveland.

Only units in northwest Michigan listed for cutbacks are:

— Frankfort station personnel will be reduced by nine from its present 18 people;

Island may get seniors meal program

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging may soon have a nutritional meal program on Beaver Island.

At the request of Marie Reigle, the commission is exploring possible cooking and serving facilities on the island.

"We have 130 year-round senior citizens here," Reigle said, "and we think it's time we got some of the services other senior citizens in the county get."

The Commission on Aging annually provides approximately 45,000 meals to senior citizens in Charlevoix County from meal sites in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan.

Most of the meals are served in the Senior Center in each city, while others are delivered to the homes of those who are handicapped or ill.

The Great Lakes largest and oldest icebreaker, Mackinaw, in Cheboygan is scheduled to be placed in special "caretaker status" at the close of the spring icebreaking season. At the present time, no one is prepared to say what "caretaker status" might be.

Units on the Great Lakes that will be closed include Air Station Chicago located at Glenview, Ill., and search and rescue stations at Astabula, Ohio, and North Superior, Minn. Search and rescue stations at Bayfield, Wis., and Alexandria, N.Y., will be shifted to summer-only operation.

In addition, expenditures will be cut significantly overall, an advisory from the commander of the Cleveland office said.

The Ninth Coast Guard District budget has been cut by five percent.

"We will continue all Coast Guard services for the public and also do everything possible to assist the 154 people displaced by these reductions," Rear Adm. Arnold M. Danielson said.

"These reductions will only be a small percentage of the $100 million cut needed in fiscal year 1988. We must take other actions to make up the difference. We will slow down operations and may make further cuts."

Danielson said Congress recently provided the Coast Guard with additional funding but it was not sufficient to maintain present operations for the remainder of fiscal year 1988.

The funds were intended to maintain operations for a transitional period until budget reductions could be fully met, he added.

The Ninth Coast Guard District encompasses the entire Great Lakes region.

First Band Day ticket

Last year's $500 winner Charles Bergmann buys the first ticket for this year's Band Day drawing from ticket chairman Charlene Gaskin. The Band Day dinner and drawing will take place Friday, Feb. 26.

Benefit to raise funds for family with ill infant

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, and its auxiliary will sponsor a benefit pancake breakfast at the post home at 106 E. Garfield on Sunday, Feb. 7.

The meal will benefit the Richard Louiselles whose infant son Cory will undergo a bone marrow transplant at University of Iowa Hospital later this month.

The family has health insurance that covers most of the child's hospital expenses. The breakfast proceeds will help underwrite the cost of traveling and lodging, said Fritz Allard, post commander.

The father is self-employed and, as a result, the family has no income when he is absent from his shop.

Cory's mother will be seeking employment in Iowa City while her son is hospitalized.

The breakfast will begin at 8 a.m. and continue until 1 p.m. or until everyone is served so church-goers may attend after services.

The all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast includes orange juice, syrup and butter, eggs and sausage. Tickets are $2.50 for adults. There is also a children's price.

Curbside paper collection coming to Charlevoix

Curbside pickup of newspapers for recycling will begin in Charlevoix in the near future.

Waste Management Inc., new owner of Charlevoix Landfill Inc. and of Waste Services trash haulers, says it will donate the bundled papers to a community organization such as the Charlevoix Kiwanis, which has an ongoing paper-drive.

William Gleason, marketing manager for the company, has been talking to Mayor Ralph McRae about the project and told the Courier Waste Management is committed to beginning the program.

Boyne City's city manager, Randy Frykberg, has also expressed an interest in a recycling project.

Gleason said the paper pickup would not be a money-making effort for the company, but would be a neighborly gesture.

Among its six divisions, Waste Management has a recycling organization which runs programs throughout the United States.

Gleason could not say when the recycling would begin, but promised it would be soon.

The Kiwanis have a drop-off for recyclable newspapers in a garage next to Winchester Funeral Home on State Street. Papers can be deposited there at any time.

Correction makes error wrong

Two wrongs certainly don't make a right and, in this case, they spoiled the punchline, too. California resident and avid Courier reader Anne Higman Olmstead got a chuckle out of a spelling error in a Chuck Duerr "Quote-Unquote" about burials in outer space.

Somewhere in converting his work into typeset newspaper copy an "a" got added to cremation, turning it into "creamation."

She wrote back that the burial capsules would, no doubt, end up in the Milky Way.

But when her letter was typeset or proofread, someone noticed the misspelling in "creamation" and squeezed out that extra "a." So people who didn't see the original error didn't get the joke.

Now, everyone can share the laugh. That is, if all the letters are in the right place here.

Charlevoix area leads county in construction

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix area is the fastest growing part of Charlevoix County.

The annual report of the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection shows that 319, or 48.5 percent, of the 657 permits issued by that department in 1987 were for construction in the city and five nearby townships.

Altogether, there are 15 townships, three cities and one village in Charlevoix County.

During 1987, 37 new housing units (houses and condominiums) were started in Charlevoix, along with 18 new commercial structures.

There were also nine alteration or remodeling projects of older houses, five residential porch or deck addition projects, five new garages, seven other types of storage buildings, and seven alteration or remodeling projects of commercial buildings.

All of these added up to the largest number of permits issued in any governmental unit in the county.

Adjoining townships showed similar growth. Residential construction permits were issued for 19 new houses and 13 alterations or remodeling projects in Charlevoix Township; 11 new houses and one alteration job in Norwood Township; and 10 new houses and five alteration jobs in Marion Township.

However, the greatest rural population increases are taking place in another two townships within hiking distance of Charlevoix: Eveline Township and Hayes Township.

Eveline Township adjoins Marion Township on the south shore of Lake Charlevoix not far beyond Loeb Road. There, 23 new houses were started last year and 15 others were remodeled or altered in some way.

Straight across Lake Charlevoix from Eveline Township, Hayes Township adjoins Charlevoix Township just west of Oyster Bay. Here, 24 new houses were started last year and seven others were remodeled or altered.

Permits issued by the county department last year covered construction costs estimated at $17,464,598, exclusive of land and plumbing, electrical and mechanical installations.

This was the largest construction figure since the department was opened in 1975.

Leadership seminar deadline nears

Participants in upcoming leadership development workshops are still being sought from around Charlevoix County.

The workshops are being conducted through the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, following a suggestion from the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

"Developing Leadership... the key to the future of Charlevoix County" is the theme of the two-month program.

The aim of the program is for individuals to strengthen their leadership abilities.

Sought are both people in leadership roles — such as church and civic organizations — and those who just want to identify and strengthen their own skills.

The first session, to be held Friday-Saturday, Feb. 12-13, is an overnight retreat at Camp

Hasyo-Went-Ha on Torch Lake. Included in that session are workshops and get-together time aimed at breaking down the uneasiness strangers experience so they can communicate more readily at future sessions.

Those sessions will be six Wednesday night workshops at various places around the county. Specific subjects will be discussed at those sessions.

Among the subjects the workshops will tackle are understanding leadership and leadership styles, getting to know Charlevoix County, developing oneself as a leader, positive management of conflict, understanding local government, methods of strengthening organizational effectiveness, community power structure, leadership style evaluation, and the importance of wise economic development to the county's future.

In all, the program will take about 40 to 50 hours of each participant's time. It is possible the group will decide to take a field trip at the end of the program.

Registration fee is $40 per participant or $75 per couple. There is also a $27 fee for the overnight session, which includes lodging and food.

Some scholarships may be available. Contact Rod Cortright at the Boyne City office of the Cooperative Extension Service about scholarship availability.

For further information about the program, contact the extension office or any member of the steering committee. In the Charlevoix area, those people are Tom Wieland, John Ochs, Doug Shaw, Jacquie Merta, Bruce MacArthur, Susan Van Wieren and Don Dibley.

New landfill owner promises improvements

Charlevoix County will get a state-of-the-art landfill — whether or not the site is expanded, according to new owners.

The Eveline Township dump was purchased late last year by Waste Management Inc., the largest solid waste company in the nation.

In introducing themselves to the county solid waste management committee, company spokesmen spoke of their plans for the facility, an upcoming request to expand and allegations they accept environmental fines as "a cost of doing business."

The committee is working on an update of a county-wide 20-year disposal plan. Charlevoix Landfill is the only state-approved landfill in the county and for several surrounding counties.

William Gleason, marketing manager for Waste Management, told the Courier it is company policy to build a collection system at any site where waste is to be dumped.

Additional space on the present 40-acre site which will be used for dumping, he said, will have a modern collection system.

This, said regional environmental manager engineer Jeff Passeno, includes a compacted clay lining five feet deep, a leachate draining system to catch contaminated liquids, and upgraded monitoring wells.

Passeno said the company will

work with the committee before developing a specific plan.

Gleason reiterated the company's position that it needs to operate on the rest of the 100-acre site.

The life expectancy of the 40-acre site is seven years, said district engineer Bill McDonough, while the life of the 100-acre site is 20 years.

One thousand yards of trash a day are needed to meet costs of disposal and staffing, Gleason record.

The firm has paid $31 million in fines since 1980, Smith said, quoting from an article by the environmental group Greenpeace.

"As a corporation," Passeno said, "we can't deny those events took place.... We're very proud of our track record in Michigan."

Gleason said many of the fines were for technical violations, but admitted employees have been accused and sometimes found guilty of crimes such as bribery and price fixing.

Former landfill owner Dawson Way, a member of the committee and now a consultant to Waste Management, said waste disposal is a "hot potato" said, which means serving a seven-county area that does not include Grand Traverse.

But, Gleason said, if the county's revised plan is approved by the state Department of Natural Resources with a seven-year life for the landfill, the firm is ready to operate for only that period.

County commissioner Don Smith, who is a member of the solid waste panel, questioned the company's environmental business embroiled in controversy.

Way said the fines were "very, very small" for a company the size of Waste Management. The Fortune 500 company had receipts of more than $2.75 billion last year.

Passeno said he could provide Smith with details on each situation, and Gleason discounted the Greenpeace account.

Way told the committee he sold because new laws make it too costly for landfills to be "made and pa operations" any more.

December changes in state law, he said, boost the bond required per acre from $5,000 up to $20,000 and increase the time an owner is responsible for the site after closure from five years up to 30.

"It's now a bigger job than Barney (his son) and Dawson Way could handle," Way said.

Area GOP gets good view of show

by PEG OHLE

Notes from the Republican State Convention in Grand Rapids last weekend:

—Charlevoix resident John Haggard was elected an alternate to the Republican National Convention in New Orleans in August. He was chairman of the Reagan-Bush campaign in Charlevoix County in 1980 and 1984.

—Margaret Reilly of Elk Rapids was elected one of Michigan's 77 delegates to the National Convention. Reilly has attended all State Republican Conventions since 1960 and was an alternate to the National Convention in Dallas.

—District 11 (which includes Charlevoix County) delegates to the State Convention, were seated right in front of the stage. Luck of the draw.

—The clergyman delivering the invocation at the convention asked that the press "report coolly" on convention proceedings.

—It didn't seem to matter to State Convention delegates that the reports prepared for them contained the efforts of many committee members over many months. Most of the reports were accepted without reading. —Convention delegates were more out of order than a bunch of kindergarten kids. Even while being addressed, they roamed around, talked to friends and waved their banners. Some of them certainly didn't know what they were voting for when a voice vote was called for.

—To indicate that they are "one of us" or "we are with you," many convention delegates wore baseball-type caps of varying colors. Some groups wore bright green; others white, orange, blue or yellow. Patriotic supporters of Sen. Robert Dole sported Detroit Tiger caps.

—Don Hufford of Charlevoix, a delegate to the convention, received word that he was the grandfather of another boy. That brings his total number of grandchildren up to five.

—Some of the convention sessions were held in curtained-off rooms, with groups meeting on both sides of the curtain. The mingled voices made the results of some voice votes impossible to determine but they stood as called by the chairman. Finally, reason prevailed and other matters were settled by raising hands or standing for count votes.

—At the District 11 caucus, supporters of Vice President George Bush presented a slate of three candidates for delegate and three for alternate to the Republican National Convention. A large number of District 11 representatives wanted to be able to nominate and vote singly on each delegate and alternate. With the argument, "It would take all night," they were voted down in favor of the slate procedure.

—Kevin Whitley of Charlevoix, son of late city councilman Ivan Whitley and Elaine Whitley, attended both the county and state conventions as an observer.

—After supporters of evangelist Pat Robertson (and some supporters of Congressman Jack Kemp) decided to secede from the regular convention, there were large blocks of empty seats in the convention hall. Most notable, however, was the scarcity of newspaper and other communication people. They seemed to prefer the "action" that was taking place among the secessionists.

—Robertson was the only candidate to show up at the convention. However, security around him was so tight that no one except those carefully identified as his supporters could get near him.

—Charlevoix County Republicans, about 30 of them, who have served as precinct delegates since August 1985 will no longer be receiving bushels of mail from presidential hopefuls or even gold-embossed Christmas cards complete with colored pictures of their family, house and dogs. The precinct delegates have served their usefulness to the candidates.

—There will be a chance next August for a new group to become precinct delegates, to attend County Republican Conventions, and maybe even be a delegate to the State Republican Convention.

Carrier Alert begins

A "Carrier Alert" program has been started by the Charlevoix Post Office and its carriers under the direction of the Charlevoix County Emergency Services Agency.

The program is designed to help senior citizens who may be in need of assistance. The letter carrier notices when mail is not being picked up and reports the fact to Emergency Services, which will call the person in question, or a friend, and send help when needed.

Anyone 60 years old or older, living in the Charlevoix mailing area, may enroll.

Oddfellows increase cribbage lead

Oddfellows piled up 708 points at 6½ tables in play in the Mason-Oddfellow cribbage tournament to 118 points by Masons.

This gave the winners 588 points to add to their lead which is now 1,029.

Clay Berry had high score for Oddfellows, 963. Ted Pennell was high at 936 for Masons.

Play will be held at the American Legion post home at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 4, as the tournament reaches the halfway point.

Rare drug saves life at Charlevoix Hospital

Charlevoix resident Carlo D'Angelo had never heard of fibrinolytic therapy. But when he did learn about it, it was the hard way. And he, for one, is thankful it was there when he needed it.

Fibrinolytic therapy - the ability to dissolve blood clots that cause heart attack while the attack is occurring - is now available at Charlevoix Area Hospital, through use of two recently developed, highly effective drugs.

Streptokinase has actually been in use for about two years at the hospital and has yielded successful results for several patients.

As of January 1, a new, genetically engineered drug with similar use has been made available to the hospital through a sponsorship agreement with Northern Michigan Hospitals (NMH) in Petoskey.

Tissue Plasminogen Activator (t-PA) is manufactured by the Genentech company through a complex process using recombinant DNA. It was hailed as a "breakthrough" drug for treatment of heart attacks when approved by the Food and Drug Administration in November 1987.

As NMH studies the effectiveness and viability of using this expensive drug ($2,300 a dose), it is providing it to several hospitals in the region including Charlevoix.

Fibrinolytic drugs such as streptokinase and t-PA prevent damage to the heart by dissolving clots in coronary arteries that can cause myocardial infarctions, or heart attacks.

The longer blood flow to the heart muscle is restricted by such a clot during a heart attack, the more chance there is of serious damage.

"Though we will administer these drugs up to six hours after the onset of chest pains, they have been found to be most effective if given within three or four hours," said internist James Gels, M.D., director of the CAH intensive coronary care unit.

Terry and Carlo D'Angelo

D'Angelo went home early from his job at the Head Shop beauty salon one afternoon a year and a half ago after he started experiencing hot flashes, nausea and pressure on his chest. When he called his wife Terri at her office and told her how he was feeling, she wasted no time in summoning an ambulance.

For D'Angelo, 45 - a seemingly healthy, active, non-smoking adult male with no history of heart trouble (not even in his family) - it was hard to believe he could actually be having a heart attack.

"As they rushed me to the hospital and started attaching all the apparatus in the emergency room, it was almost a surreal experience. It was like watching an episode of 'St.

Elsewhere' except I was in the middle of it," he said.

Gels, D'Angelo's physician, was called immediately and ordered tests which would determine whether D'Angelo was in reality suffering a myocardial infarction. Soon the diagnosis was confirmed and D'Angelo was feeling worse.

With D'Angelo's permission, he was given streptokinase. Within 20 to 30 minutes the pain disappeared almost as if, in Gels' words, "a curtain was drawn."

Whenever either streptokinase or t-PA is administered, arrangements are made as soon as possible for heart catheterization to check for damage to the heart and assess the need for further treatment such as balloon angioplasty or bypass surgery.

D'Angelo was transferred to NMH the day after his heart attack to undergo the test but was feeling much better.

"I was admitted to NMH on a Saturday and they couldn't schedule my catheterization until Monday but I felt so good over the weekend I almost asked if I couldn't just go home and forget the whole thing," he said.

The test revealed no evidence of damage to D'Angelo's coronary system from his heart attack, nor any pre-existing conditions such as narrowed arteries that may have caused the attack in the first place.

Further testing did reveal, however, that he had indeed suffered a minor myocardial infarction. When D'Angelo asked NMH cardiologist Dr. Harry Colfer for an explanation of why he was stricken, the answer was terse.

"Bad luck," said Colfer. D'Angelo was apparently the victim of a random occurrence, unrelated to any chronic condition or lifestyle factor.

Though sobered by the whole experience, D'Angelo otherwise functions today just as he did before his heart attack with no unusual restrictions on his diet or physical activity. He does take an aspirin a day and has his cholesterol checked regularly.

"You could say that I came out of the whole thing so healthy that I even started a new business," jokes D'Angelo who has since opened the Travel Kiosk of Charlevoix travel agency with his wife.

What did fibrinolytic therapy at Charlevoix Area Hospital do for Carlo D'Angelo?

"It saved his life. It's that simple," said Gels. "He was having a myocardial infarction and it stopped it."

There are some circumstances that preclude the use of streptokinase and t-PA, Gels said. When there is a potential problem of bleeding, for instance, the clot-dissolving drugs may be dangerous.

For the great majority of heart attack victims, however, this new therapy offers a new, almost miraculous chance for recovery.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL CELEBRATES

St. Mary School is celebrating Catholic Schools week with a variety of activities for its enrollment of just under 100 students.

"Our philosophy at St. Mary's is to recognize the integrity of the individual, that as a person he/she may be free and responsible in reaching both temporal and eternal goals," says sister Lydia Korson, O.P., principal.

Sr. Lydia joined St. Mary's last fall as part of a relatively new staff and administration. She and Fr. Jim Gardiner arrived in August.

Aided by a newly organized Home And School Association, St. Mary's teachers are pursuing new ideas while maintaining a traditional Christ-oriented curriculum.

St. Mary's has classes in kindergarten through fifth grade, with the kindergarten new this year.

Classes are complemented by services from Char-Em Intermediate School District, teacher in music and art, and a modest computer and library program. Parent volunteers and tutors are also involved.

Extra-curricular programs include Odyssey of the Mind, the mission-outreach Holy Childhood Seals effort, and community service activities.

A typical day begins with Sr. Lydia meeting staff and students informally for prayer, announcements and the Pledge of Allegiance at the statue of Mary in the front hallway.

Class activities often include field trips — from visiting a llama farm to a hands-on art appreciation demonstration at McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

An all-school project is an annual holiday musical production produced and directed by Jeanne Lignell. Another musical is planned for spring.

A Friday morning children's mass has students involved in planning and presentation of the liturgy.

Fr. Jim Gardiner shows first graders (from left) Ann Speng, Wally Wujcik and C.J. Winnell the proper way to light candles in church.

OF BLESSINGS

As I go on visitation,
People are telling me,
How they used to go to church,
And what they used to be.

They say they were a teacher,
And some were deacons too,
Others played the organ,
And ushers, there were a few.

Some used to drive a church bus,

Some sang in the choir, they'd say,
Some used to go on visitation,
And gave out tracts each day.

I've heard what they used to be,
And it made me wonder how,
They could be active members,
But are doing nothing now.

We must fight against the Devil
Until our Lord we see!
Are you busy serving Jesus
Or just a used to be?

FAMILY

Deborah and Jeffrey Bergmann

Baird-Bergmann wedding

Deborah Baird and Jeffrey Bergmann, both Charlevoix residents, exchanged marriage vows Saturday evening, Dec. 19, at First Congregational Church.

The bride is the daughter of Lowell Baird of Harbor Springs and Janice Baird of Clearwater Beach, Fla. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bergmann of Charlevoix.

The Rev. Phil Schairbaum read the double ring rites before approximately 50 guests. For the occasion, the church was decorated in a holiday motif of poinsettias, holly, and red satin bows.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an ankle-length princess style satin gown fashioned with an off-the-shoulder bodice trimmed with beaded Alençon lace, a long, fitted torso, and circular skirt. Her headpiece was a beaded daisy wreath with teardrop pearls, and her veil was of nylon illusion with a pearl pouf.

The bride's bouquet was composed of calla lilies, silk stephanotis, ivy, freesia, star of Bethlehem, and white sweetheart roses.

Fran Tollas provided music for the ceremony, and Jon Spieles and Gregg Whitley served as ushers.

Following the wedding ceremony, Linda Mason hosted a reception at the Harbour Club Condominiums, after which the newlyweds left for a trip to the Virgin Islands and Clearwater Beach, Fla. They are now at home in Charlevoix.

The bridegroom is owner of White Pine Carpet Cleaning, and the bride is employed by Linda C. Mason Interior Design. (Photography by Tom Bergmann)

Wilhelm-Cyr wedding

Christina Wilhelm and Dwayne Cyr were married Saturday, Oct. 24, at Grace Community Church in Central Lake.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilhelm of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Cyr of Traverse City.

Pastor Estel Clark officiated at the double ring ceremony before approximately 150 guests.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of white taffeta and lace with a chapel-length train. Her headpiece was an arc of pearls and sequined leaves with a waist-length illusion veil. She carried an arrangement of white roses.

Colleen Greene assisted her sister as maid of honor, and Kay Rogers served as bridesmaid. They wore waist-length gowns of black with white. Their headpieces were small black satin hats with black feathers with white accents.

Andrea Wilhelm, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a white-with-black dress, and her headpiece was a white illusion bow. Each attendant carried a white rose.

Martin Olen of Traverse City served as best man, and Rick Boyd, also of Traverse City, served as groomsman. The bridegroom's brothers, Dave and Dan Cyr, served as ushers.

Music for the ceremony was

Christina and Dwayne Cyr provided by the church organist.

Following a stay at Grand Duane Heeres sang, "What a Difference You Made in My Life" and "The Wedding Song."

Rayders in 1st following 7th straight win

The Rayder basketball team moved into the league lead with a 66-61 win over archrival Potoskey.

The Rayders lost their first two games to St. Ignace and Potoskey but have come back to rack up seven straight wins.

The Michigan-Huron Shores Conference now has four teams -- Potoskey, St. Ignace, Cheboygan and Grayling -- tied for second place with 5-3 records. The Rayders are 7-2, having played one more league game than the others.

St. Ignace was knocked out of first place by Gaylord in a two-point upset.

"It was a great game. Potoskey is a great team," coach Jim Kanine said. "We knew when we went into the game it was going to be tough. I told them to keep their composure and to play the way they'd been playing and they'd be all right."

Charlevoix jumped off to a 20-12 first period lead and increased it to 33-23 at halftime.

At that point, Kanine said he warned his team Potoskey was too good to allow that for long and would make a run.

"I warned them again not to lose their cool and to play as I knew they could play. That's exactly what happened."

Potoskey edged up to 45-38 at the third quarter mark, then Geoff Linklater and Tracy Piehl started to hit, tying the score at 49-49.

Piehl put the Northmen ahead momentarily, but Dan Drury scored for Charlevoix to go back in the lead.

Piehl cut the lead to one and then Scott DeYoung playing with four fouls, made a three-point play when he was fouled as he scored.

In the play that followed Cory Battle made a steal and scored his only field goal.

"Owen Phillips, with seven seconds on the clock added two precious free throws to put the game away," Kanine said.

The Rayders made 18 field goals, a three-point shot and 23 of 29 free throw attempts. They collected 22 personal fouls.

Potoskey had 19 two-point field goals, three three-pointers and 16 of 24 free throw attempts. They made 24 personal fouls.

Kanine said the Rayders had some trouble with Linklater but did a good job on Piehl.

With Potoskey's height advantage, Charlevoix should have had trouble rebounding.

"Our defense wasn't the best but it was good enough when we needed it," Kanine said.

"Drury had his best game. He carried us through the fourth quarter. We went to him and he responded."

DeYoung had 13 rebounds, Smith 12 and DeVries 10. Drury and DeYoung had two assists each and Phillips made four steals.

As a team Charlevoix had 42 rebounds to Potoskey's 25.

Islanders defeat volleyball JV

The Charlevoix JV volleyball team hosted Beaver Island Community School in matches at the high school gym during one of the island team's rare trips to the mainland.

Beaver Island won 2-1 with Charlevoix winning the first match 16-14, and the Islanders taking the next two, 15-5 and 15-10.

In her first race since knee surgery, state champion Lauren Pace glides toward a top finish at Nubs Nob. Pace won the slalom and placed second in the giant slalom.

Girl skiers tie for second place

Charlevoix's girls ski team tied with Harbor Springs for second place behind Potoskey in a four-team meet at Nubs Nob, while the short-handed boys team came in fourth.

Potoskey had 49 points, Harbor and Charlevoix tied with 63 each and Grayling had 129 in the girls meet.

The Rayder boys, skiing without Wes Cumberland, had 104 points to trail Potoskey with 30, Harbor with 76 and Grayling with 100.

The return of Lauren Pace, who won top honors in state competition last season, has bolstered the girls team, said coach Erik Lundtelgen.

"The season is nearing its peak, and we still have a lot of work to do before then," he said.

Pace took first in the slalom and second in the giant slalom in her first competition of the season. Allison Hall placed fourth in the slalom and eighth in the giant slalom, Heather Keller ninth in slalom and 10th in giant, Carla Hoffman third in slalom and 16th in giant, Allison Boyer 16th in slalom and Cynthia Boydston 17th in slalom and 19th in giant.

For the boys Heath Moore placed sixth in slalom and 14th in giant, Charlie Witthoef 10th in giant, Dan Bickersteth 13th in slalom and giant, Jake Smith 24th in giant, Chris Seymour 17th in slalom and 19th in giant, Ryan Holmes 27th in slalom and Brian Phillips 27th in giant.

Pinconning wins wrestling events

Pinconning, with a 4-0 record for the day, repeated as winner of the annual Charlevoix Round Robin Wrestling Tournament.

Pinconning, highly rated in the state, had seven individual medalists. Gaylord and Charlevoix had 2-2 records with Gaylord claiming two individual medalists and Charlevoix one. Cheboygan and St. Ignace finished 1-3 with one medalist each.

The scores of the meetings were as follows: Pinconning defeated Charlevoix 77-3, defeated Gaylord 58-17, defeated Cheboygan 68-9 and defeated St.

Ignace 60-15; Gaylord defeated Cheboygan 48-27, defeated St. Ignace 48-30 and lost to Charlevoix 39-33; Charlevoix defeated Gaylord 39-33 and defeated St. Ignace 39-36 and lost to Cheboygan 42-34. St. Ignace defeated Cheboygan 41-39.

Scott Novotny, in the 119 weight class, was Charlevoix's only medalist. He won a tough match against a Pinconning opponent and then took three easy matches, coach Greg Bryan said.

Jason Whitley (145) won three times and lost a close match to Pinconning. Jamie Montieth (155) had three wins and one loss including a 3-1 defeat in the most exciting match of the day, Bryan said.

Jim Tilton (198) and Derek Dutcher (185) had three win-one loss records with a win each over Pinconning opponents.

"Having four vacant weight slots, five against St. Ignace, makes it difficult to be competitive," Bryan said.

"Hopefully, this is a sign of better days ahead. We defeated St. Ignace and Gaylord, both of whom defeated Cheboygan, so it shows how forfeits can affect a team score."

Rayders drop two meets

Rayder wrestlers, short-handed because of illness and injuries, dropped meets to Benzie Central and Kalkaska.

The Rayders lost to Benzie, 45-30 and to Kalkaska 45-27. Kalkaska filled all the lower weight brackets and Charlevoix the higher weights, resulting in only four matches.

In the Benzie competition, results were:

112: Matt Harbison lost by a pin in 3:04.

119: Scott Novotny lost by a 5-1 decision.

132: Brian Dairrah lost by a pin in 3:16.

145: Jason Whitley won by a pin in 1:53.

Heavyweight: Marquardt lost by a pin in 4:51.

Leader upset in B League

First State Bank, leading the league with a 7-1 record, was upset 65-60 by Marsh Construction in B League action in Charlevoix recreation basketball.

Villager Pub (7-2) beat Weathervane 62-46 and Wojan Aluminum defeated Flight Deck 58-44.

Marsh had to come from behind to defeat First State. The final period saw Marsh outscore First State 19-13 to overcome deficits of 19-16, 36-29 and 47-46 at the quarters to hand First State its second loss.

Jim Marsh with 17 points, Ron Chamberlain with 16 and Clay Jones with 15 joined forces to pull off the upset. Bob Sandahl had 15 and Jeff Leahman 13 for First State.

Paced by Dave Cole with 14 points, Villager Pub had no trouble with Weathervane, posting leads of 14-13, 32-23 and 46-35 by quarters.

Joe Miller had 20 points for Weathervane.

Wojan, cellar-dwellers with a 1-8 record, defeated Flight Deck

Freshmen win consolation game in tournament

The Rayder freshman basketball team won consolation honors in the annual Inland Lakes Freshman Tournament at Indian River.

Charlevoix gave up five lower weight classes and won two on forfeit. In the Kalkaska meet, each team forfeited five weight classes.

Results were:

119: Novotny won by a 10-2 decision.

132: Dairrah lost by a pin in 4:30.

145: Whitley won by a 12-9 decision.

Heavyweight: Marquardt lost by a pin in 4:51.

The Rayders had lost to Inland Lakes 54-53 in their first appearance in the tourney.

Charlevoix trailed 16-11 at the quarter before going ahead 31-30 at the half and 44-43 going into the final period.

McElroy had 18 points and Denis Mailloux and Paul Wakulat 10 points each.

Harbor Springs defeated Boyne in the opening game of the tournament and Inland Lakes beat East Jordan. East Jordan defeated Boyne City to win the third place trophy.

Rayders' defense overwhelms Boyne

Charlevoix overcame a Boyne City height advantage and won 63-42.

"When we went to the man-to-man court press in the third quarter after having a bad time early in the game, we got back in our tempo and things settled down," coach Jim Kanine said.

"I credit the win in part to the fine defensive playing of Roger Smith, who held the league's top scorer, Mike DeSchrivver, to 16 points after he had made 46 points against Cheboygan the week before.

"In our earlier game with Boyne, he held DeSchrivver to eight points. That was a great defensive action on his part. He did not score well in the game but doing what he did twice on DeSchrivver makes me think he is the best defensive player in the league.

Boyne's height should have given the Ramblers an advantage on the boards Kanine said. However, Charlevoix had 37 rebounds to the Ramblers' 30.

Chad DeVries grabbed nine rebounds and Scott DeYoung eight.

The Rayders made 25 field goals and 13 of 25 free throws. The team had 15 personal fouls.

Post office remaining at downtown site

The city's post office will be staying right where it is. At least for now.

Plans to build a larger facility on the edge of the downtown district have been scrapped in the U.S. Postal Service's $1.2 billion budget cut.

For awhile, it looked as if the Charlevoix project may survive the cuts, but it was axed earlier this week.

The decision leaves the city with a tenant. The city purchased the building when it was considering where to place the public safety building.

Eventually, the public service building was put on State Street — where the post office wanted to go — and the postal service began looking at other sites.

Approval of a parcel at U.S. 31 and M-66 upset many local residents, and a committee was formed in an effort to find a site closer to town.

Two sites were suggested to the postal service, and it selected the car wash at State and Huribut. That lot is owned by Oleson Food Stores.

The purchase, however, was held up by chemical tests of the site and other delays.

With the public safety building put elsewhere, the city continued its rental agreement with

The rent only supplies about half the money needed to pay off the land contract on the site, City Manager Mike Wiesner says, but the short five-year life of the contract makes city payments high.

The Downtown Development Authority has eyed the parcel for eventual additional parking. But Wiesner says there are adequate alternatives that would allow the post office to remain for the time being.

The postal service has suggested obtaining additional space by finding someone who would construct a building and lease it to the post office.

Wiesner says that could be attractive to the city, because it would keep the new building on the tax rolls. Government buildings are not taxed.

Noon closing set

Beginning Tuesday, Feb. 16, the Charlevoix Post Office will be closed from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. each day.

Window hours at the post office will be from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 1:30 to 5 p.m. on Monday through Friday and from 8:30 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

SHOPTALK

JACQUIE MERTA

Jacquie Merta is executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Each year the Charlevoix Chamber and the Charlevoix Courier publish a Visitors Guide for the purpose of providing information to our visitors and improving the business of Chamber members.

For local, in-state and out-state distribution, 20,000 copies are printed and distributed annually.

This year we — the Chamber and the Courier — have decided to give this publication a "new look." Part of the new look will be providing different information and reorganizing information that has always been made available.

There will be sections on dining, accommodations, attractions, recreation — including fishing, golf and skiing — and community information.

The "Buyers Guide," which lists Chamber members by category, will be expanded and made easier to read. The map will be revamped to highlight points of interest in and around Charlevoix.

We want this guide to be a useful tool not only to visitors, but also to Charlevoix newcomers and those people interested in investing in this area.

We also want to improve your business; therefore, all these changes will make it easier for people to do business with Charlevoix Chamber members.

Chamber board selects goals

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has drafted a list of goals for the coming year.

The goals were worked out by the 12-person chamber board at a retreat meeting.

The 30-year-old chamber has about 300 members.

The 10 goals agreed upon by the board are supplemented by a number of on-going programs which will be continued, Executive Director Jacquie Merta says.

The chamber's goals area:

- Continue cooperation and expand working relationship with city, Downtown Development Authority, Charlevoix

Township, other townships and county government.

- Explore the possibility of sponsoring a retail fair. (An industrial fair, sponsored by Charlevoix County State Bank, is held every other year.)

- Continue to seek new industry and retain existing industry through the chamber's industrial development committee, which is a partnership committee made up of chamber members and city officials.

- Evaluate the Venetian Festival and incorporate new ideas where change is needed.

- Continue to offer seminars and educational workshops to serve chamber members and the community.

- Continue the Ambassador's Club program which welcomes new businesses to the area and continue other public relations activities.

- Continue communication with members through the monthly "Business Focus" newsletter.

- Update the Charlevoix brochure in color.

- Hold an annual meeting, giving special recognition to people who have contributed to the chamber and community.

Kiwanis seeking bulk sap supplies

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is seeking donations of bulk sap to supplement its tappings in the annual maple syrup program. The syrup program is a Charlevoix tradition which raises money for Kiwanis activities and donations. Last year, the Kiwanis raised $4,500 from syrup sales.

With a cutback in the number of trees to be tapped to ensure continued tree health, the Kiwanis are looking for bulk quantities of sap to purchase.

Tours available in Alaska, South

Tours to Alaska and Florida are planned by the Friendship Centers of Petoskey and Emmet County. The trips are open to people outside Emmet County too.

The Alaska trip from May 30 to June 13 cruises the Inland Passage, then tours by bus, train and excursion boat.

The trip to Florida and Gulf Coast states will be March 11-27. For information contact Carla Bufe at 347-3211.

They will boil the sap down and make the syrup, which is sold throughout the area.

Ken Weller at Charlevoix Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge is the club's contact for the program.

The club is also looking for an artist to do an original painting or drawing of the area that can be reproduced for sale.

Artists interested in the fundraiser may contact Gordon Myers at 547-4501 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Condo mediation complete

of considerable debate and at least 15 city panel meetings since Northern Michigan Realty Services' president Don Berlage applied in June for approval of a 21-unit hotel.

Berlage later also asked for approval of three other plans and, in September, received approval for the 11-unit condominium at 105 and 107 Park Avenue. When he began construction, the Miles family filed suit.

McRae and Berlage, as well as city attorney Jeff Van Treese and WATCH-Miles attorney Ward Kuhn, would not say who requested that the terms of the agreement be kept confidential.

City council, following a closed session with Van Treese on Monday night, adopted a resolution allowing the mayor and attorney to enter the consent agreement, which has been signed by circuit judge Richard Pajtas.

Berlage and Kuhn both said they were pleased with the settlement and glad the dispute has been resolved.

Berlage said construction of the condominium project would continue under a building permit issued following city approval of the 11-unit plan.

REFLECTIONS

Planting the seed of industry

The death in Detroit of W. Hawkins Ferry, a patron of the arts and an author, brought to mind the family's association with Charlevoix.

Today, only Ferry Avenue in the southeast section of town recalls the part this name played in the community's history.

There is another reminder — though it has an entirely new "face" and the alias of Foster Boat Works Inn — located at 206 Ferry Avenue on the shore of Lake Charlevoix.

You don't remember that? Of course you don't, for it dates back to the late 1800's when the Ferry Seed Co. was one of the community's chief industries other than commercial fishing and lumbering.

As can be seen in the accompanying photograph, it bore the Ferry name and apparently was the parent company of what was, in later years, to become the Ferry Morse Seed Co.

The company was founded by D.M. Ferry, who constructed the building to house the firm which contracted with area farmers to raise peas and beans in the beginning and later high-grade corn sold under the name of Charlevoix Corn — and beets.

These products were raised for seed which was sorted and packaged for shipping at the local plant.

Young women from throughout the area were hired for this seasonal work. Mrs. Arthur (Rene Cram) Edwards, who was born and raised within sight of the building, remembers her widowed mother boarding and rooming girls who were employed at the plant.

Early in this century, the plant was moved to Rochester, Mich., where it later merged with the Morse company to become the country's largest seed company.

For years the building remained vacant as the paint was faded and the structure took on a weather-beaten look. In the 1920's and early '30's it was occupied in part by the Parmelee Lumber Co. and, in the 1940's, by Foster Boat Works which manufactured small boats for World War II.

In this decade, it has become a hotel, still bearing the name of its last occupant, Foster Boat Works.

One little sidelight: Mrs. Edwards recalled another little factory near the seed company that manufactured butter bowls. To the uninitiated, these were large wooden bowls, highly prized today as antiques, that were used to "work" home-churned butter.

The bowls had to be without flaws. Those that did not meet certain standards were discarded and the kids in her day claimed them for use in sliding downhill... fore-runners of today's "flying saucers" that are made of plastic.

Regarding ice houses mentioned in last week's column: Bill Bellinger of Bellinger Marine, once the site of Booth Fisheries, called to say there is, indeed, a remnant of an ice house remaining in Charlevoix. It's located in the southwest corner of the present marine building and used for boat storage.

"There's still a little sawdust in the walls," Bill said.

Another local resident who grew up on the southside, but who asked to remain anonymous, called to say Widdfield's ice house was located in the 200 block on East Lincoln at the site of the Rex Supermarket residence and that the place across from Gebeau's store was Widdfield's wood lot where cord wood and kindling were stored.

He said the wood lot was a great hangout for kids and he could remember the gang "snitching" watermelons from Orlovski's store (now Fochtman Motor) and taking them to the woodlot to eat.

Mrs. Julius (Rose Dodd) Elzinga also called to say that, as a youngster, she lived east of the big ice house and kids were scared to pass the building at night. "It was dark and spooky and there were no street lights in the area," she said.

Charlevoix Yesterday

The Ferry Seed Co. warehouse on Lake Charlevoix is now the Foster Boat Works hotel. Fran Martin's Reflections tells of the role the industry played in earlier days.

Reappraisal accuracy questioned

The accuracy of last fall's reappraisal of city residences is being questioned.

City council members are hearing of — and in some cases being involved in — mistakes in property descriptions and interior elements.

The biggest complaints so far, though, have come from the Belvedere Club and Chicago Club associations.

Belvedere says figures on 36 of its 90 dwellings were multiplied by an incorrect "factor" and several misinterpretations of the State Assessor's Manual were found.

Chicago Club says its new valuation was figured on an old previous total, not on a lower total negotiated in the settlement of a lawsuit over previous assessments.

Jean Warner, secretary of the association, said the Chicago

Club assessment rose $142,000. It has been said around town that the club's total fell by $45,000.

Warner said she has found many errors in the appraisers' work and is taking them to the city.

Belvedere's assistant secretary-treasurer Lee Moerland said more than one-third of the 90 homes in that association had the wrong "factor" multiplied by their appraisal.

A factor is a percentage the assessments of all property in a community are multiplied by to bring them in conformance with county and state standards.

The state-approved Charlevoix County factor for 1987 is .93, but the appraised value of the 36 Belvedere homes was multiplied by .97, said Moerland.

New effort launched to renovate bandshell

Renovation of the East Park bandshell is going back on the front burner.

The project — which has heated up and cooled down more times than Fermi II — is again a top priority, says recreation commission chairman John Hess.

Construction of the bandshell was begun in 1952 — and never really was completed.

The project was stopped when "we ran out of money," former band director Clarence "Odie" Odmark recalled in 1979 — during an earlier attempt to rejuvenate interest in doing something with the facility.

Hess says the recreation com-

This roofed version of the East Park bandshell was proposed in an earlier attempt to complete the structure begun in 1952.

mission — which is an advisory board to city council — would like to have the facility renovated by the summer of 1989.

The first step, he said, is to find out what can be done and how much it would cost. Hess said it would be nice to have everything in place by this fall, so work could begin early in the spring of 1989.

Bandshell renovation is a favorite project of Mayor Ralph McRae, whose nudgings have been greeted with less-than-enthusiastic response by some council and Downtown Development Authority members.

Previous efforts to rally community or governmental support for doing something with the bandshell have fallen short of their goal.

At least $15,000 exists in three bandshell fund-raising bank accounts and a city fund earmarked for East Park improvements.

Service organizations have raised money, fundraising concerts have been held, grants have been applied for and rejected.

Acoustical experts have been consulted. And various plans have been drawn up or talked about. These have ranged in scope from covering the shell to relocating the stage at the other end of the park.

Hess said the commission would like to name the renovated bandshell for Odmark, who was high school band director for 29 years until his retirement in 1973 and who led earlier efforts to upgrade the structure.

Ahead-lines

House over boathouse

The state Department of Natural Resources will hold a public hearing on a controversial plan to build a house over a boathouse in Round Lake. The hearing, requested by opponents to the proposal - including the city, will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 1, at City Hall. The proposal, by Herbert Dow, would replace a present steel boathouse with a residential-looking structure - the top story would be living quarters and the bottom would remain boat protection. Objections to the plan have been raised by some city council members, who do not want residential construction to take up space in the lake. When the city zoning board of appeals approved variances from ordinance restrictions to allow the construction, it was pointed out that the city does not have jurisdiction in zoning matters over the surface of the lake. An ordinance amendment to extend city zoning power over the water is in the works. It has been endorsed by the city planning commission and is awaiting review by the council. The Dow property is at the foot of Prospect Street next to the Chicago Club boathouse. The city owns the right-of-way to the lake next to the Dow lot.

11 musicians get top score

Eleven of 14 Charlevoix High School musicians in the annual District II, Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association Solo and Ensemble Festival received first division ratings. The remaining three placed second in the competition. In receiving I ratings, the instrumentalists advance to the state finals at Ferris State College on Saturday, March 26.

Receiving I ratings were: Amy Kelly, flute solo; Heather Dietrich, flute solo; Kirsten Joy, flute solo; Mike Stargardt, alto sax solo; Mike Stargardt, tenor sax solo; Matt Stargardt, trumpet solo; Tanya Gruenewald, baritone solo; Amy Shupert, piano solo; Heather Cummings and Kim Jarema, flute duet; Michelle Siebert and Elka Thomas, clarinet duet; Lisa Smith, Marci Wynkoop, Bill Crook, Tim Henne and Sean Henne, brass quintet.

Earning II ratings were: Angela Levengood, clarinet solo; Lori Maue, Karen Arnold and Jennifer Kelly, clarinet trio; and Mike Stargardt and Darrel Spenceley, sax duet.

Debaters finish 6th in state

A Charlevoix High School debate team placed sixth in state Clags C-D competition.

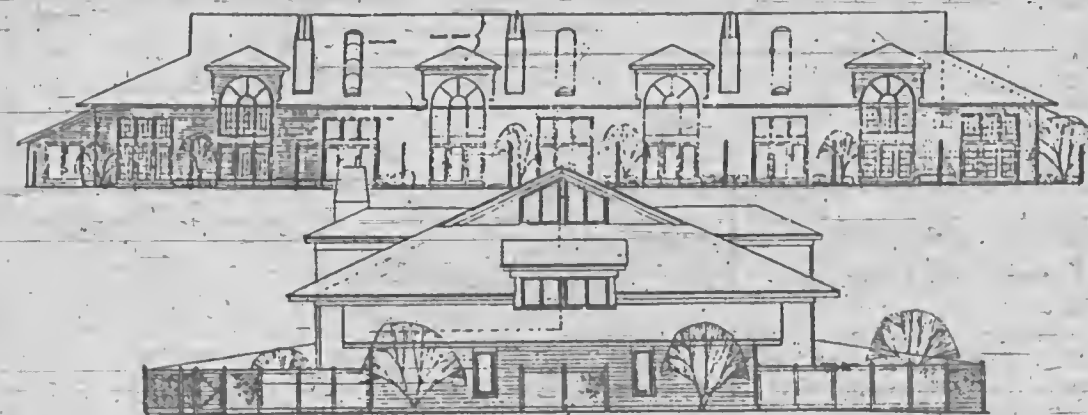

The four-member team was comprised of F.L. Dammann and Bob Sell, who debated the affirmative side of the issue, and Jason Wiser and David Salmonson, who took the negative side. The issue debated was whether the U.S. should adopt a plan to increase political stability in Latin America.

"When they (the team) went into state competition their goal was to better last year's eighth place finish," coach Connie Ford said.

Ford said the team of juniors went into the debates with the idea they would give their best. They were not disappointed with themselves when it was over because they knew they had worked hard, Ford said.

The team successfully completed four preliminary rounds before losing in the quarter-finals.

The issue being debated was a current one that required constant updating. The group spent four hours in the Latin American section of the library at Michigan State University before going to Grand Rapids.

As proposed by Jon Hisey and Rik Lobenherz, the Carriage Club would contain 18 apartments. Neighborhood objections, though, are prompting a reappraisal of the proposal.

Neighbors oppose apartments

Neighbors prefer an old warehouse to an 18-unit apartment building, they told the planning commission.

Turning out in number and sporting a petition signed by about 100 people, they raised objections to a proposal to turn the old Inn carriage house into townhouse apartments.

The planning commission, which was short three of its seven members, decided to delay action on a proposed rezoning and plan for the apartment building until its next meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Rik Lobenherz, who with Jon Hisey is proposing the project, has been surprised by the negative reaction the plan has received from neighbors.

"We felt repairing the building, making it smaller and turning it into residential units would be a plus," Lobenherz said.

After running into heavy opposition, he said he might have to rework the plan but did not know if he would be ready with revisions by the next planning commission meeting.

Lobenherz also said he did not know if reducing the number of units would be economically feasible.

Some residents supported a scaled-down version of the plan, while several objected to apartments going in at all. There were a few voices in favor of the proposal.

Planning commissioners indicated they thought the proposed density was too high. Lobenherz is proposing 18 units; multiple-family residential zoning would allow 17 but the master land use plan projects seven or eight apartment units at the site.

Lobenherz said he would not be proposing apartment units at all if the property were eight empty lots. But in trying to retain the character of the original decades-old building, he said, apartments appeared to be the use best suited for the building and for the neighborhood.

Cost to ride Ironton Ferry rising

The Charlevoix County Transportation Authority is trying to figure out how to pay the $100,000 it will soon owe for this year's overhaul of the Ironton Ferry.

The board is also trying to plan for future overhauls and possible operating deficits.

One action has been taken: The cost of one-way ferry rides will increase from $1.25 to $1.50, and the cost of a 15-ride ferry ticket book will increase from $15 to $20.

Mike Davis has made contacts with state and federal agencies in an effort to receive funding for operating the ferry.

He notes two possibilities: a Department of Transportation grant similar to one received by Chippewa County to help operate ferries to Sugar, Drummond and Neebish Islands; and a Department of Commerce grant based on the tourist attraction of the Ironton Ferry and proposed Ferry Museum.

The authority has asked Davis to continue his search for ferry funding.

City set to fight Army over plans for south pier

The city has decided to fight the Army.

Proposed renovation of the crumbling south pier into Lake Michigan should not take place as the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers proposes, council members say.

In agreeing with upset residents, council is asking the corps to change its plans.

How well the city request will be taken remains to be seen. Corps officials who conducted an informational hearing on the plan last week indicated they don't usually ask for advice.

City officials are ready for a tussle, though. They have already been in contact with the offices of the area's congressman and two U.S. senators.

Asked by sport fisherman Jim Withers whether the city could stop the corps, mayor pro tem Shirley Roloff said, "I don't know, but we're going to let them know how we feel."

The corps' plan for replacement of the 100-year-old pier calls for installation of a 225-foot-long indented rock "cushion" to soften wave action through Pine River Channel and into Round Lake.

Several residents who attended the corps' hearing and council members object to the plan for several reasons - including loss of fishing pier, loss of beach and loss of a recognizable landmark.

Council members directed City Manager Mike Wiesner to tell the corps they prefer reconstruction of the pier in its present configuration.

Failing that, they said, they would go along with the corps' plan only if a catwalk for fishermen is stretched along the channel side of the 225-foot indentation.

"That 225 feet has been fished on for decades, for generations of all ages of people and it would be a mistake, a tragedy, if 225 feet of pier fishing were removed forever from Charlevoix," said Withers, president of the Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

Engineer Al Ranger said the corps has no evidence its proposed wave cushion would work. The effectiveness of a similar rocky indentation on the north pier was questioned by several people.

Ranger was joined by Lou Orliowski, president of the Charlevoix Historical Society, in saying he did not want Charlevoix to be the site of a corps experiment the city would have to live with for the next 100 years.

Ranger said the corps has already done preliminary work on straight-line reconstruction and the $2 million cost is about the same as for the corps' proposal.

Wiesner said there is a possibility the corps' plan would alleviate wave problems in Round Lake, and former mayor Ken Staley said the south pier cushion should work better than the north pier rubble barrier because it would catch prevailing wind waves before they reflected off the side of the channel.

Withers and a group of residents favored the U-shaped corps pier as long as a catwalk was installed for fishermen. The

Long-range street plan needed

Editor,

As fairly new owners of a modest condo in Weathervane Terrace, there is no one who feels worse about Edgewater Inn than we do, for their last phase of building took away about 50 percent of our view. Now we are holding our breath to see if the Rysberg project will take away the other half.

However, there are two sides to the condo story. Everyone who buys one is not a millionaire from the big city trying to push out the local residents. What about those former local residents (like me) who still have a soft spot in their hearts for Charlevoix? How many single-family houses are for sale at modest prices, especially if they have any kind of water view? Most of them are in the six figure bracket.

In a condo you have a group of people sharing facilities, and a view if there is one, all of who are paying taxes to the City of Charlevoix. Doesn't it seem a bit selfish to think in terms of "I've got mine, so don't let anyone else in"?

Cottage tax assessment rise by 540 percent in 17 years

Editor,

I have just received notice that the assessment on my summer cottage at Mercer and Elm Street has been increased from $45,100 to $55,500, an increase of $10,400.

In 1971 this property was assessed at $8,600. Now, 17 years older, the assessment has increased by $46,700 or over 540 percent. I have been informed by the assessor that it is assessed as "lake view" property even though it is not possible to see the lake because of the large growth of trees and bushes across Mercer Boulevard.

Letters to the editor:

This isn't to justify building without any restrictions at all. Certainly there should be alertness in granting permits and in zoning. More alertness, or resistance to special interests, a few years ago might have prevented to anguished some people are experiencing now.

This is why long-range planning now in regard to the traffic congestion in the summer is probably a good idea. It seems to me that banning parking in the downtown area would not be acceptable to downtown merchants and is not the solution. What about the by-pass idea which is used successfully in many cities and towns, including Traverse City and Petoskey?

In thinking of another way to cross the channel, the area of the former railroad bridge comes to mind. Another bridge might have some of the same drawbacks as the present one. What about the tunnel idea mentioned by former Mayor Kenneth Staley at a recent hearing on the subject?

If it is a bit scary to me that northside residents can be cut off from fire and police protection for what might be a crucial period of time if something happens to the normal functioning of the bridge.

A change in perceptions

I wish some scholar would make a comprehensive study of how the American perception of natural beauty has changed in the past century.

Looking back, it seems that our forefathers either were blind to the appeal of sparkling water and majestic forests or they were so busy turning a buck that they didn't notice the world around them.

Perhaps they viewed our waterways only as an economical means of moving so many board feet of lumber from Point A to Point B. They apparently looked at woodlands as just so much building material on the hoof.

In any event, Charlevoix's early settlers not only turned their backs on that little jewel in our midst—Round Lake—but they also cut down all of the timber in town. Early pictures of Charlevoix show a community almost devoid of trees, and you know that is not how the pioneers found it.

It is astounding to think that the east side of Bridge Street was once lined solidly with retail buildings that ignored Round Lake completely, just as Detroit ignored its beautiful Detroit River frontage for more than 250 years.

Not only did Charlevoix's downtown buildings block any view of the lake from Bridge Street but their central focus was strictly on the street. The main business area was in front, with stockrooms, kitchens and work areas at the rear, with hardly a window facing the lake. There was even a commercial laundry at one time on Round Lake at the foot of Clinton Street.

The lake shore, in essence, was the province of garbage pails, coal piles and ash bins. Besides who in his right mind would want to feast his eyes on a flotilla of grubby lumber schooners riding at anchor in the harbor?

The same philosophy seemed to permeate the entire community. Although many beautiful homes were built atop the steep bluffs overlooking Round Lake and Pine River Channel, the central focus was not the lake but the street. Many, of course, have since been remodeled with picture windows at the rear affording views of the water.

Elsewhere in town, the principal rooms of elegant old homes invariably looked out onto the street, when a view of the backyard rose garden might have been more attractive.

Fortunately, visionaries like the late Earl Young and Bob Bridge saw natural beauty in a different light. They were instrumental in having the city declare that if a building on the east side of Bridge Street were destroyed by fire, the city would buy the property and place it in the public domain.

And so East Park was born. Today, of course, our focus is entirely on Round Lake, Pine River Channel and Lake Michigan. If you have a view of water from your house, flooded basements aside, consider yourself lucky.

It is interesting to note that Don Berlage's new condominium is sited so far back on his two Park Avenue lots that future owners not only will have a view of the channel but probably will also be able to catch glimpses of Lake Michigan and Round Lake as well.

I wonder why the two original homes on the property were constructed so close to the street, when it is obvious that the most scenic area on the property for a home is closer to the channel bank.

Their builders are long gone, however, so we cannot ask them. But the change in our perception of natural beauty over the past 100 years is interesting to contemplate.

Assessors don't raise taxes

This is a time of year when property taxes are a popular subject. In December, winter tax bills went out. Last month, reappraisal results were delivered to homeowners. Next month, the board of review meets to hear complaints about tax assessments. Charlevoix city assessor Bob Potter submitted this article about tax misconceptions by Roger M. Olson, assessor for the city of Crystal, Minn. It is reprinted with permission from Equal Eyes, published by the Minnesota chapter of the International Association of Assessing Officers and the Minnesota Association of Assessing Officers.

"There are no windfalls in the property tax."

"Property taxes are levied in dollars, not mills."

"The property tax is the only predetermined tax."

"Taxing authorities receive no more dollars than are levied."

"Increasing values uniformly does not increase anyone's taxes."

"The only reason valuations are increased at all is to maintain equity between new and older properties."

These are statements I make over and over every year. These statements are 100 percent true in Minnesota, and go a long way to dispel taxpayers' fears of the property tax and valuation increases.

If assessors could raise tax dollars as people think they can, then assessors would be the most powerful people in local government, and all the city councils and county boards and managers and administrators would come to the assessor to see how much money they could raise this year. We all know that it just doesn't work that way. If we all understood the system better, maybe we could better argue the fairness of the property tax, and we would not have to defend each individual value to such a great extent. After all, if we are wrong, then we are uniformly wrong on all properties and no taxpayer is hurt. Of course, we should correct errors for individuals wherever a mistake has occurred, but under a uniform valuation system, few taxpayers ever have a valid complaint.

There are no "windfalls," because higher assessed valuations reflect lower mill rates.

Because "taxes are levied in dollars," no additional dollars are raised by increased values.

Income taxes and sales taxes are not known until after incomes are earned and purchases are known. However, the property tax is predetermined long before the next year's mill rate is calculated.

Taxing authorities never receive any more dollars than are levied. In fact, sometimes they receive fewer, when state homestead payments are cut or when delinquencies are not collected. Usually, about 99 percent of the levied tax is collected.

When you raise values uniformly, no one will ever pay any more than his fair share of the increase in levied dollars.

If property values and building costs never changed, then we would never have to change values except for new improvements. Fact is, if we did not change values, then pretty soon an unfair burden of the tax would fall on newer properties.

Occasionally, a developer, builder, or council person will want to know how many dollars of taxes will be raised for the city, etc., by the building of some proposed project. They are speechless when told "none." No new dollars are ever raised by new taxable real estate, only a little broader sharing of the dollars that would have been levied anyway.

All of these are concepts that should be studied and rehearsed until understood.

Does the assessor really know that he doesn't raise taxes? I hope so.

AROUND THE TOWN

Snowmobile events added to Winter Carnival line-up

Football field light towers, up since summer and thought to be approved since last month, will have to be approved again.... Because of a slip-up in notifying neighbors, the city zoning board will have to hold another public hearing on the four 80-foot light poles....

The school district put up the poles last summer as part of the renovation of Klpe Field.... Both the district and city thought the school board was exempt from zoning regulations, but later found out that was not the case.... So the school board applied for permission to put up the poles when it applied for an OK to put up barbed wire it already had put up around part of the field.... Notification letters to neighbors didn't mention the light towers, though, so approval granted in January for the poles has to be put on hold while neighbors are notified again and a public hearing is held.

A no-wake zone could be permanently established on Round Lake by this summer.... In past years, city council has enacted a temporary "slow-no wake" law to protect boats and property from damages caused by speeding vessels....

Without the no-wake designation, sheriff marine division deputies are left trying to enforce a 6 mph speed limit.... But use of radar is nearly impossible, deputies say, because of the rocking motion of the boat the radar is mounted in.... Mounting radar on land necessitates having deputies on land and in the water....

Because changing the proposed law from wording approved by the Department of Natural Resources might possibly delay enactment beyond the boating season, council has decided to go along with boundaries suggested by the DNR.... The council wanted to pull the western limit of the no-wake zone back from the DNR's suggested west end of the Lake Michigan piers to the Michigan Beach shoreline.... The eastern limit is the old railroad bridge at the end of Lake Charlevoix.

"It looks like the best Winter Festival yet," says Bo Boss, chairman of this weekend's event.

"We've expanded some of the events and added others to offer a full weekend of fun for participants as well as spectators," Boss says.

The Winter Carnival will be held at Mount McSaubia recreation area Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 13-14.

Saturday afternoon will be devoted to a variety of ski races, Saturday evening to preliminaries in Thunder Tube races, early Sunday afternoon to snowmobile events and late afternoon to Thunder Tube finals.

Registration for individual downhill ski races for all ages from bunny class to adults will be held from noon until 1 p.m. Saturday....

Races will begin at 1 p.m. and continued until 3 p.m. when team relay races begin. Teams of five skiers will participate in this event.

Registration for Thunder Tube races will be held from 6 until 7 p.m. Saturday for teams of three. There will be a $10 entry fee for each team with the money to be returned in prizes.

The top 12 teams will participate in the finals at 3 p.m. on Sunday, following the snowmobile races.

Snowmobiles of all sizes will be entered in the Sunday afternoon event to be preceded by registration from noon until 1 p.m.

A hill climb, which promises to be exciting, will be followed by obstacle races. Boss said. There will be a $10 entry fee and cash prizes for these events.

The finals in the World Thunder Tube Championships will be staged at 3 p.m. with the 12 finalists participating.

There will also be rides to the top of the mountain on the snowcat express.

"This will be a great opportunity for those who have never viewed the landscape from this vantage point," Boss says. The rides are free.

Prizes grow for annual Band Day

Prizes worth between $2,000 and $3,000 have been donated by area merchants to aid Charlevoix school bands.

The prizes will be awarded as part of the second annual Band Day on Friday, Feb. 26. Besides the drawing for prizes, the day will feature the annual Band Boosters spaghetti dinner.

In addition to the grand prize of $500 donated by Medusa Cement Co., there are at least 17 other prizes, says Don Volson, president of the boosters organization.

These include three $100 savings bonds and three $50 savings bonds.

Tickets for the drawing are $1 each and may be purchased from any band member or from Charlene and Pete Gaskin.

The grand prize drawing will be held at halftime of the Charlevoix-Cheboygan basketball game Friday, Feb. 26.

Drawings for other prizes will take place during the third quarter, with announcement of winners between the third and fourth periods.

Winners need not be present. Tickets for the spaghetti dinner are also on sale.

Changes in the dinner this year include addition of a second serving line and availability of a meatless sauce.

The Band Boosters will be treating the varsity basketball team to a spaghetti dinner before the game.

Residents asked for input on recreation plan

Residents are being asked what changes they want in city recreation facilities and activities in coming years.

The city recreation commission will conduct a public hearing at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 16, as the first step in updating its master plan.

The commission drew up a plan in 1980 and has accomplished all the goals set out in that document, says chairman John Hess.

Hess, who was a member of the commission at the time, has returned to the board after a 10-month absence.

Resident input is needed so the commission knows the direction the community wants to go in, Hess says.

Charlevoix is blessed with an abundance of parks and recreational areas for a town of 3,500 permanent residents, Hess notes.

These range from major facilities such as Mount McSaubia, the golf course, downtown parks and four beaches to small ones such as Michigan Avenue walkways to Lake Michigan, tennis courts and the Burns Street mooring area.

The recreation plan should be updated every five years or so,

Hess says.

The recreation commission will have a budget of about $140,000 this year, up by about $2,000 from 1987, Hess said.

Much of the money comes from the city general fund, he said, which keeps fees down and keeps activities accessible.

Grange holding Valentine dance

Barnard Grange will host a Valentine's dance at the Grange Hall at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 13. Music for square and round dancing will be by Jasper and the Tag-alongs, supplemented by visiting musicians. A potluck lunch will be served.

Congressman holding 'town meeting'

Congressman Robert Davis will be in Charlevoix on Friday, Feb. 12, to meet with constituents in a "town meeting."

The event will begin at 8 a.m. at Nanny's Old Place on Ferry Avenue and last for about an hour.

Davis is holding a series of similar meetings in Charlevoix and Emmet counties that day. The congressman is a Republican from Gaylord.

First foot care clinic set for senior citizens, others

The first Charlevoix Foot Clinic sponsored by District Health Department No. 3 will be held next Tuesday, Feb. 16, from 9 a.m. to noon at the American Legion Hall on Garfield Street.

The clinic will be conducted by Pat Wakulat, R.N., and there will be an $8 fee for treatment and advice. Patients are asked to take their own towel.

According to Wakulat, the service is designed to help people who are unable to take care of their own feet because of poor vision or orthopedic conditions that come with age or health disorders such as diabetes.

"We evaluate the feet, provide nail care and refer the patient to a doctor if necessary. We also teach people how to care for their feet and nails properly. This is important to foot comfort," Wakulat said.

Future foot clinics will be held on the third Tuesday of each month. Phone 547-6523 for an appointment to next week's clinic.

Neighborhood Watch starting

A Neighborhood Watch training program will be conducted at the Hayes Township hall on old U.S. 31 and Burgess Road at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 23.

Residents of the township may attend the training session conducted by Deputy Sherry Martin.

The Neighborhood Watch program is being organized at the request of residents concerned about malicious destruction incidents in the area.

Right to die, living wills topics of discussion group

The Focus discussion group will talk about "Living Wills and the Right to Die" at its February meeting.

The location and time have been changed from those of previous sessions. The meeting will run from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Feb. 20, at Edgewater Inn's conference room.

A continental breakfast, for $1.50, will be served.

Three speakers will take part in the discussion.

Dr. Tom Tomlinson, assistant coordinator of the medical humanities program at Michigan State University, will speak on euthanasia and the moral questions raised by scientific improvements in sustaining life.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public
If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet; 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. WP54, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free (800) 527-9700, ext. WP54.

City fights Army on pier

corps has said it cannot make recreational changes, but must make only navigational decisions.

This recent policy is one the city would like its congressional delegation to fight. Recent pier projects in Port Austin and Lexington included catwalks, said Jerry Rakoczy of the DNR fisheries station in Charlevoix.

Other group of residents, led by Ranger and Bruce MacArthur, pushed for retention of the present look of the pier.

"I'll bet one half of you have a picture of this view at home: And people in St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit have pictures of it, too," said MacArthur.

The board of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, which MacArthur is president of, wrote to the corps following the hearing to voice its concern that the present pier shape be retained.

Besides loss of fishing and alteration of a historically significant structure, KCB cited loss of 100 feet of beach, uncertainty over the effectiveness of the wave buffer and unknown disposition of 8,500 cubic feet of sand to be removed during construction.

There was little argument the pier needs repair. Wiesner said century-old wooden cribbing underneath is tilting toward the channel.

And the lighthouse has a noticeable list of 6 to 7 percent off plumb. The corps has said it will lift the lighthouse off the pier and reposition it straight on the renovated surface.

A two-inch change in a building plan is sufficient to allow reconsideration by the zoning board of appeals, the city's attorney and planner say.

The alteration - reducing the length of a porch overhang from 8 feet to 7 feet, 10 inches - sends a Bible Baptist Church request back to the zoning board next week.

The church was turned down by the zoning board in its first attempt to put a covered porch on the front of the May Street building.

Citing a zoning ordinance provision that would allow neighbors to extend their buildings as far as the church did without having to ask approval, the zoning board rejected a front yard variance request.

This upset Mayor Ralph McRae, who has criticized the zoning board for granting major variances on large projects and for turning down smaller requests.

So McRae approached the Rev. James Green, suggested he alter the proposal a little, and the mayor paid the $75 fee for resubmitting the plan.

"He might have said something like let's make a change and see what we can do," said Green. "The mayor has a real heart to help people who have a hard time with government."

Green said the church has been part of the community for 32 years - "a lot longer than condos" - and is only asking for a small change to make going to church a nicer experience in poor weather.

City planner Gerry Harsch said he approved reconsideration of the proposal because "people need a chance to be heard."

The city zoning ordinance says a request cannot be heard for a year after being denied unless "newly discovered evidence or changed conditions warrant such reconsideration."

Green said he was not aware of that requirement.

McRae said his prime interest is in getting a fair shake for the church.

Because the proposal was "reduced by a small dimensional amount," Harsch said, resubmission was appropriate.

"There was a certain amount of political pressure applied," Harsch said, though he later said, "I wasn't suggesting there was any inappropriate political input."

City attorney Jeff VanTreese supported Harsch's decision to allow resubmission, saying it didn't matter how large or small the change was.

The city planning commission endorsed the plan the first time through the process last fall, but rejected it in January.

The same reasoning given by the zoning board - precedence for neighbors to add on - in its first vote was used by the planning board in its recommendation for denial.

The request goes back to the zoning board at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 17, in City Hall.

While Harsch approved resubmission of the request, his paperwork for the zoning board indicates he does not favor granting the variance.

"This variance could very well be considered contrary to the public interest," his "findings of fact" worksheet states, "as it would allow an intrusion into the front yard which is not enjoyed by others...."

Since the request was first turned down by the zoning board, three of its five voting members have changed.

Power out 3 hours on cold night

A power failure in a large section of the city's north-side when the temperature was hovering near zero plunged the area into darkness for three hours Saturday, Feb. 6.

Park Avenue was also affected.

The power was off from 7:15 until 10:20 p.m. while a city utility crew searched for and then repaired a damaged line that fed the area, Ed Whitley, utility superintendent, said.

The area affected was from the bridge east to Meech Street and north as far as city lines go, Whitley said.

The line that feeds the area begins at a sub-station on Ferry Avenue and goes to the north-side via Belvedere Avenue and Bridge Street, a distance of several miles.

Whitley said the crew checked the line at the midway point, found the difficulty was in the area between the sub-station and that point and worked backwards until the trouble was located on Ferry Avenue where underground cable comes to the surface. At that point, the underground cable had been burned off, probably due to an overload, he said. The repair work took 30-40 minutes, Whitley said. The remainder of the time was spent searching for the damaged area.

Whitley said there are about 24 places where the underground cable comes to the surface.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Boy Scout Week February 7-13

"I think it's probably the most worthwhile youth program for boys that there is," said Louis Edwards, who celebrates 30 years as Charlevoix's only Scoutmaster. In part, it is this belief in the merit of scouting that has kept him involved for so long.

"Scouting has a little bit of everything: It encourages the boys to participate in their own religions; it promotes patriotism and citizenship in particular; it promotes leadership abilities and sports also ... it's got everything," Edwards reaffirmed. He emphasized that the real idea behind the Boy Scouts is the good citizenship training they receive. By participating in camping, and other activities that appeal to boys, they are learning the citizenship and leadership skills for which the Boy Scouts are so well noted.

"For instance, when they go camping, they plan their own menus ... in other words, the boys are supposed to pretty much run the troop," Edwards continues. And they learn. They have guidelines, of course, and if they make a mistake, Edwards views that as an opportunity to learn.

Many boy scouts begin as cub scouts. According to Cubmaster James Mansen, Charlevoix's cub pack consists of nine dens made up of six to ten boys, plus a den of 18 WEBELOS ("We'll be loyal scouts."), a group of fourth- and fifth-graders preparing to be boy scouts. The cub scouts march in the Memorial Day and Venetian parades, hold an annual popcorn sale to raise funds, and participate in the Klondike Derby where they display winter skills such as fire building and campsite set-up.

such as fire building and campsite set-up.

As the boys grow older, the number of boys who participate dwindles. There are currently 22 scouts. "I wish there were more," mused Edwards, who seems to understand the many pressures on today's youth. "There are so many things for kids to do these days. The folks just have to draw the line somewhere."

This year marks the 78th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America. Charlevoix's troop began 48 years ago when, in 1939, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club began sponsoring a Boy Scout program. The Scouts will receive their awards and celebrate the anniversary along with their parents, scouting officials, and members of the Kiwanis Club at the annual Boy Scout banquet on March 2 at 6:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School cafeteria.

Eagle Scouts

The Eagle Scout is, according to Scoutmaster Louis Edwards, "the highest award a boy can earn as a scout. For every 100 boys that join scouting there are about two that will make it."

To reach Eagle Scout status, a boy must earn his way through six ranks over a period of at least three years, though it usually takes four years or more.

During this time the scouts need to earn 21 merit badges as well as complete a service project for the community. They earn their badges by demonstrating a knowledge and proficiency chosen from one hundred different subjects such as first aid, citizenship, safety and swimming.

FAMILY

Sandwich sale aids family of ill boy

A submarine sandwich sale to benefit four-month-old Cody Louiselle, who is awaiting a bone marrow transplant at University of Iowa Hospital will be held by United Methodist Women.

The group will take orders for 10-inch sandwiches filled with ham, turkey, salami and two kinds of cheeses, which will be delivered Friday, Feb. 19.

Orders are being taken until Tuesday Feb. 16. They may be picked up at the church at 104 State St. from 11 a.m. until noon or 4 to 6 p.m. Friday, Feb. 19. The cost will be $3 each.

Sandwiches may be ordered by calling Cheryl Yingling at 547-2654 (church) or 547-5168 (home).

Cody, son of Richard and Sue Louiselle, was born with a rare genetic disease, osteopetrosis, which requires a bone marrow transplant.

The family left for Iowa City last week after a donor was found. They have medical insurance to cover the operation but, being self-employed, are enduring other costs themselves.

The event attracted from 200 to 225 patrons who contributed $30 in addition to the cost of the breakfast.

Spencer-Witthoef wedding

Amber Jayne Spencer and Marvin J. Witthoef were united in marriage Saturday, Jan. 23, at First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Gary and Carla Spencer, and the bridegroom is the son of Iyan and Lucy Witthoef, all of Charlevoix.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Philip Schairbaum before family members and close friends.

For the occasion, the bride's aunt, Joan Wagner, decorated the altar with arrangements of flowers. She also fashioned the bridal bouquet and corsages for parents and grandparents.

Michelle Witthoef assisted the bride as maid of honor and A. J. Witthoef was best man.

Music for the ceremony was provided by the Rev. Schairbaum, who played the guitar and sang, "The Wedding Song."

The bride's parents hosted a dinner at Argonne Supper Club, with Lynette Webb serving the wedding cake assisted by Courtney and Mandy Webb. A wedding reception is planned for a future date.

"To be a Christian without prayer is no more possible than to be alive without breathing."

—Martin Luther

The other day a woman asked me what I thought about intercessory prayer and whether I believed it really makes any difference. My response was that I certainly do believe it makes a difference in ways of which we have no understanding.

I have been on both ends of intercessory prayer and can vouch for its effectiveness.

When I am prayed for, I have a strong sense of the wideness of God's goodness and mercy. When I pray for others, I have a deep sense of God's nearness and love. In both cases I myself am drawn closer to God, which perhaps is the best reason for prayers of any kind, and their best outcome.

Many wonder what is best and right to pray for. I have found the guidance of Phillips Brooks very helpful:

"Do not pray for easy lives; pray to be strong men and women. Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers, but pray for powers equal to your tasks. Then the doing of your work shall be no miracle, but you shall be the miracle. Everyday you shall wonder at yourself—at the richness of life which has come to you by the grace of God."

A shorter, one-liner from Soren Kierkegaard is easier to remember: "Prayer does not change God, but changes the one who prays."

In that way, Martin Luther was on to something very important when he talked of the need for us to pray as often and as naturally as we breathe. He was simply rephrasing the Apostle Paul's message to "pray without ceasing."

So I offer you encouragement to begin, or continue, in your prayer life, including intercessory prayer. It is a wonderful way of keeping in touch with God and allowing God to keep in touch with us.

When the world falls down around you

And a prayer will see you through,

Say an extra prayer for someone

Who may need it more than you.

For who knows what hearts are breaking

In the silence of the night?

Just that extra prayer you whisper

May help someone see the light!

Everytime you help a stranger

With an extra prayer or two—

You are building secret blessings

That will all come back to you!

Gaylord upsets league-leading Rayder cagers

The league-leading Rayder basketball team was handed an unexpected 63-60 loss by Gaylord.

After getting off to an early 8-2 lead, the Rayders trailed 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and continued to trail until the 2:40 mark of the second quarter when Roger Smith gave them a 27-26 lead.

Scott DeYoung added three points on a field goal and a free throw for a 30-27 halftime lead.

Gaylord's Curt Krajniak took over in the third quarter scoring 15 points. But DeYoung kept pace with 13 points.

Dan Drury left the game in the period with a facial laceration which sent him to the hospital for stitches.

The last of DeYoung's points in the period gave the Rayders a 50-46 lead as the game went into the last eight minutes.

The Blue Devils then romped to a 60-53 lead before Charlevoix started a comeback effort. A three-pointer by DeYoung plus a bucket by Cory Battle trimmed the margin to 63-60 at the buzzer.

"Our defense caved in. While Chad DeVries had 18 rebounds, DeYoung 10 and Roger Smith eight, we were not rebounding as well as we have," said coach Jim Kanine. "We had plenty of shots but they weren't going in. The loss of Drury hurt us but it was the loss of our good defense that made the difference."

"Gaylord earned the game. DeYoung played a good all-around strong game. We played as well as we could. It just wasn't good enough."

Charlevoix scored 24 two-point field goals to 16 for Gaylord. The Blue Devils made four three-point shots to one for Charlevoix. However, 22 personal fouls by Charlevoix to 14 by Gaylord gave the visitors an opportunity to overcome the deficit at the free throw line. Gaylord made 19 of 28 free throws while Charlevoix connected on nine of 17 attempts.

DeYoung led the scoring with 33 points while DeVries had 11. Owen Phillips had seven assists and five steals.

Cory Battle bats the ball away from a Gaylord player near midcourt. Battle retrieved the steal and scored on an unchallenged lay-up.

Volleyball team loses to Grayling

The Charlevoix volleyball team dropped its varsity game to Grayling 3-1 and the JV game 3-0.

Top setter and offensive player was Billie Jean Habel and top server and defensive player was Laura Bartley.

The scores of the JV matches were 15-3, 15-11 and 16-14.

The top setter and server was Tricia Sutton, the offensive player was Jodi Klyczynski and the defensive player was Cookie Lundy.

Boy skiers 2nd, girls 4th at Manistee

The Rayder girls ski team placed fourth among eight teams and the boys second among 10 at the Manistee Invitational meet at Crystal Mountain.

The girls had 132 points, coming in behind Clare with 82, Traverse City St. Francis with 84 and Manistee with 113. Benzie Central, with 59 points, took the boys' meet. The Rayders had 86.

In the girls meet, Susie Healey placed seventh in the slalom and 17th in the giant slalom, Allison Boyer was ninth in slalom and 14th in giant, and Carla Hoffman was 11th in slalom.

Cynthia Boydston finished 12th in slalom and 13th in giant and Lisa Guidi was 27th in slalom.

Charlie Wittthoef placed first in the slalom and second in the giant slalom, Heath Moore was fifth in slalom, Dan Bickersteth was third in slalom and 16th in giant.

Jake Smith was 20th in giant, Matt Miller 14th in slalom and 24th in giant and Chris Seymour, 10th in slalom and 32nd in giant.

JVs clip Gaylord in basketball

The Rayder JV's posted a 70-39 victory over Gaylord. In a game that saw the Rayders outscore Gaylord 28-17 from the floor, Charlevoix took an 18-8 first period lead, built it to 34-15 at halftime and 50-31 going into the final eight minutes.

The Rayders were successful on 14 of 24 free throw attempts while collecting 13 personal fouls. The Blue Devils connected on five of 21 free throws and made 21 personal fouls. Webb Friedly paced the scoring with 23 points. Chad DeYoung and James Corwin contributed 10 points each.

Freshmen fall to Gaylord

Charlevoix's freshman basketball team dropped its game to Gaylord 47-39.

After taking an 8-7 first quarter lead, the Rayders were outscored 21-11 in the second period to trail 27-19 at halftime.

Wrestlers finish 6th in conference meet

Charlevoix finished sixth in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference wrestling meet at Potoskey.

Grayling won the meet, setting a meet record for points.

"The team wrestled well but, as the season has gone, so went the meet," said coach Greg Bryan.

"We can prepare for the expected but we can do little against the unanticipated."

"Despite everything, the team has improved their wrestling skills and will be ready to go head to head with anyone in the districts."

Bryan said the conference meet was filled with surprises and upsets. "Some matches were as exciting as the state finals, and the quality of wrestling in our league speaks for itself in the state qualifying tournaments," he said.

Charlevoix came out of the tournament with one first place winner, junior Jason Whitley, two second places and a third place.

Whitley (145 pounds) eliminated his first two opponents by pins in a combined time of 28 seconds to take on Tim Collins of Grayling, a state qualifier last year. Whitley won the match 8-2.

Junior Scott Novotny (119) and senior Jim Tilton, wrestling in the heavyweight class, placed second. Tilton, wrestled in a class above his normal weight.

Jamie Montlieth, who was seeded first, lost in the semi-finals. His usual weight class is 155 pounds but he moved to 167 to strengthen the team.

Senior Derek Dutcher (198) lost a close overtime match and aggravated a back injury suffered in a traffic accident. As a result, he removed himself from further competition, though he had been a state qualifier last season.

Others who participated were Matt Harblson (112), 1-2; Brian Livingston (126), 1-2; Brian Darrah (132), 1-2; Steve Hopkins (138), 1-2; Robin Mervyn (185), 0-2.

Yachting Notes

Greetings from the Polar Icecap.

It is somewhat difficult to begin a plan and prepare for the 1988 boating season when it's 5 degrees outside and Channel 7 tells us that we can expect another week of the same. It makes it a little difficult to seriously contemplate bottom paint and rubbing compounds.

The CYC board of directors, however, will receive from Race Chairman Mike Miller a tentative race schedule at its February meeting Thursday night. While the official dates will be published next month, plan two tune-up races May 4 and 11 which will prelude the Spring racing series beginning Wednesday, May 18.

It is believed that Dave Irish's Pied Piper and Joel Altman's Michigan Crude will be regular participants in each series this year, vying against Gary Gleason's Sorcerer and Dave Strawbridge in Pygmalion.

Hopefully, now that the Lake Charlevoix Plan is complete, John Hall can resume his racing in Tigger which should provide us with more than a few of the bigger boats that we missed last year.

The Lake Charlevoix Invitational is scheduled for June 4-5 and the LaBlance Memorial Cup for July 9-10. The Irish Cup follows on July 16.

An informal winter educational program will begin at the CYC Clubhouse on Saturday, Feb. 13, with the showing of a John Rousmaniere videotape "Heavy Weather Sailing" at 7:30 p.m. BYO. Snacks will be provided. The public is invited and it's free.

In April, Dave Irish will teach us how to fly our mains and genoas, dust off the log book, renew that FCC VHF license and meet us at the club Saturday night to begin another great year of boating in Northern Michigan.

So shake off those cabin fever blues, dust off the log book, renew that FCC VHF license and meet us at the club Saturday night to begin another great year of boating in Northern Michigan.

Till then, watching the western skies,

Villager Pub led 16-13, 30-25 and 55-34 by quarters.

Skiers 2nd in 5-team meet

Charlevoix boys and girls ski teams finished second behind Petoskey in a five-team meet at Schuss Mountain.

In the girls' meet, Charlevoix had 60 points. Petoskey took the meet with 38 points while Boyne City finished behind the Rayders with 93 points. Grayling scored 116 and East Jordan 157.

In the boys meet, Petoskey took first with 28 points. Charlevoix had 49 and Grayling took third with 95. Boyne City totalled 121 and East Jordan 198. "We made a lot of mental errors or we might have done better," coach Erik Lundteigen said. "It (the meet) was on a course that required a lot of concentration and ours was not what it should have been."

In the girls meet, Lauren Pace finished first in the slalom and second in the giant slalom. Allison Hall placed second in the slalom and sixth in the giant slalom, followed by Carla Hoffman who was 10th in the slalom and 22nd in giant.

Heather Keller was 17th in slalom and eighth in giant, Allison Boyer 19th in slalom and 14th in giant, Susie Healey 19th in slalom and Cynthia Boydston 16th in giant.

In the boys' meet, Wes Cumberland was second in the giant slalom and Charlie Witthoef came in second in the slalom and seventh in the giant. Dan Bickersteth was eighth in slalom and 14th in giant, Chris Seymour ninth in slalom and

Problems with reappraisal surface

The resulting error, Moerland said, is more than $118,000.

Other errors Moerland discovered involve misinterpretation of ceramic tile, fireplace and built-in appliance rules set by the State Assessor's Manual.

"I have to assume that these same mistakes or errors are to be found throughout the reappraisal of the city," Moerland said in a letter to council.

Council members told stories of such mistakes as reversed lot dimensions indicating too much frontage, dual-facing fireplaces being counted as two units and ceramic tile being indicated in a bathroom.

Values set in the assessor's manual for items such as ceramic tile bathrooms help determine the overall value of the property. In some cases, credits are to be given if a home does not have an item.

But one council member said he had heard from several residents that reappraisal crews spent little time inside houses they were allowed to enter and did not inspect all rooms.

Council member Butch Russell said he is suggesting that people obtain copies of the worksheets from the assessor's office before the city board of review meets in March.

The worksheets, which cost 75 cents a copy, show how the appraisers graded a property and what calculations were made.

The average assessment increase in the city was 6.7 percent, City Manager Mike Wiesner said, which was within a couple tenths of a percent of the increase the county equalization department was proposing to apply across-the-board.

The city contracted in July with Great Lakes Appraisal Service to reevaluate all residential properties, except condominiums, for $28,000.

Concerns that assessments used in computing property tax payments had become out of kilter since the prior reappraisal a decade earlier prompted the city to enter the contract.

An outside firm was hired so all homes would be evaluated at the same time. City assessor Bob Potter said he could only appraise a portion of the homes in a year, along with doing commercial and industrial appraisals.

Wiesner said Potter double-checked the field work Great Lakes did on about 100 of the 1,470 houses and found it satisfactory.

He did not know how far Potter had gotten in checking the appraisers' calculations, Wiesner said.

Great Lakes would be made to correct any errors before the city accepts its work, Wiesner said. That could involve sending out new assessment notices to replace recent ones, he said, if Great Lakes is found to be delinquent in its work.

The board of review meets March 14-16 to hear complaints from property owners who believe their assessments are too high. Property owners should provide documentation to support their claims.

Bears bounced from town to town

The legendary Polar Bears, probably one of the area's first independent basketball teams, were "born" about the mid-1920's and, according to some residents' memories, played their last games during the 1932-33 basketball season.

The version of the Polar Bears pictured in Charlevoix Yesterday played sometime after September 1928, because that's when Ray Kipke (seated far right) came to Charlevoix.

Gordon "Doc" Todd was a member of the first Polar Bear team: He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1924. Dean Davenport was a '26 graduate, Ted Cooper a '27 graduate and the other players were of a later "vintage," probably 1928 and '29.

Max Novak, who played with the team during the 1929-30 season, recalled that the team was one of the first independent teams in northern Michigan and, at one time, had its own Polar Bear bus, a Dodge vehicle purchased through Brown Motors owned by Benjamin Brown. His son, Floyd Brown, was a member of one of the early teams.

The bus was purchased by local supporters who chipped in to buy it for the team. Max said the manager would schedule a number of games and the team would make a road trip, just like the pros. He said that when he was a member he made one such trip playing at Manistee, Ferris Institute, Midland, Clare and Alpena.

He also said in those days, Charlevoix High School did not have a junior varsity team so the Polar Bears would play either prior to or following the varsity game.

Charlevoix's first honest-to-goodness gymnasium was opened in January 1928. This picture was taken in that gym which is at the middle school.

Prior to that, basketball games were played at Hooker's garage, the old roller rink on the south shore of Round Lake and on the third floor of the Opera House, later the Alhambra Hotel on the south side of Pine River Channel.

Following World War II, the Polar Bears basketball team reactivated and, under the sponsorship of late Mayor John Knight, made a brief comeback.

Basketball has long been a part of the scene in Charlevoix, as the Polar Bears "glory years" attest.

PIER PRESSURE

Replacement design dispute at impasse

City council has changed its mind about what a reconstructed south pier should look like, but not enough for the Army Corps of Engineers to build it.

In siding with fishermen concerned over loss of pier space to drop their lines, council has possibly stalled the project indefinitely, a corps official says.

Ross Kittleman, chief of the Grand Haven area office of the Corps of Engineers' Detroit district, talked council members out of favoring a straight pier.

But he was unable to convince them to drop insistence that a catwalk be built over the opening in the U-shaped structure.

The corps does not have the authority to install a recreational catwalk, Kittleman repeatedly said.

The pier is engineered and would be built in such a way that a catwalk could be added, he said, but the corps could not attach or finance one without approval from a higher authority.

Kittleman suggested that the city work with Congressman Bob Davis in trying to overrule the corps policy.

The city has been in contact with Davis, who listened to community concerns about the corps' proposal at a "town meeting" and checked out the pier last week.

Davis was non-committal during the meeting, but later told City Manager Mike Wiesner to keep him updated on the dispute.

A week ago, council voted to inform the corps it wanted the pier reconstructed in its historic straight configuration. Failing that, council said, a U-shaped pier must have a catwalk to avoid the loss of 225 feet of fishing space.

In its letter to the corps, the council cited concerns about loss of fishing space, loss of beach property, loss of aesthetics and uncertainty over whether the corps' plan to break up wave action would work.

Wave surges into Round Lake are a primary concern that cannot be ignored, Kittleman said. The problem was identified about 15 years ago, he said, and millions of dollars have been spent on solutions.

INSPECTORS: PIER COULD COLLAPSE

The south pier is in danger of collapsing into Pine River Channel at any time, the Army Corps of Engineers fears.

The structure, supported by wooden cribs and rock, is leaning more toward the channel each year, says Ross Kittleman, chief of the corps' Grand Haven office.

Inspections have shown a pattern of deterioration, Kittleman indicated as he leafed through reports from the past decade.

"The section has failed," a corps inspection concluded in January.

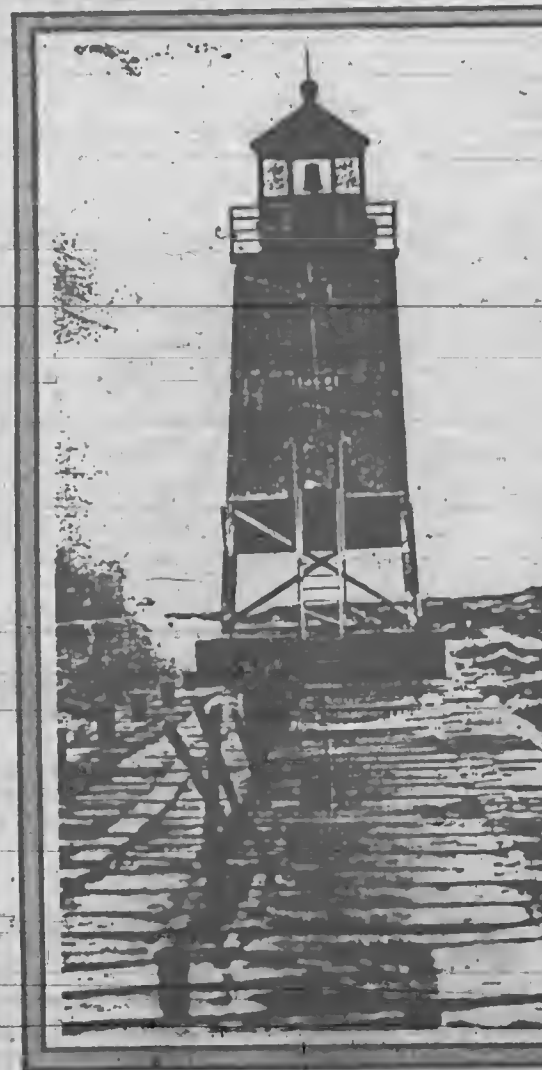

The corps has not posted safety notices on the pier or tried to keep people off it, Kittleman said after council refused to go along with the corps' proposed design for its replacement, but he indicated such actions could come in the future.

An inspection report from 1979 indicated some problems with the structure, while a report from 1983 suggested replacement was needed within one to four years.

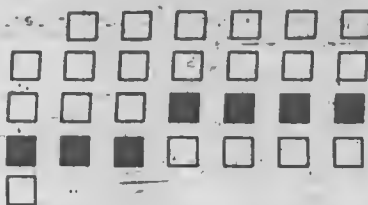

The latest inspection concludes replacement should take place within one to two years.

Kittleman said a major problem would prompt the corps to take fast action to keep the channel clear and safe.

"Decisions would be made quickly," if the pier fell, Kittleman said, indicating that the already designed U-shape pier city council is objecting to would be a logical choice for prompt reconstruction.

Scoring fluke prevents try for 5th state title

Charlevoix's performing arts team will not compete in the state drama championships this year.

Both Charlevoix and Ishpeming's Westwood High School, tied for third place in regional competition, did not receive enough total points to continue in competition, despite receiving a No. 1 rating.

Charlevoix has captured the state Class C-D championship the past four years.

Coch Coach Connie Ford said her team—which had "given us our best performance ever of 'West Side Story'"—was deeply disappointed by the judging results.

"It's hard for the team because they gave a superb performance. They were defeated by a quirk of judging," Ford said.

Ford said judges in the regional at Midland, where Charlevoix competed, apparently gave lower scores across the board than judges in other regions.

Despite scoring an overall 1 and accumulating 256 out of 300 points, Charlevoix finished with fewer total points than other regions' schools—including St. Johns, which Charlevoix defeated in district competition two weeks earlier.

"When the public sees our performance in Charlevoix the weekend of Feb. 27, they will understand what a great show this production of 'West Side Story' is," she said.

"F.L. Dammann and Jennifer Bonar, as Tony and Maria were absolutely beautiful in the balcony scene and in the final scenes. The audience was clearly moved, people were crying."

"Marvin Witthoef and Christie Coolman, as Bernardo and Anita, were hot. The 'America' scene was fantastic and got audience reaction."

"Jeff Steel and Bob Sell worked well off each other, playing Riff and Action, and Jeff is largely responsible for maintaining the pace of the show."

Ford praised the entire cast. "We scored tops in districts and

AROUND THE TOWN

South Africa calling.... Charlevoix's five-mile petunia bed has attracted attention throughout the United States, but now it's getting international notice.... Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has gotten a phone call from Johannesburg, South Africa, wanting information....

A story in a publication called "Bedding Plants" brought the Charlevoix project to the attention of the South Africans.... The caller wanted data on the "sheer logistics" of the endeavor.... KCB has brochures and a videotape it sends to communities interested in starting a similar program....

The civic organization gets a couple phone calls a month from communities around the United States.... Operation Petunia has been copied in a number of towns, including Cheboygan, which purchased KCB's old watering truck when the new, prize-winning vehicle was purchased....

One town that has done well with its own petunia project is Pierre, S.D., where the governor's wife has been an active participant.... Pierre, which obtained its information on starting a petunia patch from Charlevoix, even won $10,000 from Family Circle magazine for its project.

Remember last fall's talk about whether Charlevoix should try to construct a community conference center?.... Apparently, the experts don't think it's such a hot idea.... They haven't bothered to call back....

Last October Chuck Skelton of Laventhol and Horvath, a large hotel management consultant firm, came to town to talk to city and industry representatives about the opportunities a conference center might present.... The thought, among those who invited him, was that the "shoulder seasons"—those months just before and just after summer tourist times—might be aided if groups could be enticed to hold meetings in town....

They could fill up hotel rooms, eat at restaurants, shop in downtown stores—all during those days when the summer hubbub was missing.... Skelton surveyed existing facilities (Edgewater's conference rooms and Weatherlane's meeting room), talked about the economics involved (great way to bring people to town but lousy way to make money) and promised to get right back with a proposal on how much it would cost to determine whether the market is there....

Harold Krutsch, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, has left several messages at the firm's Southfield office, but Skelton hasn't been interested enough in Charlevoix's possibilities to return the call.... Krutsch says there are other firms providing similar marketing research services if area people want to continue to explore the possibilities.... But there hasn't been much interest shown locally, either.

Proposed spending plan puts emphasis on city improvements

Improving city services and facilities is a major focus of the proposed city budget for 1988-89.

City staff's proposal, which city council is just beginning to review, shows 26 percent of spending going toward construction and improvement projects.

There is nearly $1.7 million in public facilities improvements in the budget. A four-mill tax increase approved last year by council is financing a portion of that work.

Property taxes would decrease by .6 percent to 16.98 mills, with 10.6 mills for operations, the four mills for major street and drainage projects and 2.38 mills to pay off borrowed debt.

The total budget includes expenses of $6.5 million—up from $5.5 million this year. The new fiscal year begins April 1.

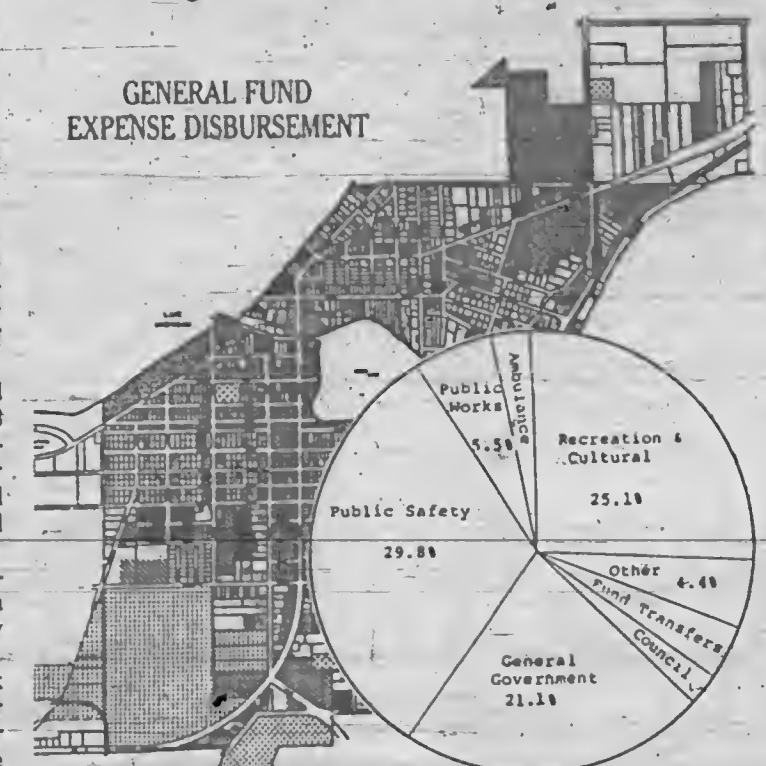

The infrastructure work throws comparisons with prior years out of kilter, City Manager Mike Wiesner's narrative states. The best comparison, the document states, shows normal operating expenses up 4.8 percent.

The largest portion of the proposed capital improvements is in the electric department, which is beginning a major upgrading.

Nearly $720,000 in work includes a new substation, increasing voltage and the first stage of pushing that higher voltage into the system.

There is about $800,000 in the electric fund, so the first-year work can be done without borrowing, Wiesner said.

Infrastructure projects would cost about $800,000. These include Dixon Avenue storm sewer and street reconstruction, residential sidewalk replacement, south of the bridge and construction of a water main under the channel.

About $77,000 would be spent in the Ferry Beach area, mostly on engineering of future projects. A temporary fish cleaning station would be built by the Lake Charlevoix Trout Tournament Association, with the city chipping in about $2,000 in water and sewer work.

And another $100,000 would be budgeted for Downtown Development Authority projects, such as finishing Hoffmann Park, installing south channel walkway lights, designing downtown sidewalk replacement and creating a gravel parking lot on Clinton across from the library.

Mayor Ralph McRae, a supporter of hiring a city engineer instead of farming out the work, noted that engineering costs amount to $255,000.

Several other changes in city properties are anticipated in the budget. These include:

—Creating a temporary parking lot addition at Ferry Beach, while restricting parking in the boat launch area to boaters' trailer vehicles.

—Moving the police department and assessor's office from

'Creepy things' vital to forest

Editor,

Each week I read the Courier and wish I were in Charlevoix to participate in the discussion over the future of that beautiful place. Only in the summer do I have the opportunity to breathe your air and see your lakes. During parts of the year away from Charlevoix, I teach ecology and botany.

I have been and continued to be impressed with the concern for the environment and the understanding of it shown by citizens and reporters alike. Now and then, however, someone says something that cannot be allowed to stand without correction.

I enjoy Bob Clock's column almost every week, but in the Jan. 27 effort he reveals a misunderstanding of forests that could be genuinely destructive. In commenting about all those unused horizontal trees along Highway 31 he suggests that unless the trees find human use they are clearly wasted.

Letters to the editor:

The lesson from ecology is that a forest must be much more than trees. The "bugs and creepy things that live in hollow logs" are what makes the forest healthy and keeps it healthy. The bugs make a living by eating and decaying the logs. The only way there will ever be "enough stove wood to heat all of northern Michigan forever" is if most of those downed logs are left to the processes of decay that constantly renew the capacity of the forest to grow more trees.

Diligent removal of all those "wasted BTU's" would produce a forest gradually declining in its capacity to produce healthy trees, wood for stoves, downed logs, bugs, orchids and all the other reasons that people value forests.

Phone company rings up wrong language

Good Grief! Will someone please straighten out Michigan Bell? The current telephone directory, under Area Facts and Trivia, Page F, states that "Charlevoix means 'City on Three Lakes,' which is an Indian name!"

Charlevoix, as any French student knows, means Charles' Voice, and is named after a French Jesuit priest, Father Charlevoix. It is not an Indian name.

Confusing the French language with an Indian language is an error that should not be committed by a writer. It must have been OK'd by copy readers and editors as well. This points up the unfortunate lack of required basic language education in the American school system. Fortunately there's a move on to correct this. Let's hope the telephone company will straighten out the mistake before the new directory is distributed this spring.

Plowing way to work

No one is keeping score, but with winter winding down it appears that Emmet County is well ahead of Charlevoix County in the annual derby to see which county does the best job of opening up U.S. 31 on the heels of winter storms.

Monday morning was fairly typical of road conditions this winter. Charlevoix County's section of U.S. 31 north of Charlevoix had been untouched by plows when I left for Petoskey at 7 a.m. If you drove faster than 35 mph you were asking for trouble.

Even though school was in session that day and the buses were out, the highway was a nightmare after Sunday night's freezing rain and Monday morning's snow.

But as I approached Bay Shore, I could see a dark ribbon ahead, meaning that Orval Cutshaw, engineer-manager of the Emmet County Road Commission, had had his boys on the job early. The highway not only had been plowed and sanded, but the plows already had started to roll back the shoulders.

You have to be a regular commuter to know what a relief it is to enter Emmet County from Charlevoix County after a snowstorm.

I know Charlevoix County probably has a very good reason for not clearing a main thoroughfare like U.S. 31 before school buses leave the barn, but I cannot imagine what it is, particularly when the safety of school children is at stake.

Chalk one up for the Emmet County Road Commission.

SPEAKING OF plowing, street crews in both Charlevoix and Petoskey have done a fine job this winter.

Petoskey seems to use more salt than Charlevoix, but streets in both communities are usually well groomed by the time rush-hour traffic begins.

Their efforts certainly are much appreciated by early birds.

IT IS ODD the things you learn about people after they die. Take Harold Totten, for example.

Harold worked for the Courier in the late 1950s and was co-owner and managing editor of the paper in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Although I succeeded him a few years later as editor, Harold and I never actually worked together — except at the city garden. The Tottens and the Clocks had plots across the road from each other and I soon learned that if I needed advice on the care and feeding of vegetables, Harold was the man to go to.

But it wasn't until I read his obituary last week that I learned that Harold was a farmer in Norwood Township from 1943 until 1951, before returning to the newspaper business. It's little wonder he knew so much about gardening.

CHARLEVOIX is far removed from Detroit, but I still have mixed emotions about Mayor Coleman Young's plan institute casino gambling — probably on beautiful little Belle Isle in the Detroit River.

When I was growing up in Detroit, Belle Isle was one of my family's favorite destinations on sunny summer afternoons. From where I lived, you could jump on a Grand River street car, transfer to a Jefferson car downtown and minutes later you were at the Belle Isle Bridge.

But you never took the bridge. Instead you'd hop on a little ferry docked near the bridge which would whisk you to the island for a dime.

What followed were hours of tramping through the wilderness, with occasional glimpses of deer and other wildlife, and exciting vistas of the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair.

Belle Isle was a marvelous therapy for kids who otherwise were confined to the sights and sounds of a big city.

I am not against gambling casinos as such, but I am afraid they would destroy the atmosphere of the last scrap of true wilderness in the Motor City.

If Detroit must become a gambling mecca, how about old Corktown, an area already leveled in the name of urban renewal. Besides Corktown is much closer to Detroit's convention hotels, Tiger Stadium, Trappers' Alley and Greektown.

Buffer zone between lake, condos needed

Editor,

I have traveled from Miami to Mackinaw, L.A. to D.C. spoken to hundreds, maybe thousands, of people. Anyone who has traveled to northern Michigan via U.S. 31 remembers vividly the quaint, beautiful city on the lake, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Thirty-five years ago, I had the privilege of working as a bus boy at the Belvedere Club Hotel and spent the entire summer in your city. Since then Charlevoix has had a very special spot in my heart, and I have continued to visit the area two, maybe three times each year.

Which brings me to the purpose of writing this letter. The last few years have brought a tremendous amount of growth to Charlevoix and has probably been a two edged sword. We all know the importance of growth and prosperity. However, I feel the planning and zoning is beginning to destroy the very purpose and reason people have always traveled to and admired Charlevoix.

I urge your city fathers and planners to study and maybe create a buffer zone away from your natural resources, force the condominiums and high rises away from the water's edge, and allow everyone to continue to enjoy the beauty that has made that quaint village we all remember as "Charlevoix the Beautiful," truly that.

Bandshell renovation supported

Editor,

The following letter was written to Michael Wiesner, city manager of Charlevoix.

On behalf of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, this letter will notify you that we support and applaud the efforts of the city and the recreation commission to bring to fruition in 1988-1989 the bandshell in East Park.

This letter will also advise you that we intend to support this project now in the planning stages, and would be willing to help financially so that this can be accomplished at the earliest possible date.

Let me know how we can be of help to you in this most worthwhile project for the enjoyment of our residents, and summer visitors as well.

City, Army can't agree on pier design

A rock formation at the entrance to the harbor and reconstruction of the north pier in a shape similar to, but reverse of, the proposed south pier have helped slow wave action, he said.

A mathematical model proves the design would work, Kittleman said, but council members and some residents remained unsure.

A 12-foot wave would be reduced to 3.5 feet by getting trapped and broken up in the rocks of the two altered piers, the corps engineer said, and smaller waves would be reduced by greater percentages.

Area engineer Al. Ranger reiterated his earlier concern that the corps did not know how well the proposal would work.

Armed with statements he said Cliff Biddick collected from owners of boats docked along the north shore of Round Lake, Ranger said the north pier changes did not appear to work.

Ranger read comments from 11 boat owners who all said the wave surges were no better and perhaps worse since the north pier was rebuilt in the early 1980s.

"This to me is data you can put your hand on," Ranger said. Kittleman acknowledged a problem remains, but said unusually high water last year contributed to it. He said the piers were designed for normal water levels.

He said several alternative options were considered but eliminated.

Kittleman said it appeared unlikely the state Department of Natural Resources would issue a construction permit if the city and corps were not on the same wavelength. Though Mayor Ralph McRae sought approval of the corps' plan — without a catwalk, council members voted that a walkway must be included.

"We cannot proceed. We don't have authority," Kittleman said.

He later said the council's action apparently eliminated concerns over beach loss, wave action and aesthetics, and the corps would meet with Department of Natural Resources officials on the fishing issue.

Kittleman told council it could take a couple years or more to get the project back on the funding list if deadlines, including one in March or April, are not met.

If the money — $4 to $5 million, Kittleman said — is not spent by September, it is lost.

TUBES AND TRACKS

"It's the best one we've ever had. The weather cooperated. The crowds were great. We had lots of participants. It was great," said Bo Boss, general chairman, of the annual Winter Carnival at Mount McSaub. The weekend events were sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

Each of the events attracted a lot of interest, Boss added. Saturday afternoon's activities were devoted to events for younger participants.

Downhill ski races attracted 85 entries. The top placers who received ribbons were:

Under five years - Boys: Troy Smith, 1st; Cody Schofield, 2nd; Darren Strawbridge, 3rd. Girls: Lindsey Carland, 1st; Jenny Wojan, 2nd; Tiffany Fisher, 3rd.

6-9 year olds - Boys: Grant Meggison, Collin Carr, Hunter Christoph. Girls: Chelsea Gorkiewicz, Jenny Hater, Rachel Newcomb.

9-10 year olds - Boys: Kevin Balch, Bobby Christoph, Robby Bunting. Girls: Carolyn Campbell, Sarah Kenney, Heidi Miller.

11-13 year olds - Boys: Steve Kang, Jeff Hoffman, Travis Wood. Girls: Lindsey Tallberg, Jodi Allison, Jessica Kline.

14 years and older - Boys: Jason Pajtas, Will Wildman, Brandon Jess. Girls: Barb Smith, Stacey Bunting, Lisa Guidi.

Cash prizes of $200, $100 and $50 were awarded in the World Thunder Tube races which attracted 35 teams of three.

The preliminaries to determine the top 14 teams required four rounds and 150 runs. The finals required six rounds and 84 runs with the final competition described as fierce. The order of finish was determined in the final run.

Results were - First place: Kevin Swanson, John Whitley and Randy Holecheck; 2nd: Karl Balch, Corey Battle and Larry Mitchell; 3rd: Dave Golovich, Bill Fels and Dan Murry.

The snowmobile hill climb and obstacle course was a new event this year.

The results: Up to 440 cc class: Mike Russell on a 400cc Polaris with a time of 8.26 seconds - 1st; Dave Golovich, 440cc Mercury, 2nd; Karl Balch, 440cc Yamaha, 3rd. 441-480cc class: Larry Farmer, 480cc Phazer, 9.33 seconds; Robert Crandell, 480cc Phazer; Pat Kerr, 480 cc Phazer.

481cc and up: Rich Carpenter of Central Lake, 650cc Polaris 8.63 seconds; Gordon Desch, 600cc Polaris; Tim Novotny, 521cc Ski-Doo.

Russell received a $25 prize for having the best time of the day and Carpenter one for having the crowd pleaser (hot dogging).

Entry fees were awarded as prizes in all events, Boss said.

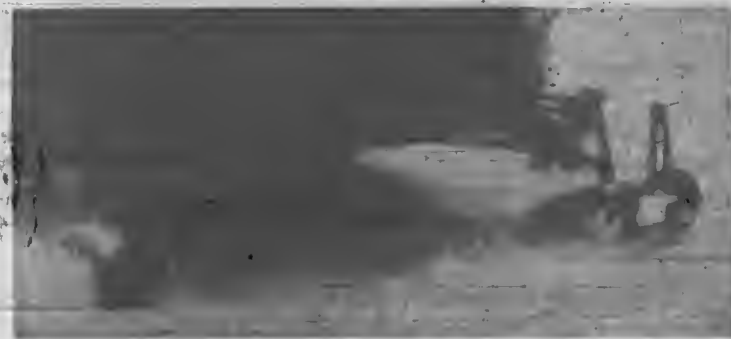

Boss and the McSaub staff of Jim Boss, Kevin Morrison and Ike Boss were assisted by the ski patrol of Pam Bunting, Dennis Carr and Nancy Mikulski; ski racing coordinator Erik Lundteigen and the high school ski team; ski racing timers John Hutchinson and Ron Cox; official scorer Doug Bunting; thunder tube flagman Dawson Way; thunder tube shuttlers Jason Parrish, Tom Herriman and Robby Bunting; hill climb safety lineman, Barry Pfister; and photographer Tom Meggison.

The first-ever snowmobile hill climb drew a large field of entrants, who coaxed their machines to the top of Sulclde Hill on the side of Mount McSaub.

Tube and crew didn't always make it to the bottom of the ski hill at the same time in the Thunder Tube competition.

Ski races for elementary and middle school students drew a large crowd on the first day of the weekend Winter Carnival at Mount McSaub ski hill.

Preliminary runs in the Thunder Tube competition were held under the lights on Saturday night. It took four rounds and 150 runs to whittle the 35 teams down to 14 for the Sunday finals.

Not all contestants in the snowmobile hill climb made it to the top of Mount McSaub under their own power.

Legion halts potluck dinner

Potluck dinners preceding regular meetings of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, and its auxiliary have been cancelled.

Inclement weather and absence of members from the community were reasons for the decision.

The auxiliary will sponsor two girls at the annual Girls State in June. Several applications have been received by chairperson, Nancy Wood.

The auxiliary has been commended by district officers for meeting its membership quota, but several members still have not paid dues.

VFW dinner fetes presidents

Plans have been made for a potluck dinner at 1 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, honoring the birthday anniversaries of President Washington and Lincoln. The dinner is for members of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 1153 and the ladies auxiliary.

The auxiliary will distribute 500 patriotic coloring books to school children.

Seventy-one members have paid their 1988 dues with six unpaid. Members donated 157 hours of community service and 50 hours for rehabilitation during January.

Health club wanted?

Anyone interested in forming a health club is invited to a meeting at Village Inn Pizza at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 18.

The meeting has been called by Sherry Withers who, with Connie Ebenhoe, is interested in determining how much interest there is in starting a health club.

Landfill expansion request formalized

by PEG OHLE

An anticipated request for permission to expand the Charlevoix County Landfill has been received by the County Solid Waste Planning Committee.

Waste Management of North America Inc., new owner of the landfill, presented a letter asking that "the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan, which is being revised, include an additional 60 acres adjacent to the existing Charlevoix County Landfill for expansion of the landfill."

The existing landfill consists of 40 acres off Saunders Road in Eveline Township. The request for expansion calls for 20 additional acres immediately to the east of the landfill and 40 acres to the west of the existing landfill, which would extend it to Brooks Road.

According to an accompanying diagram, slightly less than an acre in the expansion to the west would not be used because it served as a cemetery some time in the past.

According to county planner Larry Sullivan, the Solid Waste

Planning Committee has the power to accept or deny the request for expansion of the landfill.

The decision will be made before the Solid Waste Plan is completed within the next few weeks and will depend on what landfill needs the Solid Waste Planning Committee envisions for the next 20 years.

The meeting is sponsored by Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan, Traverse City.

County bus line, seniors panel getting new home

by PEG OHLE

The county bus station and Commission on Aging will be getting new headquarters.

The county board of commissioners has completed negotiations with the county road commission for the purchase of a 4.3-acre piece of property adjacent to road commission headquarters on M-75 South in Boyne City.

The property will be used for construction of a garage and offices for the transit system and the commission on aging, which are presently located in nearby rented space on M-75.

The new garage and office area will be paid for by a $237,000 Michigan Department of Transportation grant and other state funds for equipment which will bring the total state contribution up to approximately $300,000.

The county paid the road commission "one dollar and other considerations" for the acreage.

The transit system began operation on July 21, 1980. It provides bus transportation by reservation to the general public. Four of the buses are equipped with lifts for wheelchair patients and others unable to negotiate steps.

In the last four months, the transit system provided 24,363 rides, many of which were daily commuters to and from their jobs.

Another large number of rides were provided to clients of the Bergmann Center shelter workshop in Charlevoix, who use the system five days a week.

Other rides went to the general public, including senior citizens, for shopping, medical appointments, visiting and other activities.

The average rider paid 75 cents a ride, based on a mileage formula which also charges senior citizens and children lower fares. Approximately one-third of the riders were senior citizens.

This year's transit system budget is $322,357, with $91,017 coming from county millage, $123,161 from state funds, $50,429 from federal funds and $57,750 from fares paid by riders.

Since the state transportation department provides new buses as the old ones wear out, employee wages are the biggest expense of the transit system.

Budget expenditure figures indicate that transit system employees will receive a total of $166,500 plus $57,575 in fringe benefits during the year.

The employees include the general manager at $16,500; his secretary at $11,500, the supervisor at $8,500, the dispatcher at $21,000, the mechanic at $11,000, and bus drivers at $100,000. Some of the jobs are part-time.

Other major operating costs include $36,000 for fuel oil; $17,000 for insurance; $18,000 for tires and other repair supplies; $14,500 for rentals, building maintenance and utility maintenance and $5,500 for radio communication.

The transit system is managed by a committee consisting of county board chairman Larry Matthews, county commissioner Oral Sutcliffe, county clerk Jane Brannon, Ed Hansen of Charlevoix and Dennis Jason of East Jordan.

Kids stage play, write letters for North Point

To help raise money for the Preserve North Point project, Charlevoix Elementary fourth graders are performing "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Two casts will present the play in the school library, beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25.

After the first cast performs, there will be a short break before the second performance.

Donations will go to the effort to purchase the 23-acre dunes area along Lake Michigan and turn it into a township park.

The Little Traverse Conservancy is spearheading the community effort, which has raised more than $550,000 of the needed $700,000 since October. A $400,000 state grant is included in that total.

The fourth graders are members of Mary Ann Chew's reading class, assisted by Carol Elliot.

Cast I consists of Amy Freidinger as Snow White, Tiffany Karczmarski as the queen, Traci Allison as Lady Margot, Heidi Miller as Lady Sybil, Sarah Lundy and Allison Beatty as Maids I and II.

Also, Larry Tank, Rachel Brown, Mary Beth Gagnon, Lisa Boss, Jeff Boss, Tim Roeth and Jessica Ferber as the dwarfs, Casey Crain as the prince, Seth Kilander as the mirror, Jesse Dibley as the narrator and Jeremy Biggerstaff as project speaker. Prompters are Sarah Borths and Lauren Carey.

Cast II has Maro LaBlance as Snow White, Amy VanGulder as the queen, Jenni Swenor as Lady Margot, Lilly Pair as Lady Sybil, Sarah Borths and Lauren Carey as Maids I and II.

Also, Matt Mosoryak, Jenny Hall, Jesse Dibley, David Bellaire, Noel Kammernann, Kevin Schaberg and Matt Evans as the dwarfs, Rory McKeown as the prince, Brett VanderHeide as the mirror, Saesha Stewart as the narrator and Jeremy Biggerstaff as project speaker. Sarah Lundy and Allison Beatty are prompters.

As part of their project, the students have written letters to area newspapers. Their letters to the Courier follow:

Dear Citizens,
We need $247,900 to save North Point. If we raise that much the Michigan Land Trust Fund will give us the remaining $400,000.

We are putting on a play to raise money for North Point. The name of the play is Snow White. It will be on February 25, 1988, at 7:00 p.m. It will be in the elementary school gym.

I have had some wonderful times over at the dunes. Every year our class goes over there for a nature hike and a picnic. If the land is used to build condominiums and homes are built no one will be allowed to go over to the dunes or the beach.

If you think that only adults can help save North Point, then think again! We are trying our hardest to save North Point, too.

I know that lots of parents take their children to the dunes and the beach. We go there on our boat, sometimes.

Remember that if we don't save North Point now it will never be open to the public for generations to come.

Sincerely yours,
Mark Boss

Dear Citizens,
I am in Mrs. Chew's reading class at the Charlevoix Elementary School. We are trying to raise money to save Mt. McSaub's.

We would really like to save this land. I have heard that Medusa Cement Company has donated fifty thousand dollars and the Michigan Land Trust Fund has offered to give us four hundred thousand dollars if we can come up with three hundred thousand dollars.

So we would like to help save this twenty-eight acres of beautiful natural land.

We are not charging a special price for tickets. We are collecting donations at the door to help save this spectacular place.

We would like everyone to be concerned. We hope everyone will help. This property really means a lot to us. We hope you can help our whole class save North Point. We really enjoy this wonderful land.

Sincerely yours,
Jesse Dibley

Dear Citizens,
Mount McSaub's beach is being sold. It has a two year option - through October 1989. When it is finally sold, private condominiums are going to be built.

To save this beautiful beach, we as citizens need to raise $300,000. If we do raise the money, we will receive $400,000 as a gift from the Michigan Land Trust Fund.

If we as citizens don't try to help, this attractive piece of land will be gone forever.

How many times have you walked on this exquisite area of land? Count the times. I'm sure there are many.

Our reading class is putting on a play February 25, 1988, at 7:00 p.m. to help raise money for the North Point Project. Donations will be collected at the door to help save North Point.

Please donate money or you and many others will never see this beach again.

Sincerely yours,
Lauren Carey

Dear Citizens,
I hope you all know what's going on with the Mount McSaub's dunes. If you don't, I'll tell you. The land might be sold as building lots for condominiums. Then no one could enjoy this beautiful land anymore.

We at the elementary school think it is important to save this land. So we are putting on a play called Snow White. We will be collecting donations at the door for Mount McSaub's.

If we raise the money the land will be saved for everyone and it will be here for people to use for years to come.

What I'm asking for is your support in solving this problem. We need everyone to help by giving donations.

We have until October 8, 1989 or else we can not save the land. The amount of money that we need to raise is $300,000. I know that if we try hard enough we can make it all the way!

Sincerely yours,
Allison Beatty

Dear Citizens,

Mrs. Chew's fourth grade reading class is doing a play in February. We all hope to see you there. We are doing this play to earn money for North Point. We have $300,000 left to earn so we encourage you to help pay to preserve North Point! We have until October 1989 to save up the money or we will lose the land. Medusa Cement Company has paid $50,000 of the money and some of the community has contributed but we need everybody in the community to help contribute! North Point offers something for everyone. The first time I went to North Point I was amazed. I couldn't believe it! It was beautiful!

Development plans were announced, and if we as the community of Charlevoix don't save this beautiful land, then we will only have three beaches left. So please give some money!

If we each give generously then maybe we will earn enough money to save North Point. North Point is very special to me and every year about four classes go to North Point and enjoy the beautiful beach area so let's get all the money saved up so we have four beaches to go to instead of three.

Sincerely yours,
Tiffany Karczmarski

National Children's Dental Health Month

Super smiles in the Super Bowl: Most professional football players wear mouthguards to protect their teeth and jaws. The pros learn to wear them in high school, where they are required.

The first American toothbrushes had natural hog's hair bristles wired into the brush heads. The hogs came from Russia, Siberia, and China because their hair was of the highest quality.

Smile when you say "cheese"—it's good for your teeth! Some cheeses actually help protect teeth from decay. Fresh vegetables, popcorn, and nuts are also good snacks that help your teeth stay strong and healthy.

Sea mussels make a useful sticky substance that's stronger than glue and that works on wet surfaces too. Dentists hope to use this natural "superglue" to fix broken teeth, fill cavities, and seal teeth against decay.

Make your smile its best by cleaning your teeth, eating healthful foods, and seeing your dentist regularly.

The most famous dentist on horseback was Paul Revere. Before he made his famous midnight ride in the Revolutionary War to warn that "The British are coming!" he earned his living as a dentist.

Area dentists observe National Children's Dental Health Month

Charlevoix's four dentists observed National Children's Dental Health Month last week by providing dental screenings for all students at Charlevoix Elementary and St. Mary's Schools.

However, Dr. Jeffrey Porter, Dr. Robert Tollas, Dr. David Strawbridge and Dr. John Merrill do not limit their free services to Charlevoix children to the month of February.

Last summer, they participated in a program of furnishing mouth guards for all Charlevoix High School students who are involved in contact sports, and are planning a similar program for next summer.

During the fall months all five dentists played host in their offices to kindergarten and pre-school children, getting them acquainted with dental offices and dental procedures.

In the East Jordan Elementary School, children are actively participating in National Children's Dental Health Month in several creative ways.

The kindergarten children are coloring pictures with dental themes, those in grades 1-4 are making posters about tooth care, and students in grades five and six are writing essays on the subject.

On Friday, February 26, Dr. John Kempton and Dr. Kevin Steely and their staffs will screen the teeth of all children in grades kindergarten through eight.

The two dentists and their assistants have also talked to several classes during the year and some of the younger children have taken field trips to the dentists' offices.

Boyer City's three dentists, Dr. Richard Fish, Dr. Robert Polleys and Dr. Bruce Stewart will be at the elementary school Friday, February 26, to screen the teeth of the 528 students in grades kindergarten through four.

During the year, the children have also learned about tooth care in their health classes, and kindergartners have visited the dentists' offices.

Throughout the country, school children are learning about brushing, flossing, eating proper foods, and seeing their dentists regularly so they may enjoy good dental health.

the City Hall basement to the old fire garage attached to the governmental building. This is estimated to cost about $26,000.

— Removing the old water tower at an expected cost of $21,000.

— Extending city marina docks to 75 feet in conjunction with changes being made to accommodate the new Star of Charlevoix paddlewheel boat. The cost is pegged at $32,200, with the Star picking up 70 percent of design costs.

— Replacing second floor windows and installing a sound amplification and recording system in City Hall, while making some plantings outside the building. These would cost about $19,900.

— Painting and installing new drapes at the golf course clubhouse at a cost of about $3,600.

Major purchases would include a $55,000 beach cleaner, a $25,000 used electric pole digging and installation truck and a $14,000 police car.

Wiesner and recreation director Ike Boss anticipate renting the beach cleaner to other communities to recoup part of the cost. The Department of Natural Resources has already expressed interest, Wiesner said.

The cleaner would be used primarily at the city's four recreational beaches. It removes debris and rocks to a depth of six inches in the water, Wiesner said.

The budget anticipates putting $25,000 into an aerial fire truck reserve. Last year's contribution was $10,000.

Other predicted major expenses include attorney fees of up to $20,000, purchase of $22,000 in electric department computer equipment and $20,000 continuation of a city-wide tree trimming project begun last fall.

Predicted changes in city services include:

— Replacement of the one-time spring cleanup of major trash items with weekly curbside pick-up. Waste Services, which contracts with the city for the clean-up, has agreed to pick up furniture, appliances and other large items weekly.

— Sewer rates would decrease by 11 percent, while water rates would increase by 23 percent to cover the cost of operating the water treatment plant. Combined, the water and sewer service rates would decrease by nearly 1 percent.

— Mount McSaubia ski hill fees would increase, with the daily rate doubling to $7 and family passes rising on a graduated scale based on size of the family. Even with the increases, Wiesner said, the ski hill would have a $15,000 deficit.

— Marina rates would increase about 5 percent to the maximum allowed by the state, with fees increasing by 50 cents for boats under 20 feet in length and by $1.75 for those over 60 feet. Half-price rates for May and September would be eliminated.

— A $2 per day or $20 per season Ferry Beach boat launch fee would be instituted to pay for an attendant. The attendant would maintain the fish cleaning station and regulate use of the boat launches, which have been the site of complaints about repair work and docking problems.

Thirty percent of the city's general fund money goes for public safety, which includes police, fire, parking enforcement and the planning and zoning department.

The second highest portion, 25 percent, goes to recreation and cultural activities, such as beaches, parks, ball fields, Mount McSaubia, golf course, marina and day camp.

General government takes up 21 percent of general funds money. This includes City Hall, the cemetery, elections, assessing, treasurer and clerk departments and administration.

Public works — including the airport, highway and street care, leaf and brush pick-up and spring clean-up — accounts for 2.6 percent of spending, followed by such things as ambulance service, insurance, city council and odds and ends.

The general fund accounts for 23 percent of the total budget. Self-supporting funds such as electric, sewer and water service account for 59 percent.

Local taxes bring in 49.8 percent of the city's general fund revenue, with charges for services providing another 15.9 percent. State grants account for 14.4 percent of income.

To make up the difference between anticipated spending and expected income in the general fund, Wiesner is proposing to use about $150,000 of $350,000 in accumulated surplus from earlier years.

The remaining $208,000 is well above the $75,000 minimum specified in the city charter and should cover emergencies or cash flow problems, Wiesner said.

The electric fund is the largest city department, providing power to city and some township buildings.

The electric fund is projected to produce $2.2 million in revenues and have $2.9 million in expenses with $720,000 in unused funds from previous years making up the difference.

That $720,000 covers system improvements pencilled in for the coming year.

4th graders ask for help saving dunes

Dear Citizens,
We encourage you to help pay for the McSaubia land.

We as children are helping! We're putting a play on for the city. We're raising money to save the McSaubia sand dunes.

Children from Mrs. Chew's room at the elementary school are all helping raise money to put toward the price of the property.

All children and adults enjoy the McSaubia beach. It's nice to be able to go there and have picnics, to play, and to enjoy nature.

If nobody helps to buy the land, the land will become lots for condominiums and the land won't be open for people to use. We won't be able to go on the land and play or do what we want to do on the beach.

Please help raise money for the McSaubia beach and dunes area!

Sincerely yours,
Lara Tank

Dear Citizens,

We must save North Point because it is a beautiful spot. North Point is a place to have fun.

Development plans were announced which would have divided this beautiful parcel and close it forever to everyone.

If we each give as much as we can North Point will be saved.

Look at all the joy it has brought to the people of Charlevoix.

Your money can help save this beautiful land from becoming a condominium site. The area wouldn't bring joy to many people if it was a condominium site. All that would be left is tears in children's eyes so if you know what I mean, please help save North Point.

Sincerely yours,
Noel Kammernann

Dear Citizens,

We in Mrs. Chew's class want to save the North Point land because it is so beautiful. I encourage everyone to donate some money to buy the land. Almost every kid loves it at the dunes. North Point offers something for everyone. We want your help to save this spectacular resource. If we each give as generously as we are able, North Point will be saved.

Mrs. Chew's reading class will be putting on a play and raise money to help save this special place. The play will be Snow White. There will be pop-corn and refreshments, too. The date is February 25, 1988. Please remember that this project is very special because everyone loves the Lake Michigan dunes.

Sincerely yours,
Maro LaBlance

Dear Citizens,

We would like to save the land near Mount McSaubia so we are having a play on Thursday, February 25th, at 7:00 p.m., to earn money to try to save North Point. We hope you can come to our play.

The biggest gift of money so far is $50,000 which came from Medusa Cement Company. The total money needed was $700,000. Now all we need is $300,000 because Michigan Land Trust Fund is giving $400,000 if we can raise $300,000. The money is due October 1989. We hope you can help us raise the money because children love the beach and it's a good place for walking, jogging or just plain fun.

If we can't save the land by raising money people will build single-family houses or condominiums on it. Please help us raise the money to save a very special place.

Sincerely yours,
Rachael Brown

Dear Citizens,

We are doing a play called Snow White. We will be performing the play on Thursday, February 25th, at 7:00 p.m. We would like to invite everyone to our play who is interested in saving the dunes. We are doing the play for a fund raiser to help save the Mount McSaubia beach.

We have received many donations. So far the largest donation received is a $50,000 gift from Medusa Cement Company.

The Mount McSaubia beach is known for its uniqueness and beauty.

If you just think grownups are trying to save this land you're wrong. We want to help save our special place, too.

The money has to be in by October, 1989.

The Michigan Land Trust Fund has offered to give $400,000 if we can get $300,000.

I have had such wonderful times on that beach. I will never forget walking, swimming, playing and going with my class to the dunes.

Come on, Charlevoix! We have to save that beach!

Sincerely yours,
Jennifer Swenor

Car dealership gets new location, name

The new name is Charlevoix Chrysler, Plymouth, Dodge.

The former Village Car Care not only has a new name but it has moved to a new location on U.S. 31 South, just south of McKeown Ford, in the remodeled Waun Electric Co. building.

The new location is not accidental because Pat McKeown of the Ford dealership has assumed some financial interest in the Chrysler dealership.

As McKeown explains it, he bought the property next door, renovated and enlarged the old building, hired the Village Car Care employees en masse, quadrupled the car inventory, doubled the parts inventory, and in so doing gave a lot of local tradesmen some work.

"We believe that since we want local people to do business with us, we should do business with them," McKeown said as he noted that 80 percent of renovation work was done by local businesses, including Site Planning Development and Bartlett's Interiors.

"All the building, concrete, plumbing, flooring, everything," he continued.

Mike Carland remains with the new auto agency as assistant general manager, Jim Keller as service director and Ken Weller as salesman.

All the mechanics are also with the newly named dealership. Other employees are Ron Zednick as service manager, and Joe Simons and Scott Harper as salesmen.

The new showroom is bright with new flooring and large enough to show off six shiny new cars. The service department is also large and bright.

McKeown said he believes the Ford and Chrysler franchises are the two best franchises available, and added smilingly that Lee Iacocca thought so, too.

Village Car Care didn't do as well as it should have because of its location, McKeown believes. He said the new Chrysler location will give people a chance to see what they're buying and have available a top-rated service department.

"Chrysler is on the move and I want to move with them," McKeown continued. "I hope to expand further because there's a definite market for their products. Chrysler and Ford complement each other. They're entirely separate."

'Rustbelt' will rise again, county economic group told

The Midwest "Rustbelt" is once again a key factor in the nation's economic strength, a Detroit banker assured Charlevoix County's Economic Development Corp.

Leslie Koska, assistant vice president — business and banking analysis — for National Bank of Detroit, said manufacturers have met the challenge by streamlining operations.

Koska spoke to the annual meeting of the EDC. Members of the organization also heard a report by Richard Beagle, chairman of the Charlevoix-Antrim Growth Alliance.

Officers were re-elected for 1988. They are J. Lee Moerland of Charlevoix, president; Dennis Jason of East Jordan, vice president; John Dixon of Charlevoix, secretary; and Don Voisin of Charlevoix, treasurer.

Although belt-tightening in some cases involved layoffs and early retirements, Koska said the national jobless rate 5.8 percent is very low historically and displaced workers will find jobs in small manufacturing plants not related to the auto industry.

Industrial diversification seems to be taking hold in Michigan, helping the state resist the cyclical influences that once raised hob with the economy, he said.

He said a recent University of Michigan survey indicates that employment in Michigan actually will increase by one-half percent this year, despite General Motors' massive layoffs and the ripple effect such layoffs have throughout the economy.

He added that Michigan's present jobless rate — about 10 percent — will drop to more acceptable levels in a year or so.

He added that he sees 1988 and 1989 as a chance for Michigan to rebuild its economic base, making it even less vulnerable to cyclical influences.

BEACONS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

I came across a scripture the other day by the Apostle Paul found in Romans 1:16, "I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes." This powerful statement has always meant a lot to me. Well, at least the first part did.

But it was just recently that the last part of that scripture came alive to me. I never seemed to attach the gospel and the power of God for the salvation of everyone together. Yes, it was almost 11 years ago that I asked Christ to forgive me of my sins and turned and walked away from a lifestyle contrary to God and the Ten Commandments to a lifestyle pleasing to Him and beneficial to me. Yet I never put the gospel and power of God together.

I know personally how God changed my life. I know of that power. It certainly was not magic and above all not a brain-washing technique used by some holy-rollers. When I asked Christ to forgive me of all my sins, I felt so clean and had this peace and assurance that when I died I would be making my eternal home in heaven. I was changed and still am. I know the power of God for the salvation of Duane Nelson. God has changed me.

However, what did the gospel have to do with it? Here's what one preacher said, "The way to be free is to be a slave; the way to conquer is to be conquered; the way to receive awards is to not care about them; the way to live is to die; in is out; out is in; up is down; down is up. Strange, isn't it? It's the gospel." In essence, the gospel is totally contrary to the world and its standards. But still what did the gospel have to do with the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes?

I understand that the gospel is different from the world. Where the world hates; the gospel loves. Where it is unfair; the gospel seeks justice. Where it has pain; the gospel gives comfort. But what did or does the gospel have to do with the power of God? Wait a minute, I know now! Since the gospel runs opposite of the world, the gospel must be Christ and His death on the cross for our sins.

I see it clearly now. The gospel is the essence of all spiritual, moral, and physical change, and Christ and His death on the cross is the same. It is by Christ's death on the cross that there is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes. God came down to death as the Christ child that is like man becoming a cockroach. God gave up His throne to show up how much He loved us.

Even though Christ did nothing wrong, He was persecuted and hated for His love and mission. He then had to die for the sins of the world although He had none of His own. He was beaten, spit upon, laughed at, struck in the face, and, finally, nailed to a cross. At that some moment, Christ was dying as a sin sacrifice for my sins and your sins.

Christ loved and still loves both you and me and was willing to take all of our sins and die for them. Strange, isn't it? It's the gospel, which is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes.

6 wrestlers qualify for regional meet

The Rayder wrestling team came out of the Class C District Individual Wrestling meet with six grapplers qualifying for regional competition.

Six of the nine who participated advanced to the regional Class C individual tournament at Coleman on Saturday, Feb. 20.

Placing first were Jason Whitley (145-pounds) and Jamie Montieth (155).

Second were Scott Novotny

(119), Brian Livingston (126) and Jim Tilton (138). Jim Marquardt (heavyweight) was fourth.

"As a group we wrestled extremely well with Livingston and Marquardt having their best performances to date," said coach Greg Bryan. Twelve teams participated.

Bryan said Whitley wrestled extremely well. After taking the conference meet last week, he dominated the competition, going through the event with a pin and two technical pins.

Montieth, wrestling at his correct weight, also dominated the competition and pinned his final opponent.

Novotny lost in the finals 7-0 after winning two tough matches, Bryan said.

Livingston defeated two opponents before losing.

Tilton, wrestling with a rib injury, fought off two tough opponents before losing in the finals, Bryan said.

Marquardt defeated his first opponent before losing to the eventual champion. He then won his first match in the consolation bracket before losing in the finals.

Bryan said freshman Matt Harbison (112) wrestled as well as he had all season but lost twice; Brian Darrah (132), another freshman, lost his second match in overtime but did very well; and Robin Medvyn (167) was eliminated by two losses.

Under a new state format wrestlers had to compete in pre-district qualifying rounds for the first time.

The Rayders were among four teams competing in pre-district competition, qualifying 10 for district action.

Besides the nine who competed at the district, Steve Hopkins (138) earned the right to advance.

Rayders take 3 1sts in league ski meet

Charlevoix skiers took first place in three of four events at the conference ski meet.

Two skiers from the boys' team and two from the girls' finished among the top 10 in the Northern Michigan Ski Conference meet.

Results of the meet past the top 10 have not been made available by host school Gaylord, coach Erik Lundteigen said, apparently because of a computer problem.

Lauren Pace finished first in both the slalom and giant slalom while teammate Allison Hall took fifth in the slalom and third in the giant slalom in the ten school meet.

Other skiers were Carla Hoffman, Heather Keller, Allison

Boyer, Cynthia Boydston and Susie Healey.

Wes Cumberland took first in the boys slalom and third in the giant slalom while Charlie Witthoef came in second in the slalom and sixth in the giant slalom.

Other team members were Heath Moore, Jake Smith, Dan Bickersteth, Chris Seymour and Matt Miller.

The Charlevoix girls team finished third with 76 points. Petoskey was first with 60 points and Harbor Springs second with 69.

In the boys' meet, the Rayders finished fourth with 109 points behind Petoskey with 56, Gaylord with 72 and Harbor Springs with 96.

Charlie Witthoef, shown in an earlier race, placed second in the slalom and sixth in the giant slalom at the conference ski meet.

Last-minute Rayder shot holds off Rogers City

A basket by Bob Jess with 12 seconds on the clock salvaged an important 54-52 win for the league-leading Rayders from upset-minded Rogers City.

The field goal came after the Hurons, playing before a homecoming crowd, came from behind to tie the score or lead by one point three times in the closing minutes.

"They never let up, they never panicked, they never quit," Rayder coach Jim Kanine said of his team who rallied under pressure. Charlevoix had two starters on the bench with five fouls, when the Rayders pulled off the victory.

"We missed a lot of easy shots, we weren't able to adjust to their changing defense and we didn't get into the flow but we pulled it off," Kanine said.

Scott DeYoung made numerous key buckets and Owen Phillips played an exceptionally good game, he said.

After trailing 4-2 early in the game, Charlevoix scored 14 straight points to surge to a 16-4 lead midway in the period. The Hurons closed the margin to 16-9 at the quarter.

Rogers City tightened the score to 23-27 at halftime.

The Rayders pulled ahead 37-29 in the third period but Rogers City poured in three buckets in the last 23 seconds to trim the lead to 40-38 at the end of the period.

From then on, the battle was on. Phillips scored at 6:32 but Chad DeVries fouled out soon afterwards.

After the Hurons cut the margin to 42-41 at 5:42, DeYoung was fouled and made both ends of a one-and-one before two Rogers City field goals put the Hurons ahead for the first time.

DeYoung scored but the Hurons countered. DeYoung was fouled and scored on both shots before Dan Drury drew his fifth foul.

Rogers City went up by two before DeYoung scored again another Huron bucket tied the score 52-52 with 1:04 left.

Both teams missed baskets in the scramble that followed before Jess scored. Rogers City called time out but was unable to score.

The Rayders' margin of victory came at the free throw line, where they scored on 12 of 24 shots, while scoring 21 field goals. Rogers City made 20 two-pointers and one three-pointer from the floor but only three of 11 from the line.

Rogers City committed 17 personal fouls, one more than the Rayders.

DeYoung had 20 points, 11 rebounds, two assists and six steals. Phillips scored 10, had six rebounds, two assists and four steals.

DeVries had 20 rebounds, Jess three assists and Drury two assists and three steals.

Good defense leads Rayders to victory over Harbor Springs

Charlevoix returned from Harbor Springs with a 54-43 win in a game that saw the Rayders play good defense but miss a lot of shots.

Both teams sputtered in the first period with the Rams taking a slim lead before the Rayders assumed a 13-9 advantage at the quarter.

From then on the Rayders kept a comfortable lead, 28-20 at halftime and 39-30 going into the final period.

Outscored from the floor, the Rayders made up the difference from the line, scoring on 17 of 28 free throw attempts and attracting only 13 personal fouls.

The Rams made 21 personal fouls as they battled for the ball and were successful on seven of 13 attempts from the free throw line.

The Rayders made 14 two-point field goals and three three-pointers while the Rams made 16 two-pointers and one three-point shot.

Drury signs to play at Grand Valley

Rayder quarterback Dan Drury, 18, has signed a letter of intent to play football at Grand Valley State College.

Drury signed a national letter of intent — which locks him into playing at the Allendale school — on the first day seniors could announce their intentions.

He is the first Charlevoix High student to sign a national letter of intent since Mark Beaudoin, who played football at Michigan State University.

Drury is one of two quarterbacks Grand Valley signed.

Among those on hand for the signing was Pat Battistini, assistant coach at Grand Valley, who said Grand Valley uses multiple offenses, running and passing from several formations.

After being sidelined early in his junior year with a shoulder injury, Drury last fall led the Rayders to a 6-3 season.

He completed 74 of 133 passes for a 56 percent completion rate for a total of 1,175 yards. This resulted in a 131-yard per game average, 14 touchdowns and six extra points. He was intercepted three times.

The 6-3 Drury weighs 195 pounds and is a good student. He will study business at Grand Valley State.

Drury also plays basketball and is a member of the track team. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Condit Drury.

He had been contacted by Illinois State, Ferris State and Michigan Tech and had been in touch with Eastern Michigan University.

County child care costs slashed

by PEG OHLE

Once criticized for having one of the highest child care costs in the state, Charlevoix County Juvenile Court has cut costs by $317,263 in two years to the lowest figure in northern Michigan.

Brad Campbell, juvenile court administrator, says for fiscal year 1986-1987 Charlevoix County paid $151,021 to care for its neglected, abused and delinquent children.

Costs for nearby counties were: Antrim, $219,629; Emmet, $225,042; and Otsego, $183,228.

Charlevoix County costs included $44,000 for care of state wards, $63,802 for family foster care, $11,025 for private institutional care, and $32,192 for in-home care.

In discussing the dramatic drop in child care costs, Campbell said, "We were high before because of out-of-home placement of our children."

"The actual decrease has been caused by our alternative programming for treatment: our in-home care program, our diversionary program, our volunteers in probation, our parenting program, our alcohol abuse classes, and the protective services program of the Department of Social Services."

"They have all served to cut the costs of out-of-home placement because it is now necessary to place fewer children in out-of-home facilities."

Campbell added, "For the last two years, I've said if they let us get our programs started, the programs will impact and bring the figures down. I feel real good about this but have one word of caution."

"We must continue our diversionary and counseling programs to identify problems. We are dealing with sexually and physically abused children. They have been involved in school break-ins, car vandalism and other serious offenses."

"If we don't have these alternative programs, we are ignoring the problem and have to put the children in foster homes. If we continue the programs, the children will be in good shape and we will have proven the programs to be cost-effective. Right now, however, we are stuck with 15 counseling sessions for each child. We don't want to become so cost-conscious that we offer inferior services and neglect the child."

FRAN MARTIN

North-side garage served Inn crowd

There's talk of converting the structure on the north side of Cherry Street between Meech Street and Central Avenue into an apartment building.

When the building was constructed in the mid-1920's, it was known as the Inn Garage and housed cars of guests at the nearby Inn Hotel spread between Chicago Avenue and Cherry Street at the end of Dixon Avenue.

It was an impressive structure, painted solid white, dominating the entire acreage.

You see, this was during Charlevoix's "glory days" as a summer resort when even the guests at the hotel had chauffeur-driven cars.

Those were the days of the Hupmobile, the Pierce Arrow and the sporty little Stutz that was the fastest thing around. These were cars with lots of brass and trim that needed a full-time attendant to keep them polished.

Bob Gill recalls those days, telling me that his brother Albert, better known as "Tubby", served as a "go-fer" at the hotel, all decked out in a bellhop uniform.

Among his many jobs was driving guests' cars from the garage to the hotel if they didn't have a chauffeur.

Tubby, of course, was too young to have a driver's license but that didn't seem to matter. Bob said he and his brother, Ben, would come around and Tubby would let them ride over to the hotel with him in the fancy cars.

"We felt like millionaires. It was the only time I ever rode in some of those cars which aren't around anymore except in museums or owned by a collector of antique cars," he said.

Then came the Great Depression of the 1930's. Many of the patrons of the hotel fell on hard times. With the demise of the Inn Hotel as a summer hostelry and the garage, too, fell upon bad times.

At one time the garage was the site of a summer theater. Another time it housed polo ponies when games were played on a field just south of it. And it has been the site of various industrial ventures.

More recently it's been used as a storage building with the surrounding area cluttered by trash among the many weeds that have taken root in the once well-groomed lawn. Its windows have been broken and its paint weather-beaten—a far cry from the day when it was "Queen of the Block."

The Inn Hotel was once a dominant structure at the end of Dixon Avenue, one of several large tourist hotels in the city. The Inn's former garage is now the proposed site of an apartment building. ## Recreation 5-year plan in works Recreation has been a major element of Charlevoix life for the past century.

Golf was played on the Chicago Club course in the early 1890s. Michigan Beach and Ferry Avenue Beach appear on the earliest city plats.

Over the years, facilities and services have been added — ultimately sprinkling the landscape with 150 acres of outdoor recreation sites.

These days recreation accounts for 25 percent of the city's general operating budget and is responsible in great part for the city's tremendous appeal as a tourist attraction.

Now the city recreation commission is turning its attention to the future. Having completed most projects in its eight-year-old master plan, the commission is beginning to construct a new plan.

A call for public comments on what improvements should be made to parks and recreational facilities in the next five years yielded no response.

But members of the commission, recreation director, city manager and mayor have put together a first-step list of possible goals.

These suggestions will be reviewed by the commission and packaged in a proposal for city council to review.

The commission is an advisory panel to the city council. Its chairman is John Hess and members are Erik Lundteigen, Henry Wagner and Marilyn Gib-

Variance guidelines

Guidelines for looking at zoning ordinance variance requests will be given to the zoning board of appeals at its Wednesday, March 16, meeting.

The zoning board has been at the center of controversy for about a year over approval of applications to build beyond zoning law restrictions.

The mayor, some city council members and a number of residents have been critical of the number and size of changes allowed — particularly on large projects.

Two long-time members of the zoning board were not reappointed when their terms expired at the end of the year and recent appointees have indicated a greater reluctance to grant variances.

In response to criticism and to confusion over what should be considered when determining whether a variance should be granted, city planner Gerry Harsch is putting together a set of guidelines.

Harsch said the guidelines should help the zoning board, the planning commission, the city council and the general public follow the prescribed procedure.

The planning commission reviews variance requests and makes recommendations to the zoning board. Council has no power in variance matters.

In order to grant a variance, the zoning board must satisfy five conditions and one of three others.

The general conditions that must be met are that the request not be contrary to the public interest, not permit a use prohibited in that zoning district, not occur so often that a general regulation should be formed, not cause adverse effects on neighbors and relate only to the property in question.

One of these three conditions must also be met: practical difficulties or hardships (other than financial) make it unfeasible to carry out the strict letter of the ordinance, extraordinary circumstances apply only to the property in question, or the variance would preserve a substantial property right possessed by other properties in the same zoning district.

Council to manager: Cut budget 20%

Sllice the city general operating budget by 20 percent, city council members are telling the administration.

The $1.5 million spending plan, as proposed by City Manager Mike Wiesner, is up 4.8 percent from the present year's budget.

The general fund includes governmental services such as police and fire, streets and airport, recreation and elections, City Hall and insurance.

Not included are electric, water and sewer services — which are self-supporting, or the five-year infrastructure (road, sewer and sidewalk) reconstruction project.

Council's request to cut the budget came at the end of a 1½-hour review of the general fund proposal.

Four of the five council members at the meeting supported putting the knife to the document.

Bill Haggard said council members were taking things out, yet putting others in. Earlier, council agreed to order a new police car for $14,000, money for which was in the proposed budget.

Earl Muma led the call for cuts, with Shirley Roloff, Butch Russell and Norm Probert agreeing. Not all agreed on who should do the cutting, with Muma saying Wiesner should and Roloff saying council should.

Mayor Ralph McRae suggested a six percent cut.

Wiesner said cutting the budget by the amount the council members were asking would necessitate laying off people — next year, if not this.

"You're saying you want to cut $140,000 you've been spending right along," Wiesner said.

There's not a lot that can be cut without hurting services, Wiesner said. He said four percent of the 4.8 percent increase is in wages and fringe benefits Volunteers make sandwiches at the Methodist Church to raise money to aid the family of Cody Louiselle, who is in Iowa to receive a bone marrow transplant.

Sandwiches make $1,700 for Cody's family

One hundred and seventy-four pounds of ham, 87 pounds of turkey, 87 pounds of salami, 65 pounds of Swiss cheese, 65 pounds of American cheese, 1,000 submarine buns and hours of donated time add up to $1,700 to help a small Charlevoix boy fight for his life.

That was the accomplishment of the Women's Society of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, which, with help from some men, prepared and sold 1,000 submarine sandwiches in one day.

The $1,700 profit from the sales will go to the parents of four-month-old Cody Louiselle, son of Richard and Susan Louiselle of Charlevoix, who is in the University of Iowa Hospital receiving bone marrow transplants for a life-threatening condition called osteopetrosis.

Cody's grandfather, John Smith, was among those making the submarine sandwiches.

He expressed deep appreciation not only to the church workers, but also to the American legion, which donated proceeds from one of its Saturday morning pancake breakfasts, and to the Barnard Grange, which held a fundraising pie sale at Oleson's and a Valentine's dance.

Sleigh rides through Barnard area fields attracted 80 Grange members and friends. After the sleigh rides, a spaghetti dinner and Valentine dance were held with the proceeds donated to the Cody Louiselle fund. A pie sale by the Barnard Grange also raised money for Cody's family.

"We want to thank everyone connected with these projects,"

Smith said. "We are keeping a prayer vigil."

The family has insurance to pay for the transplant, but money is being raised to help them pay expenses other than hospital costs.

Congressman getting involved in dispute over pier catwalk

Congressman Bob Davis has become the focal point in the city's attempts to retain room for fishermen on a reconstructed south pier.

The city council and Army Corps of Engineers are at loggerheads over the project, which the corps wants to begin this summer.

The pier is in jeopardy of falling into Pine River Channel, the corps has determined, and money has been authorized to replace it.

But the corps' design — which incorporates a U-shaped, rock-filled wave dampener — does not sit well with council or area fishermen.

About 225 feet of fishing pier would become unaccessible because of the rock formation — a point neither side disputes.

But the corps says about 1,000 feet of fishing space has been added in recent years with reconstruction of the north pier and construction of walkways to the bridge.

While Ross Kittleman, chief of the corps' Grand Haven office, says the design would accommodate a catwalk for fishermen, it is against corps policy to install recreational devices on navigational structures.

City council, however, says it cannot endorse the project without a catwalk. Originally, council wanted a straight pier, but apparently is satisfied the U-shape is proper.

Without city consent, Kittleman said, approval of a construction permit by the state Department of Natural Resources is doubtful.

This is where Davis may be

AROUND THE TOWN

If you're leafing through President Reagan's proposed 1989 budget and come across $351,000 for Charlevoix, don't get too excited.... The money's not anything new....

Listed in the request for Army Corps of Engineers money is $3.3 billion in civil works projects.... And listed under that is $36.3 million for 30 waterways projects in Michigan.... In that list is $351,000 for Charlevoix harbor....

But the money is just a portion of that projected for the $4 million renovation of the south pier into Lake Michigan.... If a project cuts into more than one budget year, explained a spokesman for the Corps construction operations branch in Detroit, funding gets sliced into annual pieces in the budget.

The plug remains pulled in Lakes Michigan and Charlevoix, where lake levels dropped another two inches in January.... The water level is now 20 inches below where it was last January but 10 inches above the long-term January average....

At 578.75 feet, the lakes are expected to remain above the long-term average during the next six months, the Army Corps of Engineers says.... But they have fallen steadily since reaching damaging high levels two summers ago.... By the end of July, both lakes and Lake Huron are predicted to be about four inches below where they were in July 1987.

What's right and what's legal

Editor:

As a sometime resident and fulltime taxpayer of Charlevoix who keeps abreast of its affairs through the Courier, it came as a shock to read that the City settled a lawsuit on terms which will "remain confidential." ("Condos OK, other accord terms secret" — Feb. 3.) In my book anytime a municipality settles a lawsuit it is a matter of public business and nothing agreed to should be kept from the community. Some explanation should be forthcoming — in the pages of the Courier.

Yours truly,
Avern Cohn
Detroit

Dear Judge Cohn:

There are a lot of people around Charlevoix who agree with you but find there's a difference between what's right and what's legal. As a federal district judge, you may have found yourself in a similar predicament.

With a dispute as hot as the Pine River Channel condominium issue, full public disclosure of the resolution seemed the only just ending. But a portion of the mediated settlement keeps the public from being informed about what is clearly public business (and what the public paid for).

The city was sued, along with a private developer, by a neighbor — later joined by an environmental group — upset with the idea of having a hotel next door.

The hotel proposal was the centerpiece in a bitterly contested battle over control of the waterfront, a skirmish with repercussions for all residents and friends of Charlevoix.

At issue, you'll recall, were several decisions made by the city zoning board of appeals during the six-month controversy, which drew a number of normally private residents into the public arena. Even the members of the zoning board are being kept from knowing if their decisions were upheld, overturned or altered.

Those who proposed mediation as a way to prevent a long, expensive court fight did not dream the public would be deprived of insight on what was decided about views, height, density, lot coverage — all basic elements of the dispute.

The agreement that terms of the settlement would "remain confidential" has even kept the public from knowing which party in the suit requested the secrecy.

Lawyers for all parties would say later only that "one party requested" the secrecy and the others agreed. Some sounded as if they reluctantly agreed, but, reluctant or not, they have become a party to an injustice.

We know this pledge of secrecy isn't right, but is it legal? The state attorney general's office says it is. Since the attorney general is one of the strongest voices in favor of the open flow of information from government to the public it serves, we can be assured they looked long and hard for a way to unseal the settlement.

Anyone who violates the confidentiality agreement could be found in contempt of court, an assistant attorney general says. Court rules are more powerful than Freedom of Information laws.

A couple of the lawyers involved suggested some of the terms of the agreement would become obvious as the building is constructed as a condominium — the one piece of information they did let out was that no hotel would be built. But those of us without engineering degrees may never be able to determine just what was agreed to.

It appears our only hope of finding out what really was decided would be for "one party" to have an attack of conscience and get the confidentiality lid lifted. But that doesn't appear too likely.

We can only hope it wasn't the city — which is entrusted with serving the public — that requested that confidentiality.

Darn good pair of socks

When it comes to darning socks, two schools of thought prevail.

The first claims that socks grow more comfortable with age and should be nurtured as long as long as possible, even if it means darning over darns.

The second maintains that a sock with a hole in it is an abomination against nature and should be thrown out.

I am a student of the first — and more sensible — school.

Judy belongs to the second school. If she had her way, I would spend all my pocket change on new socks, like Henry Ford.

Normally Judy wins our sock wars and my cherished footwear ends up at the Charlevoix County Landfill with our tin cans and the spent catsup bottles.

But Sunday I was recovering from a nasty head cold and didn't feel much like re-pointing the bricks in the chimney or remodeling the back porch — things I normally do on weekends. Instead I decided to go through my sock drawer to see how many socks needed darning. I found a few pairs so asked Judy for some darning cotton and the darning egg I bought her several years ago for Mother's Day. I was surprised she knew where they were since she uses them so seldom.

After about an hour's work, I had six pairs of almost new socks which would have been relegated to the trash bin without my timely intervention. I used to have an aunt, Lorelle Winter, who did a darn good job of repairing socks, if you'll pardon the expression. When she finished, you really had to study the sock to decide where the hole used to be.

My mother wasn't nearly so good at it, but she's the one who taught me how to darn before sending me away to school. Like mother, like son, I never became a really proficient darning; but when I finish the threads sort of criss-cross, giving the patch a woven effect.

Generally, however, the darned area looks more like the handiwork of a drunken spider.

Although my darning cotton doesn't always match the color of the sock, who cares? Very few people — aside from Judy and the cat who sleeps in my sock drawer — see me with my shoes off. Furthermore, I view a neatly darned sock as a sign that someone cares about me — even if it's only myself.

Some folks apparently have very sensitive feet and simply cannot wear socks with darns in them. I remember one of Henry Ford's biographers — I think it was his aide and jack-of-all-trades Harry Bennett — telling how his old boss couldn't stand wearing darned socks. Henry's wife, Clara, however, was a motherly sort of person and loved to darn. She often sent Henry off to work with a patch in his footwear.

Mrs. Ford, of course, was very poor and could not afford to lay out good money for new socks like you and I can. Harry Bennett used to pick up Henry at Fairlane in the morning and drive him to the Rouge complex. Their route took them down Michigan Avenue past a conveniently located dime store in East Dearborn.

If Henry were wearing one of Clara's masterpieces, he would have Bennett park the car and go in and buy him a new pair of socks, which he would change in the car before reaching the plant. Presumably he threw the old ones away.

Did Clara ever wonder what became of all of Henry's darned socks? Bennett doesn't say; and at this late date no one is talking. Bennett's biography, We Never Called Him Henry, is riddled with holes like that. It's too bad Clara didn't get her hands on it before it went to the printer.

My mother wasn't nearly so good at it, but she's the one who taught me how to darn before sending me away to school. Like mother, like son, I never became a really proficient darning; but when I finish the threads

Congressman avoids ethics question

Editor,

An interesting example of how an audience can be manipulated occurred at a town meeting hosted recently by Congressman Bob Davis.

He was asked if, in light of public concern about the need for greater ethics in government, would he be willing to renounce the campaign contributions he receives from military contractors; presumably because of his membership on the House Armed Services Committee.

He emphatically replied, "absolutely not! I have a philosophy of a strong defense" and went on in a rah-rah fashion to repeat how the contractors shared his philosophy of a strong defense. When reminded of the tremendous profits involved, he declared that businesses have a right to make profits.

His statements received applause and few seemed to notice that Rep. Davis had not responded to the issue that was raised — improving ethics in government.

To his credit he did give up $3,000 — from Wedtech after a scandal erupted involving the firm. But why not follow the example set by some other members of the HASC who refuse such contributions?

Petoskey News-Review reporter Shelley Deneau is right when she says political action committees (PAC's) contributions need to be limited. Military contractors have exerted undue influence in our unprecedented peacetime military buildup.

How true, as Plato said in 388 B.C., "Endless money, the sinews of war!"

Barbara MacArthur

Thanks for helping Cody

Editor,

Thank you, Charlevoix! Your support for the Cody Louise benefit submarine sandwich sale was tremendous.

We are very grateful to all you wonderful people who had a part in the benefit. Because of your overwhelming support, we were able to deposit a check for $1,700 in the Cody Louise Fund.

We would like to say a special "thank you" to every business.

A special "thank you" to Oleson's Food Store for their support and donations and to the Oleson employees who ailed 330 pounds of lunch meat. Another special "thank you" to Kwikie Duplicating for generously providing all our publicity. Also a big "thank you" to VIP for their generous contributions.

Whether you were a worker, bought sandwiches or donated in some other way, we thank you for your outpouring of caring and love for little Cody. God bless you all.

Council orders manager to trim 20% from budget

probably account for most of the rest.

Muma was upset by Wiesner's suggestion employees may be laid off, quickly responding, "Then maybe we should look at laying off the manager."

Roloff said half the cuts could come just from two items — not buying a proposed $55,000 beach cleaning machine and cutting a planned reserve for future purchase of an aerial fire truck from $25,000 to $10,000.

Probert argued against moving the police and assessor's offices from the basement of City Hall and into a remodeled former fire garage. The $26,000 move would only be the first step, he said, as more garage space would be needed when the aerial truck is purchased.

McRae said engineering costs were too high for such projects as the infrastructure work, electrical system upgrading, Ferry Beach improvements and downtown sidewalk replacement.

Muma said he thought a four-mill tax increase for infrastructure work was supposed to cover costs of those replacement projects. He questioned why Wiesner is proposing to use $70,000 in general fund surplus from previous years to help pay for the second phase of the program.

Wiesner said council's earlier stated desire to remove a normal 60 percent homeowner share of sidewalk replacement costs meant $180,000 in added city costs.

The general fund would continue to have a $208,000 surplus, Wiesner said. That build-up from previous years is about 15 percent of the budget, he noted.

He said general fund revenues have been increasing by only 2.3 percent in the past five years.

The council and manager will continue their discussion of the budget at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 29. A public hearing is scheduled for Monday, March 7.

The budget year begins April 1.

Congressman's office awaits response

able to help resolve the impasse.

Although Kittleman says it is unlikely the congressman could get the corps to change its policy, he says the corps "might respond within the framework of that policy" to come up with a remedy satisfactory to the city.

The city wrote to Davis this week to clarify its position, and fisherman Jim Withers talked with a key Davis aide.

"We are at the mercy of Davis right now," Withers told the Courier. "We've done all the pushing we can."

He said he hopes Davis' office can break the logjam in a week or so. "We don't want to stretch this thing out."

Don Wickersham of Davis' Escanaba office said the congressman is awaiting a response from the corps to a letter he wrote a week ago. When they get a return letter, he said, the congressman's staff will have a better idea what to do.

Wickersham said Davis' involvement could end up being a phone call to the corps' commander in Detroit, requesting the corps do whatever it can to help out.

In the past the corps has been responsive, he said.

If the recreational aspects of the project are a small percentage compared to the commercial ones, Wickersham said, it is possible the corps might be able to build a catwalk. If the project were mainly a recreational one, he said, there would be a problem.

Kittleman talked with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's president, Bruce MacArthur, about concerns the civic group had on beach loss, wave action curtailment and aesthetics.

Both said those concerns appeared resolved.

Recreation wish list forming

bons. Ike Boss is recreation director.

In looking at various city recreational sites, the commission produced this initial list of dreams, ideas and suggestions:

Ferry Beach — Continue to push major changes in park which failed to receive state funding this year. Changes proposed this year include installation of temporary fish cleaning station, separation of boaters' and beach parking lots, hiring attendant to supervise launch ramp use and set launch ramp user fees. Proposed future changes include relocating Ferry Avenue, moving play area, renovating launch area and developing new portion north of main park.

Ice rink — Leave in middle school location. Renovate concession stand.

Ball fields — Construct small practice and T-ball field. Construct new concession stand and announcers' booth for large field. Pave, curb and gutter parking lot. Install sprinkler system.

East Park — Renovate bandshell. Install sprinkler system from Memorial Park to Hoffmann Park. Leave shuffleboard courts. Remove parking behind stores.

Hoffmann Park — Complete project underway.

Bridge Park — Improve park.

Water tower — Tie-in with walkway along south shore. Convert into observation stand. (City is exploring offer received since recreation commission hearing to remove tower at one-fourth budgeted cost this spring.)

Michigan Beach — New shuffleboard courts. Pave parking lot in water plant entrance area. Clear foliage for view of lake from Park Avenue. Leave wooded trails alone.

West end of Pine River Lane — Plant flowering bushes along hillside on channel.

Father Charlevoix Park on West Dixon — Maintain. No changes.

Depot Beach — Picnic tables. Open bathrooms at night. Storage building. Portable dock. Playground equipment.

Public walks — Improve signs along Michigan Avenue indicating two walkways to Lake Michigan.

Golf course — Install sprinkler system. Berrin area between first hole and road.

Tennis courts — Maintain. Shrubs adjacent to courts.

Eight acres off McSaubia Road behind second green of golf course — Figure out what to do with property.

Mount McSaubia — Widen cross-country trails to 14 feet to allow use of groomer. Connect cross country trails with golf course trails. Establish joint master plan with North Point. Explore possibility of expanding ski hill. Pave or boardwalk to Lake Michigan from parking lot.

Comments from residents are still being sought as the commission begins to formalize its proposal.

Upset zoning board resolves church porch dispute

A compromise has been reached in a dispute over a church porch overhang.

But the accord didn't come until after members of the zoning board of appeals made it clear they didn't like zoning matters being turned into political matters.

A request by Bible Baptist Church on May Street to install an eight-foot by 11-foot open-sided porch roof was rejected last fall.

But Mayor Ralph McRae took up the church's cause, saying the zoning board went out of its way to help large developments and gave small projects a hard time.

McRae approached the church's pastor about changing the plan slightly, paid a $75 filing fee and contacted city planner Gerry Harsch about putting the matter back on the agenda.

Normally, there is a year's wait before a request can be re-heard by the zoning board after being turned down.

Harsch approved reinstatement of the request, saying a two-inch change in overhang dimensions was sufficient for a re-hearing.

Several members of the zoning board weren't so sure, though. Alternates Joan Wagner and Hagan Manker both questioned whether the board should re-hear the request.

Commission chairman John Dixon's motion to not hear the request again was unanimously approved.

After the vote, the commission worked out a compromise with the Rev. James Green that will allow a four-foot porch roof.

Manker, who was a voting member in the absence of another, and Kevin Whitley objected to the compromise.

Manker asked what hardship or difficulty was involved — a question often asked by the mayor and city council members critical of variances allowed on hotel and condominium projects.

Improved aesthetics were cited by the members voting for the compromise as their reason for approval.

Voting for the four-foot variance were Dixon, Bob Kern and Patty Sitzema.

County cuts back law library orders

The law library in the County Building is overstocked with law books and legal treatises, including many that the county is not required to provide.

County Clerk Jane Brannon, designated law librarian, has received permission from the county board to discontinue buying some volumes.

"We have 16 sets of books for which we are paying for annual updates," Brannon told board members. "We should go by the State Court Administrator's minimum standard recommendations and buy only those books that are required."

"We are now paying between $6,500 and $8,000 a year for law books. Cutting down this way will save us about one-third of what we are spending."

While the law library is used mainly by local attorneys, it is really set up for public use, Brannon said.

Official Notice

5 lawyers to defend crime suspects

Five Charlevoix County attorneys have signed an agreement with the county board to represent criminal defendants in court.

John Michael, Timothy Arner, Gordon Boydston, Mark Muniak and Kevin Klevorn will receive a total of $63,500 during the year.

Each attorney will receive a monthly check for his share, based on the amount of time spent in defense activities.

For felony cases which last beyond two days, the attorneys will receive $35 an hour, beginning with the third day.

The representation agreement calls for the attorneys to represent "criminal defendants, persons 17 and older, charged with offenses under the State of Michigan, including probation and parole violations, through final disposition by sentence or dismissal."

This system of court-appointed attorney representation was started two years ago in an effort to reduce the cost of providing legal representation to defendants as required by law.

County-wide zoning law top priority for planning unit

by PEG OHLE

Completion of a county-wide zoning ordinance is high on the agenda of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission in 1988.

The agenda was presented to commission members at a recent meeting and approved as a guideline for the work schedule of the County Planning Department.

Other items on the agenda are:

- Adoption and publication of the Lake Charlevoix Management Plan;

- Completion, adoption and publication of the Solid Waste Management Plan;
- Writing of a county-wide Land Use Plan;

- Development of and suggestions for a Transportation Plan (U.S. 131 expressway and road improvements);
- Updating the Economic Development Corporation brochure and development of plans for the Economic Development Corporation.

County Planner Larry Sullivan said his department is continuing to receive requests for a county-wide zoning ordinance, or an ordinance that would be available for those communities wanting to use it.

When the county-wide ordinance is completed, it will provide an option to each township to maintain its own ordinance or adopt the county-wide ordinance, which would make for uniformity in administration and enforcement.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Plan is the culmination of three years of work by a special committee which worked under the guidance of the Planning Department.

It is now up to each concerned unit of government to adopt all or selected portions of the plan to help protect its lake and surrounding areas.

The major portion of work on the Solid Waste Management Plan has been completed by a special committee which is headed by Planning Commission Chairman Tom Wieland.

Questions of alternative methods of waste disposal, such as incineration and recycling, remain to be addressed, as does the question of how much and for how long the Charlevoix County Landfill should be depended upon.

Band Day prize list continues to grow

Merchant support for the second annual Band Day fund-raiser has been excellent, says prize committee chairman Connie Hudson.

At least 23 businesses have donated prizes for the Friday, Feb. 26, event. The drawing is being held in conjunction with the annual spaghetti dinner in the high school cafeteria from 4:30 to 7 p.m.

Also included in the Band Day are a pep assembly featuring band students, a basketball game halftime show and a 50-50 drawing.

Money raised through the events will be used to build a uniform replacement fund and to send senior band members on a weekend trip.

Last year, the Band Boosters were able to put $6,000 in the uniform fund.

Topping the list of prizes in the fund-raiser again this year is $500 from Medusa Cement Co.

Three $100 savings bond prizes have been donated by LexaLite International, Kit Carson Lumber and Michigan Scientific. First of America Bank, Charlevoix County State Bank and First State Bank of Charlevoix have donated $50 savings bonds.

Other prizes include: Toshiba boom box radio from McLelland's Furniture, $25 gift certificate from Barb's Hallmark Harbor, quartz wall clock from Heritage-Federal Savings, two prizes of dinner for two at Village Inn Pizza, dinner for two at Nanny's Old Place, four prizes of large pizza from Pizza Hut.

God will credit righteousness for us who believe in Him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead.

Earlier in the chapter (verse 5) it says "...to the man who does not work but trusts God who justifies the wicked, his faith is credited as righteousness."

We do not become righteous in God's sight by our own efforts—that's self-righteousness. We are credited for righteousness by believing God and receiving Christ as personal Savior. It's a "credit," an unmerited, undeserved act of God's grace!

God wants to credit your account with righteousness! Will you believe Him?

"Your account has been credited," the statement reads. It's always great news. It's good to learn that you have more than you thought you had. It's especially good news when it's unexpected, or better yet, undeserved.

The Bible talks about an unexpected and undeserved credit on someone's account. The first time it's mentioned is in the very first book of the Bible. Abram is the name of the fortunate individual. The Bible says, "Abram believed the Lord, and He credited it to him as righteousness."

God credited Abram's "account" with some very unexpected and undeserved "righteousness" simply because Abram "believed" God. The Bible word for this kind of a transaction is grace. Grace is simply undeserved or unmerited favor. Abram's account was credited with righteousness because he believed.

Another time the Bible tells about someone's "account" being credited with righteousness for just believing in the book of Romans. The fourth chapter of Romans refers again to the original transaction of grace that God made with Abram, and then goes on to say that God is prepared to make the same gracious credit to our accounts!

In Romans 4:23 and 24 it says, "The word 'it was credited to him' were written not for him alone, but for all of us, to whom

STATE-BOUND

Pace, Hall lead girls, Cumberland qualifies

Led by Lauren Pace and Allison Hall, the Charlevoix girls ski team has earned a berth in the state high school championship meet.

Also competing in the state event will be Wes Cumberland, who will ski as an individual.

Pace—a state champion last year—captured first place in the slalom in 58.19 seconds combined time and giant slalom in 42.41. The senior did not start competing until mid-way through the season because of an injury.

Hall made it a 1-2 Charlevoix finish in the giant slalom with a 43.49 and turned in a strong sixth place finish in the slalom in 62.02 at the regional at Schuss Mountain near Bellaire.

Cumberland's first place in the slalom in 53.74 and second in the giant slalom in 41:45 earned him a spot in the championships even though the boys' team's fourth place finish was not good enough to advance.

The top two teams in each regional go to state as do the top four individuals not on advancing teams.

The state meet will be held on Monday, Feb. 29, at Marquette Mountain in the Upper Peninsula.

The Rayder girls placed second in the regional to Harbor Springs. Harbor Springs finished with 61 points, Charlevoix had 93, Petoskey 129 and Traverse City 130. There were 13 teams in the competition.

Charlevoix totaled 49 points in slalom and 44 in giant slalom.

The Rayder boys—placed fourth among 17 teams with 175 points. Traverse City with 55 and Petoskey with 89 advanced to the state finals. Gaylord finished in third place with 123 points.

Charlevoix had 97 points in slalom and 78 in giant slalom.

Lauren Pace races down Schuss Mountain on her way to a double victory in the regional ski meet. Pace, a state champion last year, began the season at the mid-way point following an injury.

Allison Hall finished second and sixth in the regional finals to help Charlevoix's girls advance to state competition.

Wes Cumberland finished first in the slalom and second in the giant slalom. He will be competing in the state meet as an individual.

3 wrestlers earn title shot

Two Rayder wrestlers emerged from the Class C Regional meet as champions and a third finished in third place to qualify for state competition.

Regional champions are juniors Jason Whitley (146 pounds) and Jamie Montieth (155). Senior Jim Tilton (195) qualified for state by finishing third.

Whitley as a 38-4-1 record, Montieth 38-8 and Tilton 35-6 for the year. Whitley defeated his first opponent 15-4 and in the semi-finals, technically pinned his foe 18-2 by ending the match with a spectacular five-point throw. In the finals, Whitley took control in the second period, scoring an escape, a takedown and a pin in 3:40.

Montieth pinned his first opponent in 2:30, defeated his second 12-5 and in the finals won on a 4-0 decision.

Tilton pinned his first opponent in 4:25, lost his second match to the eventual champion and won the consolation match 7-0.

Scott Novotny (119) won one match and lost two to close out the year with a 29-14 record. Sophomore Brian Livingston (126) won one and lost two. Jim Marquardt, at 193 the smallest heavyweight in the meet, lost both his matches. Livingston's record is 15-9 and Marquardt's 10-17.

The six had qualified for the regional by winning district tournaments.

Under the authority of Act 230, Public Acts of 1925, as amended, being sections 300.1 through 300.5 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resources Commission, at its September 11, 1987, meeting, ordered that for a period of five years it shall be unlawful to take or attempt to take sturgeon by means of spears from the inland waters of this state, except during the month of February of each year.

This order takes effect April 1, 1988, and shall remain in effect through March 31, 1993.

Health, safety law seminar scheduled

A day-long seminar on the Michigan Occupational Health and Safety Act will be held Thursday, March 3.

The seminar, intended for employers, is being co-sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, other area chambers and Northwest Michigan Industrial Association.

Representatives of the state departments of labor and public health will talk about record-keeping, inspection, enforcement and other segments of the law.

Registration fees for association or chamber members is $25. For non-members, the fee is $30.

The seminar will be held from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn of Petoskey. Registration is limited to 150 participants.

For information call Gerry Smith at 347-5569.

Farm deadlines approach

Charlevoix and Emmet county farmers must speedily report any changes in their farm operations for the 1988 program year to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

For full program benefits, records must be up-to-date. Producers should contact ASCS if a farm will have a new owner this year or if a change is made in the operation of an existing unit.

Plans to combine farms or divide a farm should be requested early because of special processing and county committee approval.

Sign-up for the 1988 Wheat-Feed Grain Program has begun. Farmers who participate will be eligible for price support loans and deficiency payments if applicable.

JACQUIE MERTA

Jacquie Merta is executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

During the last legislative session, Michigan adopted amendments to the Non-Profit Corporation act permitting such organizations to amend their Articles of Incorporation in order to limit the liability of "volunteer directors" for violation of their duties.

Because the possibility of individual liability is of such great concern to board members, many organizations will want to amend their Articles to take advantage of this new law, which became effective Jan. 1, 1988.

This legislation to protect directors' personal liability passed both the Senate and House without a dissenting vote and was signed into law Nov. 16, 1987 by Governor Blanchard.

The legislation is supported by the following arguments:

1. Volunteer directors may be reluctant to serve on boards because they might be exposed to personal liability; therefore, boards would suffer due to the lack of qualified and competent persons serving.

2. Directors' and Officers' Insurance provides coverage when indemnification is not available. Yet, because this type of insurance has become prohibitively expensive, coverage very restrictive, and sources for the insurance scarce, another method of protecting Directors and Officers — such as broadening indemnification — is needed.

3. Allowing corporations to indemnify officers and directors from liability would increase the ability of third parties to receive compensation for injuries.

If you are a Non-Profit Corporation you should consult with legal counsel on the indemnification provisions and on the liability protection, taking special note that protection is provided only when and if your Articles of Incorporation are amended to allow such protection.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This view of Round Lake harbor is part of a panoramic photograph apparently taken in the late 1940s or early 1950s. The present bridge, built in the late '40s, and buildings south of the channel remain in the configuration pictured. But north of the bridge, things have changed. The Argo Mill was

City dump was source of treasures, fun

Solid waste and the problems it creates are in the papers almost every day. Time was when garbage didn't seem to be a problem in Charlevoix. You see, we had a city dump.

The one I remember best was at an old quarry off West Carpenter Avenue not too far past the old Norwood Road before it was called Sheridan Street.

John Sharrow, who lives in the area, said the site was an old limestone quarry where trucks and wagons could back up to the edge and dispose of cargo by dumping it over the edge.

There was always a caretaker who would sort out materials that could be burned, salvage metals or anything else he might have a use for and leave the garbage to the seagulls and the prolific families of rats that were permanent residents.

In fact, most kids who were allowed to have .22-caliber rifles sharpened their talents at the city dump by shooting rats, a favorite pastime on Saturdays.

Louis McKenzie, whose parents had a farm enroute to the dump, recalls how his father leased the land around them to grade his livestock.

The kids were delegated to keep the cattle away from the dump for fear they might get into abandoned paint cans and die.

"We picked up more stuff out there, things that you'd find at a yard sale today," McKenzie recalls. "I knew people who had new furniture in their home at least once a year made possible from furniture 'rescued' from the dump."

Today you hear of people eating food from garbage cans in the cities. In those days there were people who learned what days grocery stores threw out fruit and vegetables too wilted to sell and they'd bring bags, sort through the clean garbage and take the edibles home. It was better than going hungry, McKenzie said.

Then there were the rats, hundreds of them. Bruce Reinhart, Bill Bergmann, Sharrow and McKenzie were among those who told me there was a "bounty" on rats.

After shooting the rats, kids would take the tails to the city clerk's office to collect 10 cents a tail. It was an easy way to earn a little spending money and have fun, they all said.

One of the bonuses for the caretaker (the last anyone could remember was Jack "Trotter" Gallagher) was salvaging iron and batteries and other materials that could be sold to junk dealers, McKenzie said.

One person salvaged bicycle parts and rebuild bikes. "That's how many of us got our first bikes," McKenzie recalls.

Sharrow said that at one time there was a dump off M-66 toward the lake, and Bergmann said there was one on Mercer Boulevard where trash and garbage could be thrown over a steep bank.

Bergmann said there was a "hobo jungle" in the area where hobos who came and went on the freight trains would camp out, utilizing discarded foods and materials from the nearby dump.

Sharrow said the first "G-Man" - garbage pickup man - he remembered was the late Amos O'Neill. Since then there have been numerous people in the business.

Their operations, however will never evoke the kinds of memories the city dump does.

Skiers take 1st, 2nd in state THAT CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON

Charlevoix's Wes Cumberland brought home a first place medal from the state ski meet and the Rayders' girls team brought back a second place trophy.

Medalists Lauren Pace and Allison Hall paced the girls team to its finish behind Harbor Springs. Pace earned a second and third, while Hall raced fifth and 10th.

The high Charlevoix finishes follow the Rayders' championship showing in cross country foot races last fall. The Rayder boys won the state championship in Class C in that event. The ski championship involves teams from all size schools in the state.

The Charlevoix boys team did not advance from the regional round, and Cumberland raced as an individual based on his ranking in the regional events.

The Rayder girls scored 123 points, placing them second in the state to behind Harbor Springs in the 10-team meet at Marquette. Harbor Springs had 85 points.

"It was great. It was a real Cinderella story," coach Erik Lundteigen said of the girls' finish. "No one ever expected that much of them. They all have improved a great deal since the season started."

"It's great to know, also, that we have a state champ in Wes. He had a great day," Lundteigen said.

Pace was second in the giant slalom and third in the slalom. Hall finished fifth in the slalom and 10th in the giant.

Race results for Charlevoix girls (with times) follow:

Slalom — Pace, 3rd in 1:35.78 (the winning time was 1:34.02), Hall 5th in 1:37.81, Heather Keller 38th in 1:48.24, Carla Hoffman 42nd in 1:51.18, Susi Healey 56th in 2:02.21 and Allison Boyer disqualified.

Giant slalom — Pace 2nd in 1:43.27 (winning time was 1:42.59), Hall 10th in 1:46.05, Keller 44th in 1:52.22, Hoffman 46th in 1:52.26, Cynthia Boydston 53rd in 1:53.13 and Boyer 64th in 1:56.58.

"Lauren (Pace) and Allison (Hall) have led the team all season. They are our two seniors. We will miss them. They've been excellent leaders," Lundteigen said.

"As a second place winner, the girls received a trophy, our first one in skiing. We've finished in third place three times but this was our first trophy," Lundteigen said.

Cumberland's winning time in the slalom was 1:19.30 and his sixth place time in the giant slalom was 1:32.13. Cumberland is a junior.

Development panel tries to retain downtown houses

The Downtown Development Authority is trying to save old houses from destruction — including one it bought to tear down.

The authority has passed a resolution in support of retaining historically significant buildings and urging regulation of property where they are torn down.

And the panel has recommended to city council that the White house on Clinton across from the library not be torn down to clear the way for further parking.

The house is being purchased by the city at the urging of the DDA, which is an advisory body. The DDA, however, appears in favor of using just the property behind the house for parking and allowing the building to stand.

City planner Gerry Harsch says the building was constructed in the late 1800s. It was recently rental apartments and is presently unoccupied.

Jeff Porter of the DDA suggests the city lease or sell the house to someone who would fix it up and use it, possibly for offices.

Several DDA members point to the renovation of an old house on Mason into the Elizabeth's shop.

At one point, the DDA talked about purchasing the Elizabeth's lot before it was renovated, but decided against the purchase.

Now, Porter says, maybe someone could bring the White house back to respectability.

Jim Mabee, former DDA chairman, estimated it would take up to $100,000 to renovate the building and questioned who would be willing to put that amount of money into the project.

Based on earlier conversations with the DDA and city council, City Manager Mike Wiesner has included $7,000 in the city budget for the coming

Lakeshore zoning

Tell us if you've heard this one before.... Proposed changes in lakeshore zoning regulations will soon be discussed by city government. The planning commission is scheduled to hold a public hearing on the proposals. The only thing is nobody's sure when.

The dozen recommendations — which grew out of last summer's knock-down, drag-out over condo construction — have been waiting for a legal once-over by city attorney Jeff VanTreese.

A more immediate zoning question got in the way, though, as the city and Northern Michigan Realty Services were sued by David Miles and WATCH Inc. over the Park Place (nee Pine River Club, et al) project.

By the time that was disposed of, VanTreese had a whole pile of city and other business to catch up on. Throw in a vacation, and the zoning amendments missed several deadlines for publication before a hearing could be held.

There's a slim chance for March 23, but April 11 looks more likely.

The 12 proposals deal with zoning ordinance changes on building heights; boat houses, boat docks and related parking; yard setbacks near the water; view corridors; and discretionary powers for city council to further regulate lakefront property uses.

SOON NOTHING BUT A MEMORY

The tower has long been a familiar landmark for sailors and for tourists. It rises far above Pine River Channel and can be seen for miles.

A 1981 proposal would have turned the tower into an observation platform.

The old water tower, which has sat atop the bluff overlooking Pine River Channel since 1906, could be gone from the city skyline in a matter of days.

Like a redwood among pines, the old water tower literally towers over Charlevoix. But the skyline is in for a quick and dramatic change as the 82-year-old structure comes down — possibly in the next few days.

Although the city has been thinking about tearing down the rundown tower for several years, it has not been a top priority.

But a call from a Pennsylvania firm willing to do the job for one-quarter the normal price during a slow business time is making demolition a do-it-now job.

The city has budgeted $21,000 for the fiscal year beginning April 1 for removal of the tower. But the company is willing to take it down for $5,200.

City council members agreed the price was too good to pass up and directed the administration to go ahead.

The city attorney drew up an agreement protecting the city's interests, and requiring a performance bond and insurance.

The 100,000-gallon tower has been in precarious condition for years and was replaced as a water storage unit earlier this decade when the new 300,000-gallon tower was built.

A 1978 inspection by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Company said the tower needed extensive repairs then. The firm was the same that installed the tower in 1906.

In 1981 the Charlevoix Historical Society proposed to turn the structure into a three-level observation tower as the centerpiece for a new channel-side park.

The tower is leaning and has caused concerns for the city's insurance company. Treasurer Rick Brandt says one of the first things insurance people mentioned to him when he began his job last year was taking down the tower.

For a nostalgic look at the tower, turn to Fran Martin's Reflections in Scrapbook on page 23.

More than seven decades after it was built, the same firm inspected the structure and recommended its replacement.

4th graders' North Point aid important link to area's future

Editor,

I wanted to express my personal appreciation to the Charlevoix fourth graders who wrote all the wonderful letters in support of North Point. I think the teachers should also be applauded for teaching the children the importance of this beautiful area. We need greater encouragement in our schools to teach "environmental education" and this is just one step towards saving fragile areas such as North Point. (I've also heard "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" are encouraging others to help save North Point. What a great idea!)

As a certified teacher in natural resources environmental education, I have worked with hundreds of students in the out-of-doors. They have learned a broader appreciation of life around them and taken those lessons into adulthood. These fourth graders and their teachers are the important link to protecting our area for future generations.

Thank you for your wonderful effort to Preserve North Point!

Northwest's homes featured in magazine

People have been calling to tell me that the March issue of Country Living features several pages in full color of northern Michigan hideaways. "A trio of waterside cottages captures the rustic elegance of life in the northwestern region of the state." How about that? There's even mention of paintings purchased at the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair.

People like Marina LaBance are responsible for six Charlevoix family groups, including children traveling to Grand Rapids on March 5 to see a matinee of "Cats!" with the New York cast. The group includes Marina, Ray and Sandy LaVole, Jim and Beth Hater, Nelson and Dawn Fletcher, Dick and Shellah Bogart and yours truly. Bet our two-legged little kittens will purr during the musical and won't shy away from the water in the swimming pool at the Days Inn. On the contrary.

More about people. Ran into my neighbor, Greg Smith, the other day, who was full of news about his active family. Especially about a recent ski vacation three generations spent together in Colorado. Greg's dad, Owen Smith, a retired college president, skis three or four days a week and has no trouble keeping up with grand-daughter Sarah Smith, a high school sophomore on the Petoskey ski team.

Sarah is following in her mother Lindy's ski tracks. In case you forgot, Lindy was junior national champion in 1964. Sarah, too, has the competitive spirit. She says, "You know, losing hurts inside!" You bet it does, as we witnessed last week during the Winter Olympics.

Several people have been asking me lately, "How is Frank Rothschild?" Let me be the first to tell you the Chicagoan is sunning in Palm Beach while his lovely wife, Dorothy, is running up their telephone bill. But Frank doesn't mind because there's a wedding on the Charlevoix horizon! Young

David has announced his engagement to Kitty Rosenbluth, who's mother was an Eisendrath, which makes it all very friendly. The "small wedding" date is July 9. The place is Dorothy's model farm, followed by an evening reception on Michigan Avenue. (For this I will need a new dress!)

People are so original! I received a videotape out of the blue from my nephew Walter, and his wife Carolina, who live in San Bruno, Calif. The stork is bringing them a baby and I was given the full tour of the baby's room: the canopied crib, the dresser, the changer, the stroller, the baby book, even the wind-up musical clown performed for me. To top it off, Carolina was wearing a Charlevoix sweatshirt. It was a delightful visit without the hassle or expense of flying.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

If you need evidence that Pine River Channel flows in both directions — as claimed by the late cartoonist Robert Ripley — cross the U.S. 31 drawbridge on foot some day before the ice melts.

At times you'll see ice floes moving toward Lake Michigan; at other times they hurry in from Lake Michigan, like sailboats before a storm.

And occasionally you'll find ice moving in both directions, depending on the currents.

Most of the drift ice this time of year is of the "pancake" variety, meaning the sharp edges have been worn off by slamming against each other out on the lake. What is left are perfectly round floes with raised edges.

They make a beautiful mosaic, particularly when viewed from the air.

The other day I spotted an unusual ice formation in the channel — an obelisk about five or six feet tall that looked like a tombstone or a miniature Washington Monument.

It was wedged between two large floes of ice which held it upright as it sailed under the bridge. I imagine the strange object came to an untimely end when it reached Lake Michigan and the supporting floes drifted apart.

IF YOU ARE cross country skiing some frosty morning and come to a small, fast-flowing creek, you might check for "anchor ice."

That's ice that forms on rocks on the creek bottom when they are colder than the water flowing over them.

The phenomenon is relatively rare and occurs only at the extremely low temperatures we sometimes have in early March.

WITH SPRING only two and one-half weeks away, no one can be blamed for trying to rush the season.

And dead skunks along the highway are a sure sign that winter is on the wane. I have counted five of them in the past four days — meaning that the odoriferous little critters are leaving their winter digs in search of either girlfriends or provender. Probably both.

Furthermore, I saw a gigantic black shaggy buck crossing U.S. 31 near the Big Rock plant last week — meaning deer are leaving their winter yards. He didn't appear to be in any particular hurry. In fact, he looked rather sleepy — if a deer can look sleepy.

And he was alone, which was sort of surprising. Usually if you see one deer there will be others nearby.

But probably the surest sign of spring is the appearance of the elusive asparagus on grocery store produce counters.

Of course it is imported, but the very fact that asparagus is growing somewhere in this vast land of ours is a good sign that warm weather is coming.

And the price isn't all that staggering. One store is selling California-grown asparagus for $1.29 a pound.

If asparagus comes, can sweet corn be far behind?

IF YOU REALLY want to rush the season, why not run down to East Jordan and take a dip in the new community pool, built with a generous donation by the Malpass Foundation.

Charlevoixans are welcome, and a good many of us make a couple trips a week to our sister city to use the new facility.

Evening hours are from 6:30-8 p.m. Families are welcome Mondays and Thursdays, adults Tuesdays and teenagers Wednesdays.

The pool also is open Saturdays from 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m. and weekday mornings from 6-7:30 a.m. for lap swimming.

It's a fun way to get ready for summer.

Symphonic band's top ratings earn berth in state festival

The Charlevoix High School symphonic band received straight 1 ratings in the annual northern division of District II of the Michigan Band and Orchestra Association festival.

The band qualifies for competition in the state festival in Grand Rapids on Saturday, April 30.

The Charlevoix band was one of three among 17 in the festival to receive straight 1's from the four judges. The others were Class B bands from Gaylord and Petoskey.

"The tuba, cornet, and sax sections received favorable comments from the three concert judges and the sight-reading judge commented on the spirited performance of the band in sight reading," director Terry Isenberger said.

Isenberger was pleased with the number of people who went to hear the band play.

The band played "March Camar" by Clifton Williams, "Blessed Are They" by Brahms, and "The Lion of Lucerne" by James Curnow.

Band Day earns cash for uniforms

Spaghetti and a pantryful of prizes dished up a $3,500 profit for the Band Boosters.

The annual Band Day fundraising activities were a great success, president Don Volson said.

More than 400 people were served at a spaghetti dinner at the high school before the basketball game.

And several thousand dollars in prizes were given away during the game.

The top prize — $500 donated by Medusa Cement — was won by Jim Milke of Burgess Road. Profits from the day's events, combined with money from a cheese and sausage sale, will put more than $8,000 in a fund for new band uniforms, Volson says.

Last year, the fund-raisers also contributed $6,000 to the fund.

In addition, he said, for the second year the Band Boosters will be able to send senior band members on a trip. Last year they went to Chicago.

Annual fiddlers' jamboree this weekend in East Jordan

The annual Fiddlers' Jamboree and Old-Fashioned Square Dances will be held Saturday, March 5, in East Jordan.

The jamboree will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. and the dance from 7 to 11 at the civic center.

The public is invited to join in with fiddles and other non-electrified instruments.

The event is sponsored by Original Michigan Fiddlers' Association.

Dinners will be served by the Charlevoix County Senior Center in the civic center from 11 a.m. until food is gone.

Choices will include chicken dinners and barbecue sandwiches.

Many of the fiddlers from downstate will be staying in Charlevoix and playing at the American Legion hall during breakfast.

And several will be playing at the Barnard Grange on Friday night.

AROUND THE TOWN

Seasons Greetings could turn to Happy Holidays and red, yellow, white and blue could turn to green by next winter.... The city is thinking of replacing the two holiday greetings signs leading into town....

Both signs are beat up and ratty looking after years of use.... And their location could be better, city officials have determined.... The utility department plans to place poles closer to downtown so the overhead signs blend better with the white-lighted downtown trees....

The poles will probably be planted at the top of the south and north hills straddling the valley.... That way, motorists would see Happy Holidays just before hitting the downtown shopping area.

The city master plan may soon be getting updated.... The city planning commission is thinking about launching into a five-year update of the document after it finishes with lakeshore zoning amendments....

The plan—officially the Waterfront Areas Management and City Master Plan—was written in 1982 and adopted a couple years later.... It is a view of how the community pictures the city's structural development in years to come.... The plan does not set down law for the present as the zoning ordinance does....

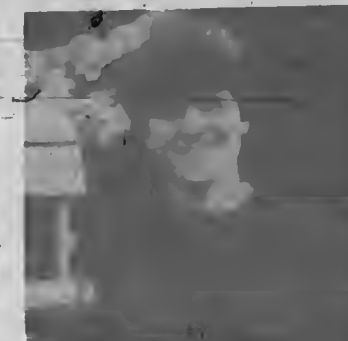

Planning commission chairman Walt Hufford suggests the plan should be updated because it's sound practice to keep it current and because the community's attitude about waterfront development have changed.

Whitmore, a native of Okemos, came to the biological station after six years at the University of Queensland, Australia where she received a Ph.D. degree.

Council looks at budget for areas to trim

Whether next year's city budget gets sliced with a paring knife or a machete remains to be seen. But the trimming process has begun.

City council members a week ago demanded two mills be squeezed from a 10.6-mill general operating budget.

Monday they listened as City Manager Mike Wiesner explained how the budget got the way it is and how items in various funds impact on others.

"It isn't Mike's budget. It's the community's budget," Wiesner said of the $1.5 million spending plan.

The general fund contains government functions such as police and fire, recreation and City Hall. Services such as roads, electricity, water and sewers are included in separate, often self-supporting accounts.

The budget was drawn up by city staff based on goals council members set for the year in a retreat last September, Wiesner said.

It is a policy-making duty of the council to trim services, if that is what council members want, he said.

Spending would be up about 4.8 percent if the spending plan were adopted as written. But already, items are being removed.

And nearly 10 percent of the $1,496,700 in expenditures would be paid for with surplus money from previous years.

Charlevoix has a lower municipal tax rate than either Boyne City or East Jordan, Mayor Ralph McRae said, and gets much better services for its money.

Beyond operations needed to conduct business at the same level as in past years, Wiesner said, the budget contained $165,000 in projects and contributions to community activities.

He recommended cutting a $55,000 expenditure for a beach-cleaning machine, saying alternatives will be looked at this summer. And he noted a $21,000 savings because removal of the old water tower at a cut-rate $5,200 is coming from this year's budget.

Council member Earl Muma suggested $70,000 from the general fund going into a $223,000 sidewalk project could be saved if fewer sections were replaced.

Wiesner agreed, saying a tough standard was used in determining which pieces to replace and more sections could escape replacement.

Muma and Shirley Roloff said they thought spending could be cut for the coming year, but without a reduction in taxes because they "couldn't tie the next council down," as Muma said.

"You're not doing a thing for the taxpayers," Butch Russell said, by not reducing the millage. He said two mills should be cut from the four-mill infrastructure (road, sidewalk and sewer) improvement program.

McRae's list of possible cuts included reducing a reserve set aside for an aerial fire truck from $25,000 to $10,000. The other $15,000 was put in the budget to replace a like sum approved last year but not transferred to the account, which now has $14,000 in it.

The mayor also supported not replacing second story windows in City Hall, cutting $225,000 in engineering fees for $1.7 million in public works projects by about 10 percent, and cutting $3,000 from the council and mayoral budgets that total $38,600.

Bill Haggard said taxpayers are actually saving money by paying for the infrastructure work with taxes instead of with long-term borrowed money.

"You get 100 percent for your money," he said, compared with using borrowed money as some area towns have done for similar work.

The city is still paying more in interest than in principal each year on bonds sold for construction of the new water tower in 1981, Haggard noted.

Wiesner pointed out an 11 percent reduction in sewer rates, and said combined water-sewer rates are down nearly one percent with a 23 percent hike in water prices.

The new water treatment plant, constructed because of chemical contamination of the city water supply — costs more than three times as much to operate as did the old ground-water system.

For instance, Wiesner said, federal regulators make the city put chlorine in drinking water when it leaves Lake Michigan, but makes it remove the chemical before treated wastewater is returned to the lake.

Questions were raised from the audience for the second straight week about plans for Ferry Beach improvements this summer.

A group of mothers has expressed concern over children's safety if cars are ordered to park in the lot across Ferry Avenue, while boat trailers are parked in the lot on the beach side of the road.

The parking scheme is part of a proposal to better regulate use of boat launches and to install a temporary fish cleaning station.

A proposed ordinance will be presented to council and a public hearing will be held before any changes are made, Wiesner said.

said.

A separate hearing on the budget will be held Monday, March 7, in council chambers at City Hall.

Council action could come anytime before the start of the fiscal year on April 1.

Horton Bay gets ready for own brand of Olympics

by PEG OHLE

Cabin fever? Winter doldrums? Aches, pains, ague?

Residents of Horton Bay say they will have a cure for all of them Sunday, March 6, when the "Horton Bay '88 Olympics" are held indoors and outdoors around the community.

Activities will begin at noon at Bay Township Hall with the arrival of the "Olympic" torch carried by sometime Horton Bay resident, Windigo.

From then on, the schedule has something for everyone, from the sublime to the ridiculous, according to a committee member.

Art Frisk, a Horton Bay resident, is so excited about the happening that he has "donated" his flowing beard.

For $1 a clip, all comers will be permitted to participate in the "Skin Art Frisk" event.

Not to be outdone, Man-About-the-Bay Jon Hartwell has promised to entertain and/or upset spectators by swallowing a dozen or so wiggles.

The athletic "Olympic" events include:

— A cross-country skiing relay race with Petoskey stones passed from skier to skier instead of a baton;

— A triathlon race consisting of tricycle riding, backward trotting and snow shoveling;

— Volleyball games (bring your own team);

— Tug-of-war;

— Frozen fish throw;

— Horseshoe pitching;

— And bobbing for apples through a hole in the ice.

To make all these events sporty, they will be held on the frozen surface of Horton Bay.

For those more interested in creativity than athletics, there

Planners reject plan for apartment rezoning

Rezoning of property between Elm and Cherry streets for an apartment building has been recommended for denial by the city planning commission.

But the proposal — in altered form — could be up for consideration again.

At the urging of neighborhood residents, the planning commission voted 6-0 against the rezoning and site plan for an 18-unit apartment.

Developer Rick Lobenherz, who was out of town when the vote took place, earlier indicated he would probably be reworking the proposal because of the neighbors' complaints.

The Carriage Club plan was not formally withdrawn, however, and resurfaced at the planners' meeting.

Neighbors protested the commission's intended delay in action, although they were told the proposal could be reconsidered in another form.

There are no restrictions on how many times a proposal can go before the planning commission or council. A year's wait is required after denial of variance requests by the zoning board of appeals.

The planners voted to recommend rejection of the zoning request, site plan and requested variances. The requests have not been before the zoning board (for variance consideration) or council (for rezoning and site plan consideration).

Originally, four of six planners present spoke of delaying action until a revised plan is submitted. But all voted for Barb Fels' motion to recommend denial.

Neighbors say they object to multiple housing in a residential neighborhood. They collected 100 signatures on petitions, which they presented to the planning commission earlier.

City planner Gerry Harsch said only one of six immediate neighbors signed the petition. If two-thirds of those within 100 feet had signed, he said, a two-thirds majority vote would be necessary for council to approve the rezoning.

The proposal would have transformed a decades-old former Inn hotel garage into 18 apartments.

The building, which has an addition that would have been removed during renovation, is used now for storage.

It is adjacent to single-family homes on two sides, to a large empty lot on the third and the Community Reformed Church and city tennis courts on the fourth.

Lobenherz remains out of town and unavailable to comment on future plans.

will be a frozen "gourmet" dessert contest, a "design the official Horton Bay flag" contest, and a snow sculpture contest.

A fortune teller will reveal the future of anyone willing to hear it.

Jon Cooper, new owner of Horton Bay General Store, will draw portraits for a fee. (The sketch of Art Frisk is an example of his work.)

Warming winter foods in the form of beans, hot dogs, coffee and cocoa will be available all afternoon in the Town Hall.

A video recording of last year's Fourth of July parade will be run continuously.

All proceeds from the event will go toward paying the expenses of the 1988 Fourth of July parade.

For further information, call Jan Eggers at 582-3551, Jon Hartwell at 582-6383, or the general store at 582-7827.

Special events mark middle school week

Charlevoix Middle School Week will focus on the role the school plays in the lives of young adolescents, principal Dennis VanGulder says.

March 7-11 has been declared middle school week in a proclamation by the school board and city council.

During their years at middle school, students undergo dramatic physical, social, emotional, and intellectual growth and are especially vulnerable, VanGulder said.

"Parents, fellow educators, and the public are invited to visit the Charlevoix Middle School and participate in special programs that focus on the nature of early adolescence and celebrate the ways the school is responding to their needs and to the community," he added.

Parents may attend classes, join students for lunch, and view a video, "Knowing Your Adolescent", which will be shown throughout each day. The sixth grade will host parents Wednesday, the seventh grade Thursday, and the eighth grade Friday.

There will also be a poster contest for students, and the week will be climaxed with a dance Friday night. In recognition of St. Patrick's Day, anyone wearing green will be admitted without charge.

A new middle school flag will be introduced. It was made from the design entered by student Kelly Heck. The flag will be flown from the school's flag pole.

A Golden Apple Award will be awarded to a member of the teaching or support staff who has made a significant contribution to the school and its students.

A special breakfast at which members of the board of education and administration will join the faculty and support staff will be served in the cafeteria at 7:30 Tuesday.

Prizes donated by the business community will be presented at the breakfast and at various times during the week, VanGulder said.

Principal Dennis VanGulder and student Kelly Heck display a new Charlevoix Middle School flag she designed. The flag is the winner in a contest connected with Charlevoix Middle School Week.

72 area students compete in brain challenge games

Seventy-two Charlevoix students will be participating in "Odyssey of the Mind" (formerly known as "Olympics of the Mind") competition in East Jordan on Saturday, March 5.

"Odyssey of the Mind" is an exercise in creative problem solving, said Kathy Martinchek of Char-Em Intermediate School District.

Students are given six categories from which to choose a problem. They then study, research and develop a solution to the problem under structured guidelines.

The problems this year are Atlantis, Comics, Gift of Flight, Classics: It's Show Time, Coronation, and Straddle Structure.

Charlevoix Elementary, Charlevoix Middle School and St. Mary's School have 72 students on 11 teams entered in the regional competition.

A total of 110 teams from schools from the eastern section of the Upper Peninsula and the counties across the tip of the Lower Peninsula will compete at East Jordan.

The majority of the teams will be from Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The top three teams in each of the problem categories will advance to the state competition at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant on April 30.

Health club formation closer as 2nd meeting set

The establishment of a cooperative Health and Fitness Club is the goal of two Charlevoix women, Sherry Withers and Connie Ebenhoeh.

To that end, a second meeting for interested persons will be held Thursday, March 3, at 7 p.m. in the lower level of the Village Inn Pizza restaurant on Bridge Street.

"The club will be for men and women of all ages," Withers said. "We will have free weights and machine weights, a rowing machine, exercise bike, and, eventually, a treadmill. Frank Cook has donated a sauna for our use."

She said the club is also looking for donations of used equipment.

The club will be supported entirely by membership fees, which will probably be $200 for the first year, according to Withers.

It will occupy the back portion of the Market Mall, with an entrance from the mall parking lot.

"It's a good location," Withers said. "It has 1,400 square feet with bathroom facilities and a small shower area."

Withers hopes interested persons will let their choices of equipment and activities be known.

Interested persons unable to attend the meeting may contact Withers at 547-4405 or 547-4057.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

submitted by
The Rev. Thomas Black
First Baptist Church
Once upon a time there was a church looking for teachers for their young people.

And some adults said, "I don't want to leave the sweet fellowship and study in my adult class" but the drug pusher on the street said, "Not even the threat of jail will keep me from working with your children."

And some adults said, "We have to be out of town too often on the weekend" but the porno dealer said, "We're willing to stay in town weekends, too, to accommodate your children."

And some adults said "I'm unsuited, unable to work with children" but the movie producer said "We'll study, survey, spend millions to produce whatever turns kids on."

And some adults said, "I could never give the time required to plan and go to teachers meetings" but the pusher, the porne dealer, and the movie producer said, "We'll stay open whatever the hours are necessary every day to win the minds of the kids."

So... the adults stayed in their classes and enjoyed the sweet fellowship and absorbed the good Bible study, and could go out of town often on weekends, and were available to do whatever was good to do in place of teachers meetings.

And when Sunday came, the children came to their classes and no one was there except the church staff going from one room to another trying to assure them that someone would surely come to teach them.

But no one ever came, and the young children and preschoolers soon quit coming because they had gone to listen to others who did care about the things they did and what went into their minds.

Rayders clinch share of league crown

The Rayders assured themselves of a share of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference basketball title with a 70-53 victory over Cheboygan.

The Rayders travel to Gaylord on Friday for their final game and a chance to claim the title outright for the first time since 1965. Cheboygan won the title the past two years.

"I'm happy for the team; I'm ecstatic for the seniors; this game meant a lot to them. It was their last appearance on their own floor before the hometown crowd. They really wanted this game," said Coach Jim Kanine.

The Rayders played their best first half of the season, Kanine said, but struggled in the third period.

Cheboygan closed the lead to four points, but the Rayders "kept their cool" and pulled away, he said.

Kanine said Roger Smith played excellent defense against Paul McNitt. "He got 14 points but most of them were when Smith wasn't guarding him," Kanine said. "Dan Drury pulled us away with a three-pointer and two two-pointers plus a free throw when we needed it. He's always good on offense but great when the crunch is on. All the seniors gave us a good game," he said.

The Rayders got off to a 6-3 lead on two field goals by Smith and increased it to 17-11 at the end of the quarter with Scott DeYoung adding six, Chad DeVries four, and Owen Phillips three points.

Charlevoix, tough on the boards, increased the halftime lead to 36-26 on two three-point shots by Smith, five points by DeYoung, four-of-four free throws by Drury and two-pointers by Marty Joy and Cory Battle.

When the Rayders returned to the floor for the second half, they were a little hesitant, allowing the Chiefs seven quick points to two of their own.

The Chiefs outscored them 15-10 for their best quarter as they trimmed the score to 46-41.

The last period was hardly underway when DeVries scored and Drury put the game away with a three-point shot followed by two-pointers and two from the line.

The Rayders scored 19 two-point shots, five three-point shots, and 16 of 20 from the free throw line. They had 14 personal fouls. The Chiefs made 20 field goals, one three-point shot, and 10 of 18 free throws. They had 17 personal fouls.

DeYoung scored 20 points and made 13 rebounds, three assists and three steals. Smith and Drury scored 14 points and had three assists each.

Phillips added 10 points and four assists, while DeVries had eight points and 13 rebounds.

Another junior, Jamie Montlieth, won two and lost two to place eighth in the 155-pound weight class. Senior Jim Tilton (198) lost two matches.

Nuclear fuel arrives for Big Rock reloading

A shipment of uranium oxide fuel has been received at Big Rock Point nuclear plant in preparation for refueling scheduled in April.

The plant, four miles northeast of Charlevoix, is refueled once a year.

The shipment consists of 20 bundles of six-foot long fuel rods with a total value of $4 million.

The fuel weighs less than five tons but will produce more energy than 260,000 tons of coal.

The raw material for the fuel is mined all over the world, chemically processed in the United States and Europe, formed into ceramic pellets and sealed inside hollow metal rods at a plant in Richland, Wash., and shipped by truck to Big Rock.

JACQUE MERTA

Jacquie Merta is executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

In 1986 a new federal law was passed entitled the Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act, which requires new hazardous chemical reports from businesses.

As a business, you will want to check to see if you are required to file necessary hazardous chemical inventory forms. Basically those facilities that need to comply with this deadline are ones that already are required to maintain material safety data sheets (MSDS) for a hazardous chemical under the federal OSHA Hazardous Communication Standards. These reports must be filed with three bodies: the State Emergency Response Commission (SERC), your local fire department and your local emergency planning committee. The contact person for Charlevoix County is Earl Muma, 1000 Grant, Charlevoix 547-6067.

If you want to receive information and copies of regulations contact the "EPA Community Right-to-Know Hotline" 800-535-0202.

On July 1 a separate toxic chemical release form for certain listed chemicals must be submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency.

House preservation sought

year to rip down the house and gravel the lot for parking.

The house is next to the Erber parking lot which was constructed last year.

Harsch reminded DDA members that several other old houses in the downtown area have or soon will come down.

The Methodist Church removed its old parish house at State and Clinton in anticipation of future expansion.

Houses at 105 and 107 Park will be removed when work on the Park Place 11-unit condo is finished, probably this year.

A house kitty-corner from the parish house on State at Clinton was removed a couple years ago (though it is technically not downtown) and the city tore down a house next to City Hall on State when it built the fire station.

Harsch estimates that 10 or 12 houses remain in the downtown district.

Their retention is important "as a means of preserving the scale and flavor of the district," Harsch said.

Harsch recommended zoning ordinance amendments be made to require new buildings on the site of demolitions to be set back away from lot lines.

Present rules for downtown buildings allow construction from side lot line to lot line and from street to rear lot line.

They also do not require on-site parking in the downtown area.

Those rules — which reflect past construction on Bridge Street — also apply to other parcels between State and Round Lake and from the bridge to Antrim.

The DDA's recommendations are being passed on to the city council, which makes final decisions in zoning matters.

If zoning ordinance changes were to be made, they would be studied by the planning commission and then by the council. Both bodies would hold public hearings.

The decision whether to tear down the White house lies with the council.

Wiesner has suggested the council and DDA go through the house together before a decision is made on whether to demolish it.

Neighbors object to landfill expansion

A large number of neighbors of the Charlevoix County Landfill turned out to tell the Solid Waste Management Committee how they felt about the landfill and plans for its future.

The Eveline Township residents were critical of county and state supervision of the facility and wondered if the new Solid Waste Management Plan now being written would bear any more weight than the present one.

By law, the county and the state Department of Natural Resources have enforcement powers over operation of a landfill.

Speakers questioned why the county permitted waste from all over northern Michigan to be deposited in the landfill when the Waste Management Plan mentions only Charlevoix and Emmet Counties and part of northern Antrim County as collection areas for the landfill.

They also wondered why a committee of waste haulers, government representatives and the general public was writing a Waste Management plan when they had no enforcement powers. Composition of the committee is set by state law.

County Planner Larry Sullivan said getting the feeling of persons living near the landfill was a preliminary step to the next meeting of the Solid Waste Management Committee, on Thursday, March 31.

At that meeting, the committee is expected to establish the geographical area which the Charlevoix County Landfill will be permitted to serve, and to vote on whether the size of the landfill should be increased from 40 acres to 100 acres.

Waste Management Inc., which bought the local facility a few months ago, has requested the increase in size so it will be able to serve a larger part of northern Michigan.

Planning panel vacancy filled

Sandra Stanley of Boyne City is a new member of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

She was appointed by the county board to fill the seat formerly occupied by the late Cass Toton.

Stanley is a Boyne City councilwoman and former member of the Boyne City Planning Board, for which she is now city council liaison person.

A lifelong resident of Boyne City, Stanley is an agent and partner in Raegagger-Stanley Insurance Agency.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Old tower has been symbol of Charlevoix

What's the one thing besides the highway bridge that always has meant Charlevoix to you...? The one thing that has stamped this community as "Charlevoix"?

What else? The old water tower which has stood over us all for more than eight decades.

That's right. The old water tower built atop a sand dune off Park Avenue in 1906 by a Chicago steel company.

It's coming down. In fact, it may even be dismantled by the time you read this. A company has offered to remove it and the stilt on which it's stood these many years.

I know little about how much water it held in its best years. However, it's not hard to recall the changes it witnessed from its lofty, lonely peak.

It's seen Charlevoix grow from a small fishing village and lumbering center with dirt streets lined with hitching posts for its horses and wagons to today's home of sleek, air-conditioned horseless carriages.

It's watched fishing tugs leave the harbor before sunrise and return at dusk loaded with a day's catch of lake trout, white fish, and other fresh water fish for markets throughout the east and midwest.

It's witnessed the advent of numerous resort hotels as the community grew as a summer resort and it also witnessed their departure as they were replaced by motels to serve a more transient resort business.

It's seen beautiful cruise ships transport visitors to the community while cruising the Great Lakes, and it's seen their departure as a population tired of this leisurely way of travel.

It's served as a beacon before the days of radio and radar, guiding sailors to a safe harbor after a storm, and, in more recent years, as a place to mount wires leading to radio equipment that has replaced the silent beacon.

I can remember, as a child, returning to Charlevoix after spending a day in Traverse City with relatives, of coming over what we called "Pavlik's Hill", and seeing the lights of the tower, a reassuring sign that we were nearing home after a trip that had taken most of the day in our Model T Ford, and no more than three or four flat tires.

Even today, it spells "home" to native sons and daughters who sight it as they return from a long absence.

The sight of it recalls different things to different people. To the daring youth of yester-years, it recalls the challenge it always offered on a Halloween; to a photographer, a vantage point from which to take a picture; to sailors, a beacon in the night; and to others, countless

Corps to Davis: No catwalk

Attempts by the area's congressman to get a catwalk for a rebuilt Charlevoix south pier have been unsuccessful so far.

But Rep. Bob Davis is continuing his efforts to convince the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to include the bridge-like structure in its work.

The corps intends to reconstruct the failing pier this year, but opposition to its plan by city council has slowed the process.

The city opposes the corps' plan for a U-shaped pier similar to the north pier — unless there is a catwalk for fishermen to avoid a wave-breaking rock formation built into the U.

At first the city wanted a straight-line pier, recreating the Calm waters create reflections from the pier and revetments along Pine River Channel. The Army Corps of Engineers is seeking bids for replacement of the south pier in a U-shaped configuration with no catwalk.

LONG CLIMB

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Winning the slalom championship in the state ski meet was but one more step toward realizing a dream for 17-year-old Charlevoix skier Wes Cumberland.

Cumberland is determined to ski his way onto the United States Ski Team, compete in the World Cup and eventually the 1992 Winter Olympics.

The road thus far has not been easy and the climb gets tougher, Cumberland acknowledges. The skier talks of mental concentration, physical training, money and dedication.

"It's going to take more dedication, more than I've ever put forth," he says.

His coaches agree. "Wes is one of the top 10 or 15 skiers in his age group in the country," says Ted Lockwood, director of Bay Race Academy in Traverse City. "But there's a lot more work, a lot more training ahead of him."

Lockwood, who skied on the U.S. Team from 1976 to 1981, operated the only ski race training academy in the midwest, using Crystal Mountain for local training.

Cumberland has skied with Lockwood's students, and next year will transfer from Charlevoix High School to Traverse City High School, where he will attend school mornings and ski with the race academy virtually every afternoon and weekend.

Summers are already dedicated to skiing. Last summer, Cumberland trained with the academy on Oregon's Mount Hood, then joined a ski camp sponsored by ski manufacturer Rossignol, training in the French Alps at Chamonix and Thignes, site of the 1992 Winter Olympics. This summer, Cumberland may go with Lockwood's skiers to New Zealand.

"Wes is naturally athletic," says Charlevoix assistant coach Mike Bonello. "He's got great balance, he's quick on his feet. These are qualities you don't teach."

"What he needs now," Bonello continued, "is intensity and passion. He definitely will be the best skier to come out of northern Michigan and probably the midwest in a lot of years. But he needs to develop commitment and get in better shape." Bonello agrees that mountain training is essential. "Our race courses are just short sprints. He needs to develop endurance."

Perhaps the biggest factor in creating a great skier is "mental concentration" both

Ahead-lines

No-wake zone

The next step in implementing a permanent "allow-no wake" zone in Round Lake will take place when city council holds a public hearing at 7 p.m. Monday, March 21.
 The no-wake zone would replace a temporary law in effect last summer. The state Department of Natural Resources held a similar hearing in December.
 Proposed is an ordinance covering the lake and Pine River Channel from the railroad right-of-way where the lower channel meets Lake Charlevoix to the westernmost end of the pierhead in Lake Michigan.
 With no no-wake limit in effect, sheriff's deputies say, it is hard to regulate boat speed. A present 6 mph limit is difficult, if not impossible, to enforce, deputies say, because radar is not reliable in rocking boats.
 Deputies say even a no-wake zone makes enforcement discretionary, but is a better tool. Opponents say no-wake is too slow for conditions in the channel to Lake Michigan.

Exchange student from Madrid finds small town to his liking

by PEG OHLE

Back home in Madrid, Antonio Lopez has a car to drive and lots of long-time friends to party with.

In Charlevoix, he can't drive a car and can't do much partying, but he has made a lot of new friends and found different things to do.

The senior exchange student at Charlevoix High School went skiing at Boyne Mountain and Boyne Highlands over the holidays. They're good-ski slopes, he admits, but not as good as some he has skied in the Alps.

American television provides a greater selection of programs and is on the air longer than it is in Spain, where there are only two stations, but Antonio says he looks at it only when he hasn't anything else to do.

Charlevoix High is larger than the private school he went to in Spain, but Antonio likes the activity and also likes living in a small town.

His home is really in a suburb of Madrid, but every summer his family vacations in some small town, usually along the seacoast.

Asked if he had known Andres Mijares, another Charlevoix High exchange student from Madrid, before they came here, Antonio said he had not, explaining that she lived in the middle of the city and he lived to the north.

He agreed, however, that it would be easy for them to visit in years to come and talk about their experiences in Charlevoix.

Antonio, who obviously likes to travel, said he is also looking forward to visiting other exchange students in the future. He has become especially friendly with Mark Dietrich, whose home is near Cologne, West Germany.

At Charlevoix High School, Antonio is studying English, calculus, physics, French, United States history and performing arts.

He says he has always liked "numbers"—math—better than other school subjects. He has studied English for seven years, but it's "not like the English you speak."

Antonio is making his home in Charlevoix with Gene and Sally Sanford and their daughter, Ann Marie. The Sanfords' other two children no longer live at home.

His father is an industrial engineer in Madrid, but Antonio doesn't yet know what his profession will be. He will have another year of secondary education.

Other members of Antonio's family are his mother and three older sisters and a younger brother.

His sisters have all been exchange students in the United States—in Ohio, New York and downstate Michigan. His brother also plans to study in this country.

Antonio admits he was homesick when he first came to Charlevoix, but many letters and several telephone calls have changed all that.

Even the cold and snow do not discourage him now. "I like it here," he volunteered.

AROUND THE TOWN

Waste disposal is the top concern of 105 people identified as "influentials" in a county-wide survey.... They were questioned as part of a leadership development program being conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service at the urging of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce....

Participants in the program conducted the survey as part of their effort to identify the community power structure in the county.... Those filling out questionnaires selected top problems, top attributes and top leaders—both in general and in economic development....

The lists of "most influential" people are being kept confidential by the group, which is meeting weekly for six weeks to work on their leadership skills.... The group includes residents of all parts of the county and has a diverse membership that includes nuclear power workers, environmentalists, government officials and retirees....

The top five Charlevoix County problems identified in the 105 surveys: Waste disposal, unemployment, water pollution, taxes, and (a tie) over-commercialization of the lakeshore and traffic.... The top five things most liked about the county: Natural beauty and environment, friendly and caring people, lakes, small-town atmosphere, and recreational activities and facilities.

Charlevoix the Beautiful has another nickname now, too, with designation as a Tree City USA.... The national honor came from the National Arbor Day Foundation and recognizes that the city has a landscape ordinance, shade tree commission, tree care program and observance of Arbor Day....

The city has received a Tree City USA flag and a sign to be installed at the entrance to town.... Formal ceremonies are slated for April 25.... The award was received through the shade tree committee of Pat Jackson, Barbara MacArthur and John Gaskin.

Council makes list of expenses that might get cut from budget

City council members—determined to trim the 1988-89 budget—have listed several items which might get the ax.

Some council members are sticking to earlier demands that two mills be added from the 10.6-mill, $1.5 million general fund budget.

Others are suggesting spending cuts without a millage decrease.

The general fund includes basic city services, such as police and fire, elections, recreation and City Hall. Services such as electric, water, sewer and roads are operated from separate, often self-supporting funds.

A four-mill, five-year program of replacing worn elements of the street, water and sewer systems appears to have support for second-year projects.

"Nobody's talking about voting it out," council member Earl Muma said of the infrastructure replacement program. Muma is the prime backer of a two-mill general fund cut.

Council members and the mayor came up with a list of 10 items which at least some of them thought might be removed from the budget.

Five of those possible cuts were from the general fund:

- $10,000 from a planned $25,000 addition to a reserve for future purchase of an aerial fire truck. The remaining $15,000 was budgeted two years ago but not transferred to the reserve coffers.
- $10,200 for new windows on the second floor of City Hall.
- $4,000 for sealing City Hall and fire station exteriors as protection against harsh weather.
- $70,000 earmarked to supplement the infrastructure program. Sidewalks marked for replacement would be re-evaluated, with cracked but unraised sections left in place.
- $5,000 for cemetery chapel ceiling repair.

Other items which could face the knife include:

- $200,000 of a $752,000 electrical system upgrading. The trimmed portion would be held back a year.
- $55,000 for a beach-cleaning machine.
- $26,000 to move the police and assessor's offices from the City Hall basement to the old fire garage.

- $33,000 for an underbridge walkway on the south side of the channel. A grant has been sought to help pay for the work in the following fiscal year.
- $7,500 for decorative bricks in new sidewalk at Pointes North Inn in the style proposed for all downtown sidewalks. Petunias would be planted in dirt in the unpaved portion of the sidewalks, so bricks could be installed later.

Council member Shirley Roloff pushed for inclusion of reconstruction of the road next to Ferry Beach as a first step in proposed beach transformation. City Manager Mike Wiesner said not enough money was available for the half-million dollar project, which would include sewer and water main installation.

About $77,000 is proposed for the beach this year, with $2,000 of that going toward a temporary fish cleaning station being installed by Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Inc. and the rest for engineering of the road and other park improvements.

A proposal from a year ago to hire a city engineer was brought up by former council member

Tell it like it is on school vote

Editor,
Let's tell it like it is. Cost of living went up 4.2 percent last year. Your school board granted a 7 percent increase in salaries for three years. This equates to 22.5 percent over the three year period. Fifty-seven percent of your property tax went for education.

Assessed valuations are up, resulting in increased revenue for operational expenses of your schools. Allocated millage to your school district is the highest in the northern half of the state.

Social Security recipients have increased medical benefits taken out of their 4.2 percent cost of living raises. Desired additional medical coverage must be paid by individuals on Social Security.

Three more mills are proposed (at the March 28 election) for the purpose of "providing increased medical benefits and the top pay scale for the major-ty of the teaching staff."

Such economic management has a built-in self-destruct button for true school needs. Now is the time to bring it to a screeching halt.

Voters — Improve the school board level of economic literacy March 28.

Snowbirds — Act now — vote absentee ballot. Return to a home you still can afford. Directly control your property taxes. Vote on March 28.

North Point play is positive statement

Editor,
On Thursday evening, Feb. 25, I had the pleasure of visiting the Charlevoix Elementary School to see the fourth graders' production of "Snow White." The play was staged for the benefit of the project to purchase North Point for the people of Charlevoix. It featured two talented casts, good scenery, a program illustrated by fourth graders, and even special tickets with pictures of characters from the play.

This production, the wonderful young people who staged it, the parents and friends who attended and the spirit behind the entire affair make a positive statement about Charlevoix.

The community spirit is overwhelming. I have been involved in conservation projects of one form or another for over 17 years, but never in my career have I witnessed such positive and universal demonstration of total community support and involvement as I have seen in connection with the North Point project. Charlevoix should be very proud. As the executive director of the conservancy who has been fortunate enough to be involved with the people of Charlevoix in the North Point project, I would like to say that is enthusiastic community support makes my involvement a pure joy.

Mrs. Chew's fourth graders have learned a very valuable lesson about community involvement from their staging of "Snow White." They have learned that they can get involved, that they can make a difference, and that they can get results. But as they learned a good lesson, they have taught us a lesson, too. They have set a noble example of community spirit of which they and their entire community can be proud.

4th graders appreciate contributions

Editor,
We would like to thank you for writing such a nice article about the fourth graders' project to raise money to help preserve North Point. We appreciate your publishing the students' letters that expressed their feelings about the North Point project.

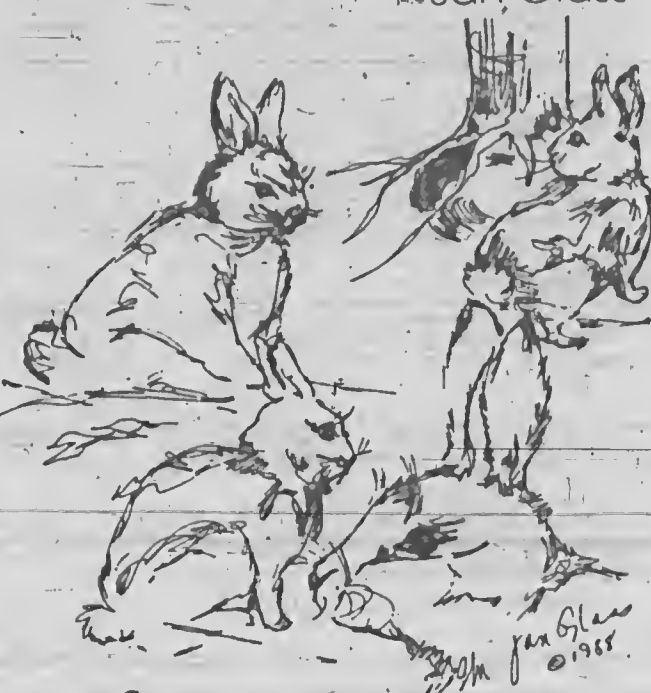

We would also like to thank the community for attending the "Snow White" production and their generous donations. Because of the support of the community our students have been shown a good example of community involvement.

In the years to come it will give us great pleasure knowing that our students were a part of preserving the North Point land.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Help wanted

It may be the fact that the days are a little longer, the sun a little brighter, and the snowbanks a little less awesome, but I am beginning to have warm vibes about the coming summer season.

I think it is going to be a real barn-burner — economically speaking.

At least a lot of people will be working. And if they work, they will have money. And if they have money, they might take vacations. And if they take vacations, they may spend a few days in Charlevoix-the-Beautiful.

The federal Bureau of Labor Statistics came out with its February employment report last week showing that — nationwide — unemployment dropped to 5.7 percent, a full tenth of a percentage point below January.

The nation's employment rose by 220,000 for the month, bringing the number of jobholders to 114.4 million.

It helps to remember that these increases came in the face of massive layoffs in the auto industry, which suddenly has discovered that it is in the throes of a troublesome "overcapacity" problem.

The Michigan figures, although higher than the national average, are even more surprising. State unemployment in February dropped to 8.4 percent, down sharply from January's 10.2 percent.

And remember, Michigan is one of the states that has lost many auto-related jobs.

Of course, figures can lie and liars can figure.

But a few observations I made over the weekend while visiting Grand Rapids seem to underscore the fact that Michigan's economy is doing very well, thank you, in early March, 1988.

While "doing" the 28th Street malls and other business places, I was struck by the unusually large number of "Help Wanted" placards appearing in shop windows. I couldn't believe how many businesses are seeking extra hands; but certainly the signs wouldn't have been there if there weren't jobs waiting inside.

Furthermore, I have never seen so many shoppers, except at Christmas.

My daughter, Allison, has a theory that the entire community of Ravenna (pop. 1,048) shows up at the Woodland Mall every Saturday afternoon.

She may be right; but they are joined by the entire populations of a hundred other communities in southwest Michigan, judging from the crunch of shoppers.

Apparently Grand Rapids isn't the only city with more jobs than applicants.

At the MacDonald's Restaurant in Cadillac, the management has seen fit to include an employment application as part of the placemat on every customer's tray. In addition to standard employment information, the application asks what days and hours the applicant will be available. I was going to fill mine out but I got catsup on it.

Skeptics, of course, will point out that retail jobs, or fast-food jobs, won't replace high-paying jobs in the automotive industry. And they are right.

But a job is a job, and the keen competition for warm bodies — at least in the Grand Rapids area — cannot help but boost pay scales and improve fringe benefits generally.

A few weeks ago I had an opportunity to hear Leslie Koska, an assistant vice president for the National Bank of Detroit, address the annual meeting of the Charlevoix County Economic Development Corp.

Koska seemed to think that what we used to call the "Rust Belt" — those mid-north industrial states which were consigned to the manufacturing scrap heap at the time of the energy crunch — are effecting an amazing comeback.

He also said that economic diversity, long-touted as a key to Michigan's survival, seems to be working, with laid-off workers finding employment in small, non-auto-related industries.

Koska mentioned one small Detroit area manufacturer who has made a million dollars making plastic buckets that sell for $1.49 at K mart.

At the time, I thought Koska was being unduly optimistic about Michigan's economic future. But I have changed my mind after seeing so many store windows in Grand Rapids decorated with "Help Wanted" signs.

High school will test students suspected of using alcohol

A test to detect alcohol on a student's breath will be used at Charlevoix High School.

A policy to allow the tests was adopted by the board of education Monday, March 7.

The policy will be implemented following presentation to students in the near future.

A test will be considered only if a student's observable behavior (impaired speech, impaired coordination, glazed eyes, odor of alcohol) warrants use the policy states.

Parents will be notified and asked to be present.

In other action, the board approved hiring an assistant baseball coach to expand the sport so freshmen and sophomores may play.

The resignation of Erik Lundteigen as freshman football coach and the retirement of Barbara Gallagher as a teacher's aide at the middle school were accepted.

An overnight trip for the baseball team was approved. The team will play at Benton Harbor and visit Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

District meeting

KCB surveys community

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is conducting a community survey on several issues.

The survey is being mailed to about 600 addresses. Opinions are being solicited from other residents, too, and copies of the survey may be picked up after Friday, March 11, at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office.

Questions on the survey concern KCB activities as well as community issues such as the East Park handball, Carriage Club apartment proposal, Park Place condo mediation and identification of problem areas.

Results will be tabulated at KCB's Saturday, March 19, meeting.

Population growth comes in focus

The Focus discussion group will talk about "The Population Explosion" in the Charlevoix High School study hall at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 16.

Dr. John Tanton, Petoskey, ophthalmologist and past national president of Zero Population Growth will be the main speaker at the public meeting.

CREATIVE MIND GAMES

Members of a non-competing Charlevoix Elementary troupe coached by Eileen Heck sing during their Coronation presentation. Heck's kindergarten through second grade students and a similar team from St. Mary's coached by Gloria Dibley participated in a special non-competitive portion of O-M activities.

Members of a Straddle Structure team run through a tunnel of middle school students on their way to receive second place medals. All three middle school O-M teams are advancing to state finals.

O-M strives for creativity and Charlevoix Elementary students used their creativity to modernize the story of Rumpelstiltskin.

Four Charlevoix entries in the annual Odyssey of the Mind competition have qualified for advancement to the state event.

Charlevoix schools had 22 entries among the 110 teams from throughout the eastern Upper Peninsula and the northern tip of the Lower Peninsula.

All three Charlevoix Middle School teams qualified.

Second place finishers: Straddle Structure (coaches Barbara and Michael Holmes and Cheri Whipple) — David Dobulis, Gregg Holmes, Chris Melton, Jeff Hoffman and Jacob Leadabrand.

Comics (Coaches Phyllis Hess, Sara Gay Dammann and John Pfluecke) — Megan Friedly, Josh Scheels, Nancy Dammann, Dorsey Sherman, Bill Dreyer, Jamie Pfluecke and John Hess.

Third place finisher: Atlantis (Coaches Virginia Schairbaum and Cheri Browe) — Elizabeth Browe, Allison Sandow, Renee Gibbard, Mindy Noirot, Anne Schairbaum, Elsa Conlan and Kristin Browe.

The Straddle Structure team from the elementary school, coached by Gayle Gennett and Sue Bush, finished third. Members are Jonathan Browe, Mike Rautio, Christie Kaczynski, Mike Bush, Seth Kilander and Rachel Brown.

The other team competing (and their place of finish) were: Classics...It's Show Time with coaches Janet Friedinger, Kaye Beatty and Jesse Beatty and members Ann Campbell, Rachel Newcomb, Raymon Griggs, Allison Beatty, Marcy Wojan and Lilly Pair placed fourth.

Gift of Flight with coaches Susan LeButt and Theata Williams and members Carolyn Campbell, Maro LaBlance, Chris LeButt, Brad Williams, Mark Schairbaum, Robert Sineway and Matt Dietel placed fifth.

Gift of Flight with coaches Sue Coen and Mary Ann Borths and members Michael Post, Billy Parton, Elizabeth Coen, Sarah Borths, Coleen Urban, Brian Liotta and James Conlan placed tenth.

Comics with coaches Tansley Stewart and Linda Bingham with members Duffy Stewart, Jodi Bingham, Stacy Urban, Sarah Kenney, Jamie McKinney, Sarah Lundy, and Kelly Yaroch placed fourteenth.

Comics with coaches Linda Hamilton and John Hess with members Jesse Dibley, Debbie Hamilton, Eric Hess, Paul Henne, Tim Terry and Melissa Anderson placed fifth.

Comics with coaches Joan Buda and Carol Gels with members Mike McCann, Gita Butcher, Sherry Gels, Lisa Borths, Angela Buda, Jill Dreyer and Steve Kang, placed fifth.

Teams in the non-competition category were:

Coronation: King of the Holidays with coaches Gloria Dibley and Shannon Dreyer. Team members were Adrian Dibley, Eric Butcher, Jeremy Rafacz, Jessica Corey, and Rachel Thorp.

Coronation: King of the Holidays with coach Eileen Heck. Team members were Emily Heck, Elizabeth Hess, Cammie Boyer, Caleb Levengood, and Hunter Christoff.

Apartment application withdrawn

A proposal to convert a decades-old former hotel garage into an apartment building has been withdrawn under heavy neighborhood pressure.

Jon Hisey and Rick Lobenherz late Monday afternoon, March 7, requested the city "remove from further consideration the current plan of Carriage Club Investments Inc."

The plan to renovate the building — presently used as a warehouse — between Elm and Cherry would have created 18 apartments.

Neighbors rallied in opposition to the project, which surprised the developers. Lobenherz told the planning commission they thought neighbors would be glad to see the old building fixed up.

More than 100 signatures were gathered by neighbors, led by Dr. Dennis Joy, who lives next to the building.

The neighbors objected to anticipated traffic problems and suggested the building be used for recreational purposes or torn down to allow for construction of single-family houses.

The planning commission recommended denial by city council of a zoning change request to allow the apartments.

The request for withdrawal came hours before the council was to have held a public hearing on the request. Several neighborhood representatives were in attendance.

A request for variances from normal zoning restrictions — also recommended for denial by the planning panel — had not yet gone before the zoning board of appeals.

The withdrawal does not stop the developers from returning in the future with a new proposal.

Petition drive figures wrong

A story in the March 2 Courier contained incorrect information about petitions opposing the Carriage Club apartment project. If 20 percent of neighbors within 100 feet of a proposed rezoning petition against it, a two-thirds vote of city council is necessary to approve the request.

City planner Gerry Harsch told the zoning board of appeals in February that one of six neighbors within that distance had signed. Neighbor Karen Joy says it was three of six at the time Harsch made his statement, and planning commission secretary Barb Fels says another has since signed.

Unofficial government gathering spot honored

A plaque honoring Judy's Restaurant as a Charlevoix institution is presented to Judy Holland by city and township officials before a crowd of breakfast regulars. The plaque was signed by 62 people who normally crowd into the Antrim Street restaurant on weekday mornings to debate local issues. Presenting the plaque to Holland are township Supervisor Oscar Stroud (front left), former city council member Bob Timms (partially hidden behind Stroud) and city Mayor Ralph McRae.

City repeats concerns about house atop boathouse

Concerns about the propriety of putting a house atop a boathouse in Round Lake have prompted city council to write the state agency considering a dredging permit.

The state Department of Natural Resources, which would issue a dredging permit, last week conducted a hearing attended by about 35 people—12 of whom spoke.

Questions about a DNR official's interpretations of city actions on the proposal were discussed at the Monday, March 7, council meeting.

And council directed the city manager, through the city attorney, to let the DNR know the city's position.

The city zoning board of appeals granted variances to Herbert Dow from normal setback requirements for the project, but the council wants the DNR to know general approval of the idea was not given.

DNR water quality specialist Brad Wilkins told those at the hearing the city had notified the DNR the project received local zoning approvals.

The zoning ordinance does not give the city jurisdiction over portions of structures built in or over the water, city planner Gerry Harsch discovered last fall.

The DNR does have the power to regulate structures over the water, Wilkins said. City attorney Jeff VanTreese told council the state Inland Lakes and Streams Act gives the DNR jurisdiction over structures, but not over use.

The proposal has been opposed by several residents who object to construction over the water. No other residences hang over Round Lake on the north side, although some do on the south side and another is proposed there.

The only action taken by a city board was the zoning panel's variance approval. Since the project is a single-family house, no site plan approval by city council was necessary.

The city and others wishing to submit written comments on the proposal have until March 15 to send them to the Gaylord DNR office.

Those wishing to comment on a request by John and June Cross to put an apartment atop a boathouse on the south shore of the lake have until March 23 to respond to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Detroit office.

The Cross property is in the marine commercial portion of the lake. The Dow property is an a residential zone.

The Crosses propose to put an 87- by 22-foot two-bedroom apartment over the boathouse approved a year ago at 209 Belvedere.

Olympics — Horton Bay-style

by PEG OHLE

An invasion by representatives of the Irish Republic almost broke up the Horton Bay "Olympics" — but in the true spirit of the assembled athletes, the games went on.

Balladeer Sean Ryan appeared just as the "Olympic" flame was being lighted. He held an Irish flag and protested any kind of games or social activity so near St. Patrick's Day that did not give a bow to those wearing green. After being given special dispensation to participate, he withdrew his objections.

The sun shone most of the afternoon as dozens of hot dogs and gallons of bean soup gave energy to amateur athletes and supporters.

The frozen fish throw drew a big crowd that watched a frozen 23-pound salmon being tossed across the ice of Lake Charlevoix. Team after team of shovel pullers and riders raced across an icy course, and the triathlon featured adults riding tricycles with their chins resting on their knees.

The more ordinary events of cross-country relay race, tug-of-war, horseshoe toss and volleyball went off with Olympic precision.

Winners received gold-paper-wrapped chocolate candy coins hung from a blue ribbon to display in their trophy cases.

Windigo prepares to light the flame at Horton Bay's version of the Olympic Games.

Friends of Art Frisk who paid $1 each to hack away at his grey, curly beard decided he needed some face cover to get through the winter, so they left an uneven mass on his chin and cheeks. Jon Hartwell followed through on his promise to swallow a dozen wiggles, and they stayed down.

As the sun began to lower, the "Olympic" flame in the washtub atop a stepladder was extinguished, perhaps to be lighted another day.

The money-counters went to work and announced over $600 had been collected from the 400-plus athletes and athletic supporters. It will be used to help pay for the 1988 Horton Bay Fourth of July parade.

City OKs contract with workers

A three-year contract with Communications Workers of America employees has been approved by city council.

The contract is retroactive to April 1, 1987, when the previous pact expired. It calls for a four percent wage hike in each of the three years.

Other major changes from the previous contract are in retirement and vacation provisions, said City Manager Mike Wiesner.

The union has agreed to the terms, Wiesner said.

Employees covered by the contract include clerks, treatment plant operators, utility workers and maintenance employees.

3 announce for judgeship

This will be a busy election year — locally as well as nationally.

Up for election this year are township offices, county offices, judgeships and state and U.S. representative seats.

While the primary election won't be held until Aug. 2 and the general election until Nov. 8, candidates are beginning to announce their intentions to run.

Candidates have until 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 31, to file petitions with the county clerk's office.

A race already drawing considerable attention is the probate judgeship for Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Judge John Murphy is retiring after 34 years.

Three attorneys have already announced their candidacy for the position — Robert Hoffman of Charlevoix, Seberon Litzemberger of Harbor Springs and Frederick Mulhauser of Petoskey.

The probate court deals with estates and trusts and also serves as the juvenile court, which handles cases involving children. All three candidates indicate they have extensive experience in probate matters.

Here is their background:

Robert L. Hoffman, 52, is a Petoskey native who has practiced law in the area for 23 years with an emphasis on probate practice. He received a bachelor of arts degree at Western Michigan University and a law degree from the Detroit College of Law.

Hoffman is a former president of the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association and member of the Professional Society of American Jurisprudence, Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, American Bar Association, American Arbitration Association, Estate Planning Council and Delta Theta Phi law fraternity. In 1983 Hoffman was nominated and listed in "Who's Who in American Law," a national publication.

NOTICE TO CANDIDATES:

The candidate announcement stories will consist of a lead paragraph stating who is announcing and for what post. If there are others who have already announced, they will be mentioned in the second paragraph along with the information on the filing deadline.

A short biography will follow, including schooling, membership in organizations related to the candidacy, military service, family and church. A head-and-shoulders photo may accompany the article.

No campaign statements will be included in the announcements. Candidates will have an opportunity to express their views in pre-election coverage.

Senator runs for Congress

State Senator Mitch Irwin, D-Sault Ste. Marie, will seek the 11th District congressional seat now held by Robert Davis, R-Gaylord.

Irwin's announcement came as no surprise since it was well-known he spent his Christmas vacation "testing the waters" of the Upper Peninsula and northern lower Michigan.

Seberon Litzemberger

Seberon Litzemberger, 51, is a partner in the law firm of Marco, Litzemberger, Smith, Brown & Wynn, P.C. in Petoskey.

Litzemberger is the immediate past chairman of the Northern Michigan Hospitals' Board of Trustees, a former president of the Charlevoix-Emmet Bar Association, a member of the American Bar Association, a former president of the Emmet County chapter of the American Cancer Society, and a current and founding member of the Board of Trustees of the Little Traverse Conservancy.

Litzemberger is a 1955 graduate of Boyne City High School and graduated from the University of Michigan and the Detroit College of Law. He has lived in Harbor Springs for 25 years and has two children.

Frederick R. Mulhauser, 40, is a partner in the Petoskey law firm of Stroup, Mulhauser, Johnson & Tresidder, P.C.

Mulhauser served in the Marine Corps and attended Michigan State University and the Thomas M. Cooley Law School, where he graduated cum laude.

Mulhauser and wife Jo Anna have three children. The Mulhausers are members of First Presbyterian Church of Petoskey where he is an Elder and he is past president of Emmet County United Way.

He is a member of the Charlevoix-Emmet Bar Association and of the Probate and Family Law Sections of the State Bar of Michigan and the American Bar Association. He is also a member of the Northern Mulhauser has published articles on wills and trusts and is a member of the Northern Michigan Estate Planning Council, where he serves as an officer and member of the Executive Committee.

Clerks train for elections

County Clerk Jane Brannon has set up "schools" for township and city clerks and election inspectors to bring them up-to-date on election laws and regulations.

In past years, one congregated school was held for all clerks and election officials in the county. This year, Brannon is holding an individual school in each of the 18 voting precincts.

The first school was held last Thursday in the City of Charlevoix. On March 10, there will be a school in Marion Township Hall for Marion and Norwood Township clerks and officials.

On March 17 there will be a school in Eveline Township Hall, and on March 24 there will be a school in the Charlevoix Township Hall.

Brannon says election officials seem freer to participate and ask questions when they are in smaller groups with people they know.

OF BLESSINGS

The Rev. Thomas Black
First Baptist Church

Luke 19: 11-14 — Read this great story carefully. Now ask yourself, on whom does the spotlight fall? Who is the most important person in that parable?

When you come right down to it, next to the nobleman himself (who represents God) it happens to be that little fellow.

What is the matter with him? Does he have an inferiority complex? Does he think he is not worth much? Does he feel he has no talents, no abilities — that he doesn't amount to anything in the world?

Therefore he will not produce!

He lives in fear (v 21) and with a low opinion of himself. He loses out in the judgement. What are you doing with what you are and have from God?

Why is it that we do not use our God-given talents? Is part of the boldness of Paul the "courage to fail"? (I Cor. 2:3) Explain.

Do we want to save face because we feel we may not make it? How do developing skills and stepping out in courage to big tasks relate to taking up our crosses daily and following Jesus? Light not followed becomes darkness!

Is there a neutral ground in following Jesus? (Lu. 11:23) Explain. What was Paul's motivation for action? (II Cor. 5:14)

Rayders clip Gaylord to take league title

Charlevoix wrapped up the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title with a 69-47 win over Gaylord.

Despite the lopsided-looking final score, the outcome was still in doubt until the last three minutes when the Rayders went on a 14-0 scoring spree.

Gaylord was the lone obstacle in the Rayders' way as they attempted to win their first league championship since 1984-85. Gaylord finished in a second-place tie with Petoskey, which also lost.

The Rayders were 11-3 in the league and 16-3 overall, going into Tuesday's Class C district opener against Boyne City.

"There was a championship atmosphere in the gym," said Rayder coach Jim Kanine. "The crowds were up for the game. We knew we were meeting a good team. They have some excellent players and their coach (Tom Johnson) has done a super job with them."

Owen Phillips and Shawn Putman helped the Rayders overcome the loss of their top scorer, Scott DeYoung, who got in early foul trouble.

Phillips scored 22 of his 24 points in the second half as the Rayders pulled away. And Putman played his best game of the year, Kanine said.

"Chad (DeVries), who had 18 rebounds, showed why he's the best rebounder in the league," Kanine said.

The game was close from the beginning, with the teams trading baskets. Gaylord held a 16-13 lead at the end of the first eight minutes.

Charlevoix came back in the second period, though, to take a 23-26 halftime lead.

Early in the third period, the Blue Devils took their biggest lead but three three-point shots by Phillips and buckets by Putman and Roger Smith helped the Rayders to a 44-42 end-of-quarter lead.

DeYoung went to the bench with his fifth foul with 4:30 left, but Gaylord scored its final points of the game at 3:50.

Another of Phillips' five three-pointers got the Rayders on a roll and they scored the game's last 16 points.

Phillips led all scorers with his 24 points and grabbed eight rebounds.

Volleyball team wins first match in district

The Rayder volleyball team won its first match at an eight-team Class C District tournament at Rogers City before losing in the second round.

In the second pool, Kingsley defeated East Jordan and Elk Rapids beat Mancelona. Elk Rapids then eliminated

Mancelona.

In the finals, Rogers City defeated Elk Rapids in two matches.

Charlevoix coach Brenda Bryan named Bille Jean Habel as the top setter, Becky Melke and Tanya Gruenwald as top server, Melke and Laura Bartley as top offensive players and Melke and Andrea Majares as top defensive players.

Victims receive restitution

Residents received $6,663 as victims of crimes committed in the county.

Sheriff George T. Lasater said those eligible for compensation are victims of crime who suffer a personal injury as the result of the crime, intervenors who suffer personal injury while going to the aid of a crime victim, and surviving spouses, parents, children, siblings or other dependents of a crime victim who dies as a direct result of a crime.

Called the Crime Victim State Financial Compensation Program, the payment program is provided for in Public Act 223 of 1976.

Compensation to victims is limited to a maximum total of $15,000; maximum funeral expenses to $1,500; not more than $100 a week for lost earnings, or, in the case of death, lost support.

Losses resulting from an injury or death are awarded only if a person has no insurance and no other assistance is available.

Further information about the program is available from the Sheriff's Department.

Title company celebrates 20th year in Charlevoix

Northern Michigan Title Co. of Antrim-Charlevoix Counties is celebrating 20 years of doing business.

To mark the occasion, the company is hosting an open house in its offices in the Pine River Building on Friday, March 11.

The company was incorporated in 1968 and purchased by attorney Don Berlage in 1974. Berlage serves as president and legal counsel.

In recent years, the title company has been considerably expanded and automated. It now employs 11 title examiners and closing agents serving many surrounding counties.

In addition to title insurance, the company offers several other real estate-oriented services.

Northern Michigan Title Co. is an agent for Lawyers Title Insurance Corp. and in 1987 insured over $130 million worth of real estate transactions.

Soil unit to handle permits

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Soil and Water Conservation District, with headquarters in Boyne City, will soon be administering the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act.

Up to now the act has been administered and permits issued under the direction of the Department of Building Inspection in Charlevoix.

The change in administering bodies was prompted by the resignation of Ron Geor, who had been serving as compliance officer for the act.

The Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act went into effect on Jan. 1, 1975. It specifies that "Any person who proposes an earth change which will disturb one or more acres of land, or land which is located within 500 feet of a surface watercourse, within the county shall obtain a grading permit prior to initiating the earth change."

Most soil erosion permits are issued for construction of houses on the shores of lakes and streams, although some are issued for such inland activities as excavating for shopping centers or large industrial projects.

Although administration of the act is being moved from a county agency to a federal agency, the county will be kept informed by monthly reports of the numbers of applications received and permits issued, with copies of permits going to the county building inspection department.

The county will also retain responsibility for legal assistance in prosecutions for failure to comply with the act.

The Charlevoix County Soil and Water Conservation District will receive $10,000 annually from the county for administering the act.

Ski champ beginning long climb

Cumberland and Charlevoix head coach Erik Lundteigen say.

"Your shin has to be right next to the gate," Cumberland says in describing slalom technique. "concentration is my problem."

"In ski racing you are either right on or you are not," Lundteigen says.

Cumberland knows exactly what his coach means. At last year's high school regional meet, Cumberland's ski came off, he fell and was out of the running. At the Junior Olympics in Killington, Vermont, last year, while hitting speeds of up to 65 miles per hour, Cumberland caught a ski tip and crashed.

"I'm very competitive. I'm impatient," Cumberland says, laughing.

Budget

Mike Greeley and received support from Mayor Ralph McRae, council member Bill Haggard and resident Tom Erber.

Wiesner said an engineer with two or three years' experience, working under registered engineer Wiesner, could save the city $30,000 or more in a year.

About a quarter-million in engineering costs are included in the total $4.5 million city spending plan submitted by Wiesner. Proposed four percent raises for assessor Bob Potter and city planner Gerry Harsch were questioned by council member Norm Probert.

Wiesner said Potter should not be blamed for errors made by a contracted firm in reappraising residential property.

And he defended Harsch, saying he normally works 15 to 18 hours a week instead of the eight to 11 in his contract.

"I don't know how he kept up" with projects in the summer, Wiesner said, comparing Harsch's job to "dodging darts all day long."

There's a sparkle to Cumberland's mix of assurance and determination. Appropriately, his current hero is Alberto Tomba, the Italian who took gold medals at Calgary in slalom and giant slalom, and boasted that East German gold medal skater Katarina Witt would be asking him for a date. "He's cool. I like his style," Cumberland says.

"Wes is a risk taker," his mother Sandy Bonello says, nervously referring to her son's

Catwalk

present look. The corps says the lighthouse will remain.

Bid solicitations were to have gone out at the first of March, says Ross Kittleman, chief of the Grand Haven office of the corps. If they haven't yet, he said, they will in a few days.

Specifications for bidders do not include a catwalk, he said. If the 30-day bidding period ends with no resolution of the dispute, the bids will not be opened, he said.

The corps does not have the authority to construct recreational facilities, Kittleman said, a stumbling block reiterated in a letter to Davis from the corps' Detroit district headquarters.

Davis aide Don Wickersham said the congressman talked by phone with corps officials in Detroit but made no progress.

So Davis is pursuing the request with the corps in Washington, D.C. Wickersham said he had no idea how long it may take to receive a response.

The corps has said it would build a catwalk if some other entity would pay for it. And Kittleman said the bid specifications could be altered up to 10 days before the end of the bidding period.

More likely, though, a catwalk would have to be bid separately at a later date if funding were found, Kittleman said.

spills and injuries. "But risks are probably what it takes to make it."

She is supportive of her son's dream. "It's thrilling, frustrating and an awful lot of worry—I worry most about him not achieving his goals, not about the injuries. It's a lot of pressure for him."

Cumberland began skiing at age two, between his mother's legs. By five he was competing in NASTAR races. At nine he started dreaming of the Olympics. Now, as skiing consumes his life, his mother, who works full-time, is preparing to rent their Charlevoix home for the summer to help raise funds for her son's training.

Lockwood estimates serious ski training requires an additional "$8,000 to $12,000 a year."

"Wes is really solid technically. He must develop himself physically, too. Skiers need quick, strong legs. Strength, agility and mental concentration are the keys," Lundteigen says.

"I know I have the talent," Cumberland says. "It's whether I put everything I have into it. I'm tired right now. It's the end of the season. But skiing is the only thing I ever really wanted to do."

"I love the feel of hitting those gates. I love standing at the top of the Alps. I memorize the combinations, the flushes, the straights..."

He pauses. "I pick up speed on the straights, then come the hairpin turns... It's the thrills."

High school celebrates 100th year

How old is the high school from which you graduated?

If you graduated from Charlevoix High School, the answer would be 100. At least 1888 is the date the first class graduated although the building was constructed two years earlier. It served as an all-grade school.

That is why Charlevoix High School will be observing the 100th anniversary of that first graduating class this year, 1988.

Charlie Bentley, high school counselor, is spearheading a committee to do something special in this hundredth year since the community first had a population large enough to support a high school. He's seeking committee members (he already has a few) who will join him in making this a memorable event.

Right now everything is on hold while a larger committee can be formed but I'd like to give you a review of what he has suggested.

The observance will not coincide with commencement scheduled for June 8 because that date belongs to the Class of 1988.

Because the July Fourth weekend is a long one this year and because Charlevoix does not go all-out for a bang up Fourth, he has suggested an informal get-together, perhaps an afternoon event.

To bring alumni who live elsewhere home for the observance, a date must be set and a tentative program formulated.

Give Bentley a buzz, write him a letter, give him your name (on a piece of paper, please) when you meet him on the street so he and a few other on-scene volunteers can get started. And send your ideas, too. He's open for suggestions.

Bentley's department has offered to compile a list of all graduates from good ole C.H.S.

No one's expecting anything from the early graduates but who is the oldest? If you have any ideas, let him know.

Which high school in Charlevoix did various graduates graduate from?

The first one was constructed a little north of the center of the block between Clint and Mason Streets in an area now bordered by Grant Street on the west. It was of white brick and was a two story building constructed in 1886, to replace a wooded school house that burned.

The commencement for the first class to ever graduate from a Charlevoix High School was held June 10, 1888 and, except for 1890, there's been a graduating class every year. In that year there just weren't any seniors.

The classes in those days were very small. Receiving diplomas in that first class were Marguerite Enos, Edith Hawkins, Josie Litzan, Jennie Stover, Luna Washburn and Phila Wood.

In 1889, the first males, Clayton Whitmeyer and Fred Green, graduated along with Lula Carter and Ada Litzan. The number of graduates in each class grew until it hit more than 150 in the mid-1970.

By the turn of the century, the community constructed a high school per se. It was completed in 1901 on the south side of the same block. A gymnasium, the first in the community, was added in 1927 along with a grade school now in use as a middle school.

By the late 1950's, population growth and fire codes outdated this building, which was replaced with the present high school which opened in 1961. The present elementary opened in 1968.

Sometime after 1930 the former Central School (former community school) which became a grade school and the site of the Charlevoix County Normal School was razed. The 1901-1961 building was razed early in the '60s.

Alumni must now number well into the thousands (the number hasn't been counted at this point). And today's Charlevoix High School would like to welcome them home. Event organizers would like graduate's names and present addresses for the anniversary and in an effort to organize an alumni association.

The old high school (left) and grade school are pictured in this postcard from 1911. This year will mark the 100th anniversary of Charlevoix High School's first graduating class. Fran Martin's Reflections has more information.

Seniors can seek grant for center

by PEG OHLE

About 35 senior citizens ate chop suey for lunch, then broke into smaller groups for card games and a government class at the Charlevoix Senior Center.

With variations in menu, class subjects and after-lunch activities, this pattern is pretty much followed five days a week. But there is not enough room in the Senior Center at the VFW Hall for hobbies, crafts and other projects.

The center needs more room — "a home of our own" — says Sherry Black, program coordinator.

But members have felt they were up against a roadblock — a county Commission on Aging that Mayor Ralph McRae says does a lot for the eastern side of the county but nothing for the Charlevoix area.

Now that the center has discovered it can apply for a state grant without the commission's blessing, Black found members a little more receptive when she and McRae attended Monday's commission meeting.

The Charlevoix center has complained in the past to city council and the county board that it is being shortchanged by the Commission on Aging. But the commission responds there is no money for Charlevoix, she says.

Seniors centers in Boyne City and East Jordan are larger and receive greater funding from the commission, Black says.

There is a possibility of a building being available for the center, but it is old and needs work. So the Charlevoix center wanted to apply for a grant from the state Office of Services to the Aging.

After being told by the aging commission only that agency could apply for a grant, Black sought a second opinion and received a different answer.

Black says the commission does not pay any bills or wages at the center, but does serve meals provided through state and federal funds.

The center is supported by contributions from Charlevoix United Way, Rainbow Shop and donations from the City of Charlevoix and Hayes Township. Last year each donated $1,000 and Charlevoix

The luncheon group gathers at the Charlevoix Senior Center every weekday at noon for lunch, visiting, learning and doing.

Architect Jack Begrow's initial conceptual drawing of a replacement bandshell in East Park places the structure near the water in the center of the park. Begrow is working with committee members on alternate configurations.

Bandshell replacement supporters get to work on plans, fund-raising

Renewed attempts to renovate the crumbling bandshell in East Park are beginning to hit full stride.

A group of residents has begun looking at proposals for reconstruction of the structure and for fund raising.

Earlier tries at doing something about the bandshell have failed to reach their goal.

A nest egg of up to $55,000 has the current group enthusiastic about their chances of success, however.

Possible funds could come from a $26,000 city East Park fund, $12,500 in the Robert Bridge Memorial Fund for park improvements, $14,000 from sale of city property on Stover Road and about $3,000 from two individually held bank accounts from earlier fund raisers.

The group has broken into subcommittees and has met with local architect Jack Begrow, who volunteered to work on concepts for the bandshell.

Begrow said engineer Al Ranger and architects Hans Wiemer and Lou Orlowski have also volunteered to help. Most of them worked on earlier bandshell projects.

Begrow's first conceptual drawing showed a larger stage situated at the center of the park, near Round Lake. It involved some retracing and movement of the fish pond.

He said the location better utilized the amphitheater styling of the park and allowed for continued viewing of boats through the use of glass back wall panels.

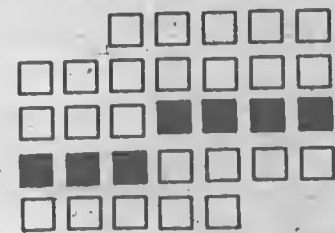

The proposal prompted discussion of the possible inclusion of restrooms or dressing rooms under the stage, which would sit near dock level.

Begrow was asked to also make drawings of proposals in the present stage location or flush with the side wall of the Wharfside Market.

Some members of the community band questioned

Ahead-lines

School tax vote

Voters in the Charlevoix school district will be voting on a three-mill tax increase for two years for general operations on Monday, March 28.
 Because two previous tax levies expired in December, school officials say, the increase would amount to only 1.2 mills more than paid last year.
 Increased costs of doing business have put the district in a bind, say Superintendent Gordon VanWieren and Business Manager Vince Olach.
 A three-year contract giving teachers seven percent annual raises is just part of the reason the district needs added taxes, VanWieren says.
 The district has been cutting into a fund equity (money saved up for emergencies) for the past three years after building it up for several years.
 The $260,000 fund equity at the end of the fiscal year will amount to about five percent of the $5 million budget, compared to a governmental standard of 15 percent.
 Olach says about $400,000 in new money will be needed to cover known expense increases and several unknowns remain.
 Among the unknowns is the increase in health benefit premiums. Last year the premiums rose 22 1/2 percent and this year they could rise as much as 20 percent again, Olach says.
 Another area the school district has no control over, VanWieren says, is utility costs, which continually rise.

The three-mill increase would bring in an added $520,000 to $550,000 annually, depending on the effects of the Headlee tax-cutting amendment which is tied to the cost-of-living index.
 The district levies less millage than do the school districts in neighboring Boyne City, Petoskey, East Jordan and Ellsworth, the administrators say.
 One mill of taxes raises $1 for every $1,000 in State Equalized Valuation of property. Property is assessed for taxation at one-half the current market value.
 So the owner of a house with a sales value of $50,000 would be paying $30 more a year in school taxes if the millage were approved and the assessment were unchanged.
 Because the two other levies have expired, taxes on that same property would be reduced by $45 if the tax increase were not approved.

Shore proposals ready for public

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, March 16, 1988—PAGE 3

Proposals for lakeshore zoning changes are finally ready for public comment.

The proposals were drawn up by a citizen-government committee following last summer's dispute over condominium-type development along waterways.

The city planning commission will hold a hearing on the proposals at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 23, at City Hall.

Also to be heard at that time are several other recently formulated proposed amendments dealing with such items as building height, fence height, jurisdiction over above-water structures and parking.

City council will hold a hearing after the planning commission acts on the proposals and passes its recommendations on to the council.

The proposals were presented to council in November by the seven-member committee and were referred to the planning commission for review.

An official notice containing the proposals — including those not specifically dealing with the lakeshore zoning issue — appears elsewhere in this week's Courier.

City planner Gerry Harsch prepared explanations for the lakeshore amendments, which are written in the precise language of the zoning ordinance.

The recommendations deal with the following areas:
 — Boat houses, boat docks and related parking;
 — Building heights in lakeshore areas;
 — Yard setbacks aimed at keeping buildings away from the water;

— Discretionary powers for council to further regulate lakefront property uses;
 — View corridors along the waterfront.

Members of the committee were: Norm Probert, William Haggard, Walt Hufford, Arthur Ranger, D'Ann Rothenberger, Pat Russell and Harsch.

Goals and objectives
 As they began their work, committee members established a number of goals and objectives, which follow:

1. Identify those zone districts which require additional regulation — other areas of concern; community economics.
2. Establishment of standards and methods of maintaining views from public right-of-way and public lands — look into the matter of side yard setbacks.
3. Preserve some view to the water body on each property from the public right-of-way or public properties.
4. Restrict height to a

Among the proposed zoning ordinance amendments are planned regulations of boathouses, such as these on the north side of Round Lake. Presently, the ordinance does not address boathouses or boat docks.

reasonable elevation consistent with historic Charlevoix and to protect if reasonable over views from adjacent properties stage elevations back from the waters edge.

5. Establish where reasonable appropriate setbacks from water's edge.
 6. Make certain uses of properties adjacent to the water's edge subject to a special use permit procedure.

Proposed amendments
 After study and deliberation, the following proposed amendments were developed. The explanations which follow each proposal are those written by Harsch.

Amendment 5.32 (7) R-1 Zone District
 Recreational boat docks, boat houses, boat launch ramps and piers are permitted as principal or accessory structures subject to the regulations provided in this chapter and further subject to any applicable federal and state regulations or laws, and providing further that for each one and one-half boat docking spaces in excess of two spaces, there shall be provided one on-site parking space accessible to the user of the docking space.

Explanation: At the present time recreational boat docks, launch ramps and piers, are permitted as accessory structures. This amendment will allow such uses to be principle uses of lake shore property. Further as amended, this section will require that when docks are placed along the lake shore that sufficient parking be provided to accommodate the cars of individuals using the docking space. The proposed docking requirements make provision for residential users living on the property, by not requiring additional parking spaces for their particular use.

Amendment to Section 5.35 - R-1 Zone District
 5.35 Height Regulation
 No building shall exceed twenty-six feet in height. Providing however that on lots adjacent to the waters of the Pine River Channel, Round Lake, Lake Charlevoix or Lake Michigan no building shall exceed eighteen feet in height when located in a required rear yard set back, including boat houses constructed lakeward of the water mark.

Explanation: At the present time, buildings within this Zone District are allowed to be constructed to 35' or two and one-half stories with the exception of accessory buildings, which are limited to 18'. This amendment will allow buildings, such as boat houses built in the rear yard, along the lake shore not to exceed 18' in height. The purpose of this amendment is to keep a low profile for buildings along the lake's edge, thus protecting the visual aspects of the lake's environment from public property's, as well as the over view to the lake from adjacent residential uses. It should be kept in mind that this regulation only applies to the R-1 zone district.

Amendment to Section 5.142, Marine-Commercial District
 Permitted uses may be authorized in this zone district provided that an application is submitted for a special use permit and approved in accordance with the procedures, provisions and standards or Article IX of this Chapter and the site plan meets with the requirements of the City of Charlevoix Fire Department.

Explanation: Because of the special nature of the Marine-Commercial district, which is for the most part on the southside of Round Lake. And because of the special side yard and viewing corridor requirements proposed. It is recommended that uses in this district come under the special use provision of the zoning ordinance.

Amendment to Section 5.144 (d), Marine-Commercial
 (d) No rear (water) or side yard requirements; Provided on each parcel or land consisting of one or more lots there shall be

Tax process hurts resorters

Editor,

The Feb. 10th Courier made for interesting reading. The front page story citing problems with the city-wide reappraisal provided contrast to the letter from George Bradbury concerning the appraisal of his cottage.

His cottage on the corner of Mercer and Elm is in the same area as the Chicago Club. While the Chicago Club has received a lower total (appraisal) in the settlement of a lawsuit over previous assessments, Mr. Bradbury's assessment went up almost 25 percent (the average increase was 6.7 percent).

It is handy that the only time he can appeal this assessment is during March. This certainly does not give a summer resident much of a chance to plead his case, does it?

The only options we see for

Letters to the editor:

Mr. Bradbury are to grin and bear it, or hire an attorney and file suit (eg, the Chicago Club). The appraisal has classified the property as "Lakeview", Mr. Bradbury states in his letter a) that the cottage is only habitable your (summer) months a year and b) that the trees and brush obscure this view. We're not rocket scientists, but we bet that the view of the lake changes a lot between winter and summer (when the trees and shrubs have leaves). Does his claim ever get tested during the summer?

We vacation in Charlevoix, and have been looking for a place in town, but this certainly shows a valuable lesson about the treatment of vacationers and summer residents by the local government.

One more thought: what if summer residents decide to hire lawyers and file suit? Will property taxes have to be increased so the City Beautiful can hire more lawyers? It certainly seems like someone ought to be able to look at this without going to court!

Leadership development: Idea at right time

If your plane crashed in a desert and your group had 15 items at hand, how would you list them in order of importance? That was one of the challenging questions asked at the leadership development program.

Twenty-eight enthusiastic men and women signed up for the eight weekly sessions sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service. After attending one of the sessions, I wish I had signed up myself!

The interesting mix of people, budding young leaders as well as battered veterans of good causes, stimulated each other's enthusiasm for volunteering.

Leadership development is an idea whose time has come — certainly for the city of Charlevoix. Stop and think a minute. Who are the leaders in our town? In Boyne City it's Everett Kircher. In East Jordan it's the Malpass family. In the township, it's

EDITH GILBERT

Oscar Stroud. But Charlevoix? Years ago, if you wanted to get anything done — like building a new hospital, library or park — there were the Saltonstalls, Bridges and Hawleys to turn to. (I remember when the late Esther Hawley and I sent out an appeal by letter to raise money to buy the present parking lot next to the library. We received enough checks from both summer and year-round people by return mail to close the deal.)

This boon period was followed by a bleak do-nothing period while people sat back with satisfaction and basked in the glory of their achievements. During these quiet years, the only leadership development came from a new source, the real estate developers.

The surge of condo building was followed — like day follows night — by leaders of anti-movements. Anti-ugly signs. Anti-dirty air. Anti-water pollution. Anti-over-development. The only major pro, not anti, beautification effort evolved during this period was the petunia project. (We're not including the city, state, government projects, like parking lots,

The sounds of spring

Two sounds signify the arrival of spring in Charlevoix:

The clink of sap bucket lids rattling in the wind and the cawing of crows from the lofty pinnacles of ancient maples.

There was clinking and cawing aplenty in the old town over the weekend, as winter paid a return visit to Northern Michigan, soaking us with snow, freezing rain and gusty winds.

I don't imagine there was much sap running because of the frigid temperatures, but the crows didn't seem to mind the foul weather as they soared from tree to tree, cawing at each other and at me as I putzed around shoveling snow and chipping ice from the car windows. Sometimes I'd caw back, but they recognized me as an imposter because of my stocking cap.

All of which started me thinking about crows — which are as common as houseflies but have suffered from an indifferent press over the years.

Few people call the newspaper all a-twitter to say they have spotted a crow like they do when they see a robin, a yellow-breasted sapsucker or a snowy owl. Crows are simply there and that is that. They probably have been there all winter, but nobody really pays much attention to them.

The crow that inhabits Northern Michigan is sometimes referred to as the "common crow" and is so widely distributed it is found in most parts of the world. In England, they are called "rooks" or "jackdaws." The largest crows are called "ravens" and like to hang around pallid busts of Pallas and croak "Nevermore."

In short, the crow is very successful as birds go, probably because it is so flexible regarding its diet and habitat. One bird book maintains that the crow will eat anything, "animal or vegetable, living or dead."

The encyclopedia describes the crow as "gregarious and intelligent to a high degree. They are easily domesticated."

Crows also hate dogs.

We once had a tame crow named Sylvia in the neighborhood who detested our rat terrier, Ginny. And the feeling was mutual. Whenever Ginny saw Sylvia, she would take after her, growling, yelping and threatening mayhem. Of course, Ginny couldn't fly very well, so Sylvia never was in any real danger. In fact, she seemed to enjoy teasing the dog.

One day Ginny was dozing in the front yard when Sylvia swooped down on her, cawing ferociously. Ginny sprang to her feet and took chase, never taking her eyes off the bird which was soaring about five feet from the ground. Suddenly there was a sickening thud from the backyard. Sylvia had led Ginny smack into the side of the sandbox.

Another time Ginny was asleep on the porch railing when Sylvia came by looking for a little action. Once again, Ginny took after her — directly in the path of an automobile. Ginny ended up doing a few cartwheels under the car and spent the night at the vet's where she was treated for bruises and abrasions.

Fran Martin tells about another North Side crow that enjoyed backyard cookouts. Whenever there was a picnic under way, this crow would be among the uninvited guests, snatching food morsels from the table and making a general nuisance of itself.

My great-grandfather once had a pet crow that liked practical jokes. Once grandpa left his false teeth on his bedroom windowsill and they disappeared. Shortly after, a neighbor from the village came trotting over with grandpa's teeth in her apron pocket.

"A crow left them on my windowsill," she explained.

I guess she recognized grandpa's smile.

Traffic congestion relief effort laudable

Editor,

As a 37-year summer resident (actually my husband or his parents have been taxpayers since our cottage was built in 1912) I've been aware of the awful increase in summer congestion downtown.

We live on the north side, and more and more frequently I discover that southbound traffic is backed up almost to the IGA when the bridge is up. On these occasions — although I much prefer shopping in Charlevoix — I'm apt to do a U-turn and drive to Petoskey.

Good luck on your efforts to relieve the situation.

Leadership development comes along at right time

tree planting, water treatment plants, etc.

This brings us up to now, when happily a new day is dawning. North Point is not being handed over for more condo development on a silver platter with a lace doily. Instead, local leadership has said, "enough is enough."

Lake Michigan's pristine dunes will be preserved under the guardianship of the township for prosperity thanks to Little Traverse Conservancy. Let there be condo development where it does not interfere with public conveniences, where condos don't block views and don't block traffic, don't block access to the beaches. That's the clear loud voice of Charlevoix's present leadership.

And who represents this leadership? We don't have a Kircher, a Malpass, a Stroud in our town. What we do have is a group of neat people, who each have their own sphere of influence.

For example, whose name do you associate with the words school, band, hospital, recreation, the arts, media, really, merchant, justice, professional, industry, government, club, volunteer and so on? You've got it!

Many of the leaders from the aforementioned groups have recently joined forces to complete a pet project that was begun years ago — a new bandshell in East Park to be named after long-time band director, beloved Clarence Odmark. And perhaps a mixed group such as this is a healthier and more democratic way to accomplish a civic goal.

We applaud the timely leadership — development program to strengthen the skills of those who already have assumed leadership roles, as well as the encouragement of future leaders in our community.

And if you're still wondering what the three most important items are when you are stranded in the desert, according to survival experts, it's 1) a mirror, 2) a top coat and 3) a quart of water, in that order. If you want to know why — just sign up for the next course and find out a lot more.

UNDERSTANDING LAW

It is said that the United States is a litigious society, that is, we tend to bring our disputes to court often. We also perhaps have more laws and regulations than any other country in the world. Some people think these laws protect our rights while others think we have too many. In either case, most people agree that our laws are complex and difficult to interpret and understand. Join us over the following weeks and months while we discuss your rights and the United States legal system.

I am pleased to welcome you as a reader to this column. Join me as we explore the world of jurisprudence trying to simplify many misunderstood areas while acquainting everyone with the legal resources that are available in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. Through understanding and knowledge I hope to bring to you a better concept of your rights, responsibilities and legal remedies.

Property which may be used in this fashion totally eliminates any visual relationship between the adjacent street and the water body of Round Lake.

Because of the nature of Charlevoix as a tourist community and the importance of its scenic qualities as well as the importance of the relationship between the visitor and the water bodies within the community, it is deemed in the public interest to establish and maintain some, and it may be very limited, view space from the adjacent street to the water body.

This amendment is proposed to establish such a space and set standards for the ground coverage use of the parcels within the district.

(g) Maximum percentage of lot coverage shall be fifty percent.

Explanation: In the present zoning ordinance, all of the property in the Marine-Commercial district can be covered with structures with the exception of a 20-foot strip along the right-of-way along Belvedere Avenue.

This amount of lot coverage is deemed excessive and the proposed ordinance would reduce it to 50 percent of total coverage.

(h) Maximum building height elevation shall be elevation 620 feet U.S.G.S.

Explanation: This proposed amendment would limit the building height elevation of any structures within the Marine-Commercial district to the elevation of 620 feet U.S.G.S. (approximately current water level)

Amendment to Section 5.162, C-S District

5.162 Commercial-Scenic Use Regulations

Use regulations. The permitted usages authorized in this zone district may be authorized providing that an application is submitted for a special use permit and approved in accordance with the procedures, provisions, and standards of Article IX of this chapter and that the site plan meets with the requirements of the City of Charlevoix Fire Department. The permitted special uses for land and/or buildings in the "C-S" zone district are as follows:

(Existing subparagraphs 1-10 of Charlevoix Code Section 5.162 remain unchanged.)

Explanation: Because of the special nature of uses within the Commercial-Scenic district and its particular location along the Pine River Channel, the proposed amendment would require the land use permit in this area to be issued under the special use permit provisions of the city zoning ordinance.

Amendment to Section 5.164 - Required rear yard set back in the C-S District

5.164 Area Regulations

(3) Rear Yard: ... provided further on lots adjacent to the Pine River Channel or Round Lake, the required rear yard set back shall be 65 feet.

Explanation: To assure there is an adequate setback and open space for public purposes along the Pine River Channel, the ordinance would establish a 65-foot rear yard setback from the edge of the Pine River Channel or Round Lake.

Amendment to 5.176, Accessory Buildings

Add to 5.176 (4)

...provided further that boat houses may be constructed to the rear property line and may not extend lakeward of the water mark for a distance exceeding forty feet.

Explanation: This amendment establishes regulation of boat houses as they would be allowed as accessory structures.

provided a view space from the adjacent public street to Round Lake, unobstructed by permanent landscaping or structures. The width of said view space shall be twenty (20) percent of the property width, however, no view space shall be less than ten (10) feet in width. When possible view spaces on adjoining lots or parcels shall be side by side to maximize the view from the public street to the water. Such view space may be used for seasonal boat storage and other temporary uses of the property.

Explanation: Under the existing city zoning ordinance, buildings may go from side property line to side property line and from the water edge to within 20 feet of the adjacent street right-of-way and to a structure height of 35 feet.</

PUBLIC HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
March 23, 1988

Please take notice that the CITY OF CHARLEVOIX PLANNING COMMISSION will convene and hold a Public Hearing on the 23rd day of March, 1988 to receive public comments related to the proposed adoption of the following amendments to the CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ZONING ORDINANCE.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND Section 5.17 of Chapter 51 of Title V of the Code of the City of Charlevoix.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.17 (4) be amended to read as follows:
(4) Where a Zoning District includes a stream, lake or other body of water, the District boundary shall be deemed to extend to the thread of the stream or center of the lake or other body of water. It is the intent of this subsection to include within the Zoning District all submerged lands within the corporate limits of the City of Charlevoix.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.191 (1) be amended to read as follows:

Section 5.191 (1). Fences, Walls, and Screen Regulations. Fences, walls, screens and other devices of a similar nature are permitted subject to the following:

(1) Fences, walls or other similar objects in all districts except Industrial and Marine Commercial, shall not exceed six (6) feet in height above grade when located in any portion of the rear or side yard and not exceed three (3) feet above grade when located in a portion of the front yard, nor shall any such fence, wall or other similar object be maintained within fifteen (15) feet of the front lot line.

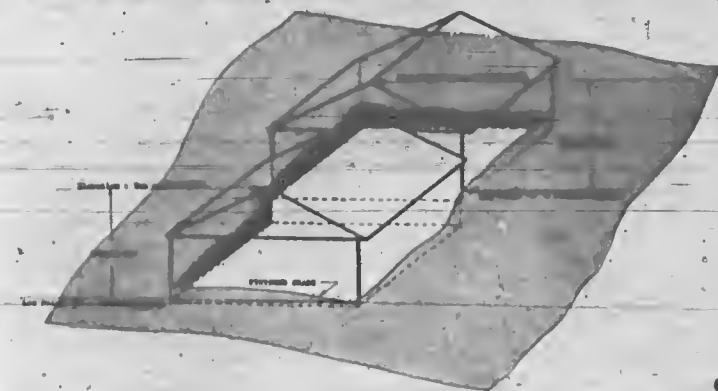

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND Section 5.191 (5) and (6) of Chapter 51 of Title V of the Code of the City of Charlevoix.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.191 (5) and (6) of the Charlevoix City Code be hereby amended to delete said 5.191 (5) and (6) in their entirety.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.7 (7) designated Height of buildings be amended to read as follows:

Height of Building:
That building height for any structure or portion of a structure (having its ground floor in a single horizontal plane), is the vertical distance measured from the lowest elevation of the finished grade line of the ground around the structure to the highest point of the roof for flat roofs; to the deck line of mansard roofs; and to the mean height level between eaves and ridge for gable, hip and gambrel roofs.

Building height for buildings having ground floors in two or more horizontal planes at differing elevations may be calculated as if each ground floor plane were a separate building.

Building Roof

The term "building roof" shall include all materials and appurtenances covering or above the roof deck of a building, including, but not limited to, air conditioners, antennas, satellite receiving dishes, heating units, elevator housings, skylights, chimneys, plumbing vents, turrets and other similar items. Provided, however, that chimneys and plumbing vents shall not be considered building roof, when their extension above the roof deck is required to meet State or local building, plumbing and/or safety codes and there is no reasonable design alternative, including a rearrangement of floor plans for the building, which would allow for a height reduction of such appurtenances. Provided, further, that turrets and similar architectural features shall not be considered building equipment, chimneys, plumbing vents and similar appurtenances shall not be considered building roof for height calculation purposes when their area calculated from a plan view does not exceed two (2) percent of the total roof area calculated from a plan view and their height above the building roof does not exceed fifteen (15) percent of the building height.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.12 be amended to read as follows:

(1) Water Mark. The water mark shall be at elevation 581.0 U.S.G.S. In the location it existed at the adoption date of this amendment.

Existing subsection paragraphs 1 through 6 of Section 5.12 shall be renumbered as subparagraphs 2 through 7.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.12 (3) be amended to read as follows:

(3) Yard, Rear: The open space extending across the rear of a lot between a side lot line and being the required minimum horizontal distance between the rear lot line and the rear of the main building or any projections thereof. Along the Pine River Channel, Round Lake, Lake Michigan or Lake Charlevoix the rear lot line shall be the water mark of the adjacent Pine River Channel, Round Lake, Lake Michigan or Lake Charlevoix.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.5 be amended by adding the following definition term and by renumbering the subparagraphs of 5.5 accordingly:

Boat Docking Space. The space along a dock or similar structure of sufficient size to moor a recreational boat. Each twenty-six (26) lineal feet of dock space or fraction thereof or sufficient size to moor a recreational boat shall be considered a boat docking space provided that spaces of less than eighteen (18) lineal feet shall be excluded. Dock and suitable for docking a recreational boat shall be considered a dock space.

Boat House. A principal or accessory building located in a residential district used exclusively for the docking and/or storage of boats and other recreational marine equipment; however, excluding structures in the marine commercial district used for principal and accessory uses allowed in that district.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.32 be amended to add subsection 5.32 (7) to read as follows:

(7) Recreational boat docks, boat houses, boat launch ramps and piers are permitted as principal or accessory structures subject to the regulations provided in this Chapter and further subject to any applicable Federal and State regulations or laws, and providing further that for each one and one-half (1 1/2) boat docking spaces in excess of two spaces, there shall be provided one on-site parking space accessible to the user of the docking space.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ordains that Section 5.35 be amended to read as follows:

No building shall exceed twenty-six (26) feet in height. ## City sued over secrecy in lawsuit settlement

The city could end up in court because of a settlement it entered to avoid a court fight.

A lawsuit has been filed in an attempt to compel the city to release terms of a mediated settlement in a lawsuit over the Park Place condominium development on Pine River Channel.

Federal district judge Aver Cohn of the Detroit area, who owns a condominium near the Park Avenue site, filed suit last week in Charlevoix County circuit court.

His suit says the settlement must be made public under the state Freedom of Information Act. Court settlements are not listed among the documents exempt from disclosure, according to the suit.

The lawsuit was filed after the city rejected Cohn's request for terms of the settlement through a letter citing the Freedom of Information law.

The state attorney general's office earlier told the Couriers court procedures involving confidentiality prevent disclosure.

The parties involved in the lawsuit agreed to the confidentiality request, which was part of the settlement approved by circuit judge Richard Pajtas.

David Miles, a neighbor of the development, sued Northern Michigan Realty Services Inc. and the city after approval was given for an 11-unit condominium at 105 and 107 Park Avenue. Consideration of a 21-unit hotel was under way at City Hall.

Miles was joined in the suit by WATCH Inc., an area environmental group which at first funded his court challenge and then joined it.

Since Cohn's request by letter was rejected, there have been suggestions that terms of the accord would soon become public.

That has not happened, though, with some people close to the situation suggesting others were responsible for the initial secrecy agreement and for continued secrecy.

"We have no problem with releasing the agreement," said Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH. "It didn't make any difference to us."

Mayor Ralph McRae said after Monday's council meeting he would like the terms of the settlement made public and thinks city council members would, too. But council passed up an opportunity to vote to release the information after being briefed on Cohn's lawsuit by city attorney Jeff VanTreese during that meeting.

The lawsuit was settled through mediation arranged by a group of city residents including the mayor.

The plaintiffs and defendants met with Southfield attorney Lawrence Stockler and ironed out the accord.

The only detail released to the public was that construction of the 11-unit condo would continue.

The dispute divided city residents for half a year and was the subject of at least 15 meetings by public panels.

County may seek tax to support Grandvue

by PEG OHLE

For the first time in its history, Grandvue Medical Care Facility may be seeking a millage levy to help pay for operating costs.

This possibility came to light when the county board of commissioners discussed proposals to be placed on the August primary ballot.

Commissioner Thomas

Breaky, liaison person to Grandvue, told board members if proposed state legislation cutting Medicaid payments to nursing homes is passed, "It will break the back of Grandvue. They can't take it."

Grandvue has been having financial problems for some time. Money problems reportedly were the central issue in the resignation last fall of administrator Ronald Conkle.

During the 1986-1987 fiscal year, expenditures exceeded income by over $100,000.

This financial imbalance was due largely to the decrease in number of beds being used. During the year, the occupancy rate in the medical care facility was 93.6 percent, and in the first four months it dropped to 93.3 percent.

This is a sizeable decrease from early years. 1974, the occupancy rate was 97.9 percent, in 1975 it was 97.8 percent, and in 1976 it was 98.81 percent.

The residential unit was similarly under-occupied in 1986-1987, with only 82.2 percent of the unit being used.

However, the occupancy rate seems to be on the rise at the present time. In January of this year, it was 97.8 percent in the medical care unit and 96.1 percent in the residential unit.

If a cut in Medicaid funds makes it necessary to levy millage to keep Grandvue operating, a request for three-quarters of a mill (.75 mill) could be on the August ballot.

According to County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, such a levy would bring in about $350,000 next year.

Elementary students set for musical

Charlevoix Elementary School's spring musical "As Time Goes By" will be held in the high school gymnasium Thursday, March 24.

The musical will feature the 477 students in the first through the fifth grades in songs and dances of every decade in the 20th century.

Included will be selections ranging from "The Good Old Summertime," of the 1900's to modern songs.

The musical will be presented at 7:30 p.m. A dress rehearsal at 9:30 a.m. will be open to those unable to attend the evening performance.

Grand jury issues first indictments

Fifteen individuals have been indicted by a grand jury investigating drugs in Charlevoix County.

More indictments are expected in the future, county Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman said.

The 35 indictments issued so far list 58 offenses by 15 people. Lieberman said no names would be released until the suspects were arraigned in circuit court on felony charges.

The sheriff's department would not comment Monday, March 14, on whether arrests have been made. Arrest warrants were signed by Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas on Friday, March 11.

Lieberman said the "vast majority" of the charges were drug offenses, but he would not be more specific.

The grand jury, he said, is continuing to hear testimony after issuing the indictments on Thursday, March 10.

The 17-member citizens grand jury requested in September by Lieberman and Sheriff George Lasater and began its work in January.

Dale Boss holds up a piece of weed blanket that has been prepared for installation along the Operation Petunia roadway by jail trustee Casey Fortune (center). Sheriff George Lasater, who has volunteered inmates' help in the community project over the years, is at left.

Survey, weed blanket center stage at KCB event

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful will hold a membership meeting Saturday, March 19, at Edgewater Inn.

The organization's new weed blanket, which will be laid along the entire five-mile Operation Petunia flower bed, will be displayed and discussed.

Also, city zoning administrator Sue Erber will speak to the civic organization.

Results of a community-wide survey will be discussed, also. The survey, mailed to 600 addresses and available at the Chamber of Commerce office, sought opinions on community and KCB questions.

It is KCB's first community questionnaire since it conducted a water quality survey during the TCE contamination of the municipal water supply in the early 1980s.

The weed blanket is 16,000 feet long and will contain about 50,000 petunia-sized holes when a trustee at the county jail is finished with it.

A test strip of the petroleum-based substance was tried on a section of the petunia bed along the city golf course last year and worked as advertised.

KCB spent beyond its budgeted amount for weed pulling during the hotter-than-normal summer.

Sheriff George Lasater allowed KCB to have the holes cut by a trustee and has aided the planting for several years, said Operation Petunia originator Dale Boss.

The annual petunia planting will take place at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 26, along U.S. 31.

The Saturday, March 19, membership meeting will begin at 9 a.m. Cost of breakfast is $2.

First school foundation donation from staff

The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation has received its first major contribution.

The contribution was made by the support staff, faculty and administration of Charlevoix schools.

The dollar amount is not being announced because all contributions to the fund are not in, foundation chairman Mary Lee Campbell said.

Don Potter, Mary Seaman, Steve Stargardt and Mary Ann Chew headed the drive in various departments of the school district.

"This major contribution has come at an opportune time. The ground work has been laid by the foundation committee, which has been involved in its organization since last fall. We now have everything in place and are prepared to expand our operation," Campbell said.

"I am especially pleased that it has come from those people so involved with the students who will eventually realize the most from the foundation."

The Foundation was established in 1987 to give people an opportunity to contribute to activities, facilities and events not supported by tax revenues.

Foundation funds will not replace tax revenues, but will supplement them, Campbell said.

The foundation will accept tax-exempt contributions of any size.

Serving with Campbell on foundation executive committee are John M. Frey, vice chairman; Celeste W. Bickersteth, secretary; Scott L. Beatty treasurer; Thomas L. Dammann, Louis J. Hollow, Alyce L. Lesser, Suzi-G. Reis and Leonard Zehnder.

Max Novak, president of the board of education, Superintendent Gordon W. VanWieren and Chew, chairman of the curriculum committee, are non-voting members.

AROUND THE TOWN

Yes, the old water tower still stands over Pine River Channel.... But a Pennsylvania company that appeared in a great hurry to take it down still intends to....

A delay in getting city-required legalities completed and last weekend's late-winter snow caused delays for the firm.... The city was contacted earlier this week and told the company's crew should be in town early next week to take down the 82-year-old structure.

The purple will be gone from Charlevoix roadsides this summer.... Colors have been selected for the 50,000 petunias that 700 volunteers will plant on Thursday, May 26.... And they don't include purple....

The purple petunias have a habit of growing taller than the white and pink varieties and drowning out the other colors as summer goes on.... So five shades of pink and white have been planted at Renolda Greenhouse, where 900 flats are being prepared....

This year's shades: White Flash, Chiffon Magic, Pink Magic, Red Flash and — a new, appropriate for Charlevoix variety — Summer Madness.

City budget OK'd; projects, 1 mill cut

A month-long debate over city spending has resulted in a one-mill tax reduction and nearly $400,000 in spending cuts.

The centerpiece of the budget-cutting controversy was the $1.5 million general fund, which finances general government operations.

Several council members — led by Earl Muma — have been fighting for a two-mill reduction in the 10.6-mill general fund, but settled for a one-mill cut.

Scratched from that budget were $104,000 in items not related to ongoing services. Another $295,000 was sliced from other funds.

City Manager Mike Wiesner doubts whether similar reductions could be made in future years. Muma disagrees, saying, "You've got to give it a try first."

To offset the one-mill tax reduction, $109,000 will be taken from the fund balance (a reserve kept to ensure cash flow and for emergencies).

That would leave the fund with a $243,000 surplus at the end of the fiscal year in April 1989 — which is more than in Wiesner's original proposal.

That situation came about because the general fund cuts were greater than the millage reduction.

Items being trimmed from the general fund include putting $25,000 in a reserve for an aerial fire truck, sealing City Hall and the fire station against the weather, replacing second-story windows in City Hall, transferring $70,000 to the infrastructure improvement program and repairing the ceiling in the cemetery chapel.

The infrastructure transfer will be avoided by reducing the scope of a residential sidewalk replacement program from cracked and raised pieces to just raised ones.

The aerial truck fund will get its $25,000 from other sources — with $15,000 coming from the present year's budget and $10,000 from the motor pool fund.

The general fund cuts put spending at $1.39 million, down from $1.49 million, while revenue drops from $1.35 million to $1.28 million because of the one-mill decrease.

The millage rate must still be legally set in May following a hearing mandated by the state Truth in Taxation law.

Several items were stricken from other portions of the budget — many of them self-supporting services such as electric, water and Downtown Development Authority.

Among those were $200,000 of a $752,000 upgrading of the electrical system (being pushed back a year), purchase of a $55,000 beach-cleaning machine, building an underbridge walkway on the south side of the channel and installing decorative brick work on new sidewalks at Pointes North Inn.

Reduction of the general fund by one mill came on a unanimous vote following an unsuccessful attempt by Muma to win approval of a two-mill cut.

Voting to break a tie and defeat the two-mill cut was Mayor Ralph McRae, who sided with Shirley Roloff, Bill Haggard and Bill Bellows. For the reduction were Norm Probert, Butch Russell and Muma.

A plan by McRae to reduce the four-mill infrastructure tax by two mills and replace the funds with money from fund balances elsewhere in the total $6.5 million spending plan failed to attract support.

Saved from the cuts was relocation of the police and assessor's offices from the City Hall basement to the old fire garage. The $26,000 move is described by McRae as a "matter of convenience more than necessity."

The budget was approved on a 4-2 vote with Russell and Probert voting against the spending plan and Muma, Roloff, Haggard and Bellows voting for it.

Township says 'no' to golf course, homes

A proposal to build a golf course lined with homes has been shot down by Charlevoix Township.

The proposed Charlevoix Country Club would have straddled the Hayes-Charlevoix township line. The proposal was experiencing difficulty in Hayes Township, too.

On a 3-2 vote, the Charlevoix

Township board voted to reject a rezoning to planned unit development status, which would allow a mixture of uses such as golf course and residential.

Trustee Nancy Rajewski was joined by supervisor Oscar Stroud in voting for the rezoning, while trustee Dale Glass, treasurer Theda Williams and clerk Carol Martin voted against the move.

Williams said the township has a need for additional housing, perhaps in a subdivision, but questioned the golf course plan.

Martin said there would be no benefit to township residents in approving the 43-acre request, while Glass said the proposal was not the best possible use of the land.

Stroud and Rajewski said the plan was the best possible for the property between Lake Michigan and U.S. 31 off Old Orchard.

Township and county planning commissions recommended approval of the country club, Stroud said.

JACQUIE MERTA

Jacqui Merta is executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

For the past six years the State of Michigan has begun to take more notice of small business as evidenced by the Statewide Governor's Conference on Small Businesses and Michigan's Small Business Day.

The Governor's Conference on Small Business is held in February each year for the purpose of prioritizing recommendations for the governor to endorse. If not endorsed, at least Gov. James Blanchard and the Legislature are made aware of small business concerns.

Michigan's Small Business Day will be held May 17 and 18 in Lansing and highlighting this event will be the presentation of the Michigan Small Business Person of the Year award.

It's not surprising that Michigan and the nation recognize small business as entrepreneurial, innovative, creative and individualistic when you look at the following information provided by the SBA Office of Advocacy.

— 98 percent of the non-farm businesses in the United States are small businesses.

— The number of small businesses has increased steadily during the past 30 years. A record 609,000 new businesses were incorporated in 1985. Small-firm income grew 17 percent during 1984.

— Small businesses employ about half of the private work force, contribute 42 percent of all sales in the nation and account for 38 percent of the gross national product.

— Small businesses produced all of the net new jobs during the 1981-82 recession period and nine times as many jobs as large businesses during the 1984-85 recovery period.

— Small businesses provide about 67 percent of American's "first job" opportunities — making them responsible for the major cost in initial on-the-job training and basic skills.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

The cold and flu season has hit Charlevoix! That could be the understatement of the year. Our community has greatly been affected by these germs in the past month.

However, in our great scientific and human wisdom, we have not found a cure for the common cold. Yet we can walk into any drug store and find a bottle, pill or inhalant to help us deal with our cold.

We have cures for the coughs, sneezes, running noses, stuffed noses, headaches, back aches, chills, fevers and all the other symptoms of the common cold, but we have no cure for the cold itself. It almost seems to defeat our purpose to get over the cold.

I think this relates to the Christian and his responsibility in and to the world around him. When we come to know Christ as our personal Savior, we are given the responsibility to communicate Him and cause change in the world.

But so many times we fight the symptoms rather than the cause of the symptoms. Just like fighting the common cold we try to conquer the symptom without conquering the cause. However, unlike the common cold, there is a cure for the cause of the symptoms of sin that we see.

We are told in Ephesians 6:11, "For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual force of evil in the heavenly realms."

We battle for the rights of the unborn child, for true freedom of speech in our schools and communities, against hunger and poverty, and against the fatal attacks on the families and their values.

But these are against the flesh and blood. We are attacking the symptoms rather than the cause.

To battle against those things is not wrong, but we must go one step further if we want to remove the real problem which is sin. Our battle is not physical but a spiritual one. We need to fight this with spiritual warfare.

That warfare is surrounded with prayer and the communication that "God so loved the world that He gave His one and only Son that whoever believes in Him will not perish but have eternal life."

We need to pray for those persons involved in sin that God would change them.

And we need to communicate to them the story of the Gospel, which is turning the God through his Son Jesus Christ, seeking forgiveness for our sins, leading a life that God wants us to live.

Remember the symptoms will always be there if we do not remove the cause. Our battle is spiritual with Christ as our leader.

SCRAPBOOK

REFLECTIONS

Events continue through the years

What are the oldest on-going annual events in Charlevoix?

There are two, as I recall, the oldest being the St. Patrick's dinner served by members of St. Mary's parish and the second the Mason-Oddfellow cribbage tournament.

I truly don't know how long St. Patrick's dinner has been served at St. Mary's but it's been more than 60 years. Just as sure as March would roll around so would the good corned beef and cabbage dinner. Baked ham has been added in recent years.

There were the days when Mrs. James Gaskin, Mrs. Charles Hamlin and ladies of that era back in the early '20s would be preparing foods for the dinner on coal- or wood-burning stoves at home and on the second floor of the old St. Mary's school with others including Mrs. William Woods, Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Homer Brady Sr., Mrs. Fred Cartier, Mrs. James McCann and others with equally familiar names and later Mrs. Joseph Foster, just to name a few.

They baked homemade pies, cakes and bread from scratch, they whipped real cream and served real butter. In other words, they did everything the hard way compared to today's methods.

As far as the cribbage tournament is concerned, these two fraternal organizations have just completed their 58th year.

It all started at the beginning of what was to become known as the Great Depression of the 1930s when on one had much money and you arranged your own entertainment.

The tournament always started the first Thursday of the new year and went on for at least eight weeks. The ante was minimal and just about every cribbage player in the area was involved.

The Bergmann family, I think, is the one family that's been represented in the tournament since it began. Fritz Bergmann was a charter member and his sons and grandsons are still playing.

For years Sam Sorenson was the tournament secretary and since then there have been a couple other old-timers, Sims Baker and Hugh Mayne, who are still playing.

More recently Ron Geer, Clay Berry and Ted Pennell Jr. have done this chore.

I don't know how many years each has won but I do know that the Oddfellows have claimed the title more often than the Masons.

While these may not be historical events in our community, I think they're worth mentioning because they tell you a great deal about the people who've called Charlevoix home for a long time.

Earlier Charlevoix Yesterday pictured pillars on Bridge Street that were apparently featured at some special event.

Anne (Higman) Olmstead offers an explanation: They were featured at a Masonic Lodge convention held in Charlevoix and for many years were stored on the second floor of the Masonic Temple where Lodge No. 222 still meets regularly.

BANDSHELL

What should be done with the bandshell in East Park? The 30-year-old structure was never finished and now is deteriorating.

From time to time, community groups have tried to come up with solutions and funds. Another effort — backed with city government support and a nest egg of up to $50,000 — is under way. Members of a committee have been looking at various alternatives and are putting together fund-raising activities.

Before they can go very far, of course, they need a specific proposal. Working with the committee is architect Jack Begrow, who has volunteered to draw up several conceptual alternatives.

Two of those concepts are reproduced here — replacing the bandshell along the same end of the park and replacing it along the marina in the center of the park.

Other alternatives exist, of course, and are being considered. In one former attempt to replace the bandshell, for instance, it was suggested the structure be moved to the Clinton Street end of the park.

As the committee begins to get deeper into its work, the Courier is curious: What do you think?

The handy ballot attached doesn't include all possibilities, but does attempt to address the basic questions involved: What should be done? Should there be a roof? Where should the bandshell be placed? What should happen to the pond?

There's also a place for any other comments or suggestions you might have.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

The Courier would like to know what you think should be done with the bandshell in East Park. A committee of city residents has begun preliminary work.

Among the concerns they face are what should be done with the structure, where a bandshell should be located and what should happen to the pond in front of the stage.

In another of our periodic informal polls, the Courier is looking for your opinions. Mail your ballot to the Courier at P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix 49720.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE?

- ☐ Fix present bandshell
- ☐ Replace with new one
- ☐ Leave it alone

WHAT ABOUT THE POND?

- ☐ It's OK to move it
- ☐ It's OK to remove it
- ☐ Leave it alone

Other comments or suggestions _____

BANDSHELL ROOF?

- ☐ Put on a roof
- ☐ No roof

BANDSHELL LOCATION?

- ☐ Right where it is
- ☐ Along side of Wharfside (as in top drawing at right)
- ☐ Along marina shoreline (as in bottom drawing at right)
- ☐ A better place would be _____

These are two conceptual drawings of the possible future placement of the bandshell in East Park made by architect Jack Begrow, who has volunteered to work with a committee on bandshell improvements.

Ahead-lines

Solid waste disposal laws and techniques

Solid waste disposal will be the subject of two public meetings before the end of the month.
 Trash removal was identified as the No. 1 concern of 105 community people surveyed last month as part of a series of leadership development workshops being conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service following a request by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

One of the meetings will be a continuation of the on-going county Solid Waste Management Plan update committee's work.
 The other will be a program presented by the Cooperative Extension Service, which is an arm of Michigan State University.

The extension service's meeting on landfills and solid waste management will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 29, in the courtroom at the Charlevoix County Building.

The purpose of the meeting, according to county extension director Rod Cortright, is to acquaint people with the requirements for an environmentally sound landfill.

Among the participants will be Dr. Leighton Leighty, specialist in environmental law at Michigan State University; Cynthia Fridger of the extension service; and Don Halvorsen, area engineer for the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Topics to be covered include:
 — Past and present problems with sanitary landfills and challenges in the future;
 — An overview of Public Act 641 of 1979, which is the state's solid waste disposal law;

 — Construction and management practices required to insure landfills are environmentally secure;

— Items local communities should consider which may help insure a landfill will be constructed and maintained in an environmentally secure manner.

Alternative methods of disposal will be addressed at future meetings, Cortright said.

The normal meeting of the county solid waste panel will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 31, in the county building annex.

The committee is attempting to draw up an updated version of the county's solid waste management plan. Updating of the state-approved plan is required every five years.

The panel has been wrestling with questions such as whether to allow solid waste from other counties to be deposited in the county's only licensed landfill, a privately owned facility at Ironton.

Adding a new wrinkle to discussions was the sale late last year of the landfill to Waste Management Inc., the largest waste disposal company in the nation.

Waste Management has asked for the panel's blessing in enlarging the landfill from its present 40-acre site to 100 acres.

The committee has not yet taken a position on the proposed expansion, which is expected to be discussed at the March 31 meeting.

Alcoholics Anonymous meets at Alano Club, 104 Mason, noon.

Alatcen meets at Alano Club, 104 Mason, 8 p.m.
 Lions Club meets at Edgewater Inn for a luncheon meeting.

Kiwanis Club members, with aid from Bergmann Center clients, gather maple sap from downtown trees for their annual syrup-making fund-raiser. This year the Kiwanis have started tapping trees every other year, alternating sides of the road. The best weather for sap running is warm days and cold nights, president Ken Brill says.

AROUND THE TOWN

National recognition for the petunia-planting efforts of 700 Charlevoixans has been received.... And the honors may get greater.... Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has been named as a finalist in the federal Take Pride in America competition saluting community projects....

Operation Petunia is one of 210 finalists from around the nation—and Charlevoix County has two of the five Michigan projects to make the finals.... The other effort is a clean-up of Thumb Lake Beach by a 4-H Club from the Elmlra area....

Award winners will be selected by the Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of Education and Secretary of Agriculture.... There are expected to be about 50 winners, who will be honored along with finalists in a Washington, D.C., ceremony this summer.... KCB received a certificate of recognition for the petunia planting from Gov. James Blanchard in December.... The group was nominated for the award by the Charlevoix County Soil Conservation District.

Some things never change, they found out at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce while doing research for their 30th anniversary.... In looking through old minutes, budgets and plans, executive director Jacquie Merta and office manager Jackie Kruttsch saw references to past events such as the Maple Syrup Festival and Percharama....

But they also found an item with the timeliness of today's headlines.... "The Charlevoix Park Stage Committee operates under the Chamber of Commerce and its Program Committee as a civic effort to raise funds for, design and construct a Park Stage in East Park.".... That was part of the chamber's plan of action for its second year of existence — 1959.

When out-of-town property owners along the shores of Lakes Michigan-Charlevoix arrive to open their summer cottages this year, they will find noticeably lower lake levels than in the past two years.... The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says the February monthly mean level was about 20 inches below the all-time February high set in 1966....

The corps also predicts the August mean level will be about 22 inches below the all-time high mean for August, also set in 1966.... However, even with these lower levels, the lakes will continue to be above the long-term average level for the next several months.

2 school board posts up for vote

Persons interested in running for the school board may obtain nominating petitions from the administration office at 208 Clinton St.

Completed petitions must be returned to the administration office or the secretary of the board of education by 4 p.m. Monday, April 11.

Blanchard backs off on Medicaid but Grandvue may still seek tax

by PEG OHLE

When Gov. James J. Blanchard withdrew some of his proposed cuts in Medicaid nursing home care reimbursements, he lightened the burden of those responsible for running Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

However, Grandvue will continue to operate at a deficit of about $100,000 a year, according to County Commissioner Thomas Breakey, the county board's liaison person for Grandvue.

That will probably still mean some kind of millage levy for the medical care facility will be sought.

"We will still need about $100,000 to clean up last year's deficit," Breakey said. "Maybe we could levy a quarter or a third of a mill for just one year to get caught up."

Grandvue provides two types of nursing home care: Skilled medical care and residential care. It is the residential care unit that is causing Grandvue its greatest financial problem because residents in that wing are not eligible for Medicaid, which means that their care must be paid for by local funds if they are personally unable to pay.

Medicaid provides most of Grandvue's operating monies. In the last fiscal year, that amounted to $1,116,713.

Other revenues come from Medicare, private sources and Charlevoix County.

In January of this year, there were 73 residents in the medical care unit and 26 residents in the residential care unit of Grandvue.

Schools: Reserve used to pay bills; tax hike needed

For the past three years, Charlevoix Schools has spent more money than it has taken in.

That's been possible because the district had a large build-up of unspent cash from previous years' tax collections.

The fund equity, as this cash reserve is called, had increased so much over the years, in fact, that the school district lowered its tax rate in 1979 and has been able to use money from that reserve to balance the budget in recent years.

But this coming year, there will not be enough of a surplus left to cover increasing costs.

This is why school district taxpayers are being asked Monday, March 28, to approve a two-year, three-mill tax increase.

Because two taxes have expired — one a bond issue for construction of the elementary school and the other a facility improvement levy used to fix the athletic field — the increase would not amount to three mills, though.

If voters approve the increase, they would experience a "boost of 1.2 mills on their tax bills."

A one-mill tax costs a taxpayer one dollar for each $1,000 in State Equalized Valuation on property within the district. With property taxed at one-half market value, that means the owner of a $50,000 house would pay $30 more in taxes if the millage is approved and assessments remain unchanged.

The fund equity the school district has been siphoning off to cover its bills will drop to about $260,000 at the end of this fiscal year in June.

That's about five percent of the district's $6 million budget. The governmental standard desired to insure adequate cash flow and meet emergencies is 15 percent.

Since the millage rate was lowered in 1979, the school district has asked for annual increases for specific projects, such as the athletic field levy.

The funds sought now, though, are to cover general operating expenses, such as salaries, insurance premium increases and utility bills.

Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren is aware of grumbling outside the educational system about the 22 percent wage hike teachers and administrators will be receiving in the next three years.

And he acknowledges that the contract signed last fall is partly responsible for the tax increase request.

But he also says Charlevoix school salaries are in line with those in Petoskey and Boyne City.

"Educationally, we have to keep up with the others," he says. "We try to keep our salaries in the ball park."

Other cost increases are also involved, though, he and business manager Vince Olach say.

Olach says health benefit costs rose 2 1/2 percent this year and are expected to rise again next — but the amount is not known.

And the district has little con-

School vote: A question of trust

Next Monday's school millage vote may be less a question of taxation than of trust.

Charlevoix Schools is asking for a three-mill increase for two years, explaining that a tax cut back in 1979 has finally caught up.

The money, school officials say, is needed to meet basic operational expenses — expenses which were paid for in part in the past three years by dipping into a reserve normally saved for emergencies.

That reserve is going dry, putting the district in a precarious position — not having enough to cover its bills in the coming year and not having enough to cover an emergency should one occur.

At the root of the problem, they say, is the steady increase in costs, such as salaries, insurance, utilities and medical benefits.

Opponents of the tax increase say those are not educational expenses — things which directly benefit students — and zero in on the three-year, seven percent a year teachers' contract approved last fall.

They say if the school board weren't so quick to give big raises to teachers and administrators, the board wouldn't be asking for more taxes. And they say the schools squeeze too much out of people in property taxes already.

Perspective is altered by whether you're inside looking out or outside looking in. Is one person overpaid or are others underpaid? Is this cost reasonable or that one not?

The school administration has a history of being responsible in asking for more cash.

Look at the past. Since the millage was lowered in 1979, the school board has asked for a succession of tax increases — short-term requests for specific items. And they've delivered the results.

And while some districts try to sneak through tax hikes tacked onto renewals in a take-it-all or get-nothing approach, Charlevoix's has kept requests clear and separate.

Look at the present. Faced with the possibility of cutting spending if the millage increase does not pass, there are no scare stories about eliminating this or eliminating that coming out of the administration office. Officials have laid the information on the table and said, "You decide."

The administration trusts the public will do what's best for the school system. The public should trust the administration to do the same.

A "yes" vote is appropriate next Monday.

Golf course would be good for township

Editor,

On March 14 I attended the Charlevoix Township meeting at which the main topic of business was the proposed golf course and related development.

The developer had asked for a zoning change from R-1 to PUD to accommodate all aspects of the project which are single resident, multiple resident, golf course and club house. The request was denied by a 3-2 vote.

This project does not contain any of the normal objections raised against development in this area.

—It is not on or visible from any body of water.

—It does not block anyone's view.

—It is designed so as not to create a traffic problem.

—It does not put multiple housing next to adjacent properties.

—It provides a recreational opportunity for non-owners.

Why then, would anyone object? The main reason the board did not change the zoning was density. Ironically, the present zoning allows greater density without the golf course than the developer is proposing under the requested zoning change.

The proposed site is on privately owned vacant land, which in its present state is not desirable for any use unless it involves a comprehensive development plan to encompass the total property.

I do not like the fact that Hayes Township's "anti-growth" attitude has seemed to influence three of the Charlevoix board members. This is a viable project which includes a recreational facility needed in this community and by its residents.

I am an adjacent property owner who was extremely disappointed by the board decision. The Charlevoix area does not have adequate golf facilities and this project would be very welcome. I do not think the board decision was in the best interest of Charlevoix Township nor do I think the decision was representative of its voters which was obvious from the public hearing and other meetings held.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Swearing off the green

Now that the corned beef and cabbage of another St. Patrick's Day is history, I think I'll swear off things Irish until those poor, ridiculous people on the Auld Sod come to their senses.

After all, who in his right mind should be proud of an Irish heritage the way those nincompoops go after each other hammer-and-tongs at every opportunity?

The past week has seen carnage galore, with at least seven citizens succumbing to hand grenades and bullets from Belfast to Londonderry.

And before you jump down my throat, I should explain that I'm more Irish than anything else — with ancestors from both Ulster and the Republic of Ireland on both sides of my family tree.

I'll admit that in North America there hasn't always been a cordial rapport between the Orange and the Green.

When I was a little kid, I had a great-great uncle by the name of Jim Carney who was born in County Mayo and immigrated to the United States as a young man. Uncle Jim wasn't awfully fond of the British. One of his first acts upon settling in Detroit's Corktown was to get together with some of his Irish cronies and invade Canada.

I'm not kidding. They commandeered some boats, crossed the Detroit River and seized Amherstburg, Ontario — an unfriendly act which brought down the wrath of both the American and Canadian governments. However, Uncle Jim mended his ways, went on to become a ship's captain on the Great Lakes and was forgiven eventually by the Canadian government.

He even moved to Windsor where I remember visiting him in his big house overlooking the Detroit River.

I also remember my Ulster grandmother throwing fits when her son, another Uncle Jim, started dating a Catholic girl.

Poor grandma, were she alive today, would have as many Catholic great-grandchildren as Protestant great-grandchildren.

But I bet she would love them all the same — just as the rest of us do.

Some ill-feeling between the Orange and the Green Irish exists to this day in some parts of Canada, but in the United States, Irish partisanship is a thing of the past. The mere fact that so many Americans have Irish roots obliterates all other differences, including religious, economic and political.

I guess what bothers me most about the Irish "troubles" are news pictures and TV footage of the combatants, because they all look like my relatives. See that IRA commando with the submachine gun? Isn't he a dead-ringer for Cousin Jack? And that old man weeping over his son's grave? Doesn't he put you in mind of Uncle George?

So why are they fighting? Social anthropologists can reel off a dozen answers, none of which make any sense.

Religious differences? Nonsense. Don't they all worship the same God?

Economic differences? Still nonsense. Show me an employer who picks his employees on any basis other than productivity and I'll show you an employer who is going out of business.

Political differences? Nonsense again. It's a pity that Ireland has been divided into separate nations, one independent and the other aligned with the United Kingdom. But that's no reason the two Irelands can't exist in peace and harmony, witness the United States and Canada.

Would it help if somehow we Irish-Americans could let our cousins overseas know that the average American still considers Ireland as one country and the Irish as one people? There are no color lines in any American pub on St. Patrick's Day.

I would like to think we could make a difference, if we could only do so without getting ourselves blown to smithereens.

For the time being, I'm swearing off Irish coffee until they declare a truce.

Chamber of Commerce celebrates 30th anniversary with get-together

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will mark its 30th anniversary at its next Business After-Hours get-together.

The chamber was incorporated in 1958 as a continuation of the board of commerce, which was not a separate, non-government entity.

Business After-Hours is an informal meeting of chamber members and their employees held periodically by the chamber.

The event will be held from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 30, at the Edgewater Inn conference center. A business meeting will begin at 5 p.m.

The get-together is being co-sponsored by The Clothing Co. and the Charlevoix Courier.

During the event, the chamber plans to recognize the organizers and first directors of the organization.

Signing incorporation papers were the late Norman Ance, Max Hosmer, the late Fred Willis, I. Lee Moerland and Richard Edwards.

On the initial board of directors were Robert Lieberman, Robert Neff, Richard Fochtman, Ance, Hosmer, the late Frank Boss, the late Earl Young, the late Walter Hoffmann and the late Robert Miles.

Government officials are being invited to the event, along with staff members from the 300 businesses which are members of the chamber.

Townships take second look at PUD zone

by PEG OHLE

The use of planned unit development (PUD) as a zoning tool may be on the way out in area townships.

PUD allows for multiple uses of a plot of land, including residences, business places, schools, churches; in fact, whole communities.

This is in contrast to a zoning district, such as residential, commercial, agricultural and others, which limits the type of land use within the district; as well as lot size and structure size, and spells out similar zoning criteria.

County Planner Larry Sullivan says that the true concept of planned unit development is seldom seen in this area.

Instead, some developers have asked for rezoning of residential or agricultural property for multi-family development, sometimes with an added feature such as a marina or golf course.

"What we are seeing are requests for multi-family structures which are low density in nature and which follow the density requirements of single-family zoning, but would be built on only a portion of the land.

"They are not true PUD's," Sullivan said.

"This kind of development may be better accommodated by the township zoning ordinance having provisions for special uses in various zoning districts.

"This would allow for diversity in type of development while still providing maximum site density and accommodating most, if not all, development plans."

It was the request by a downstate developer for a PUD permit in a residential zone that triggered a lawsuit in Hayes Township that has been dragging through the courts for over three years.

Fox & Associates, owner of 338 acres with 2,000 feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage, sought a PUD permit to build 126 condominiums and 56 boat slips.

However, the Hayes Township zoning ordinance allows only one living unit with lake access and only one boat slip for each 100 feet of lake frontage.

The zoning ordinance would also permit development in the back part (away from the lake) of the property, but owners of that property could not have access to the lake.

Fox claimed such regulations deprived him of his riparian rights in Lake Charlevoix, that they took his property without due process and just compensation because it would be uneconomical to develop the property as the ordinance requires, and that he was denied his civil rights because he was not allowed to use his land as he wished, among other complaints.

The lawsuit finally reached the Michigan Court of Appeals, which found for Fox.

However, Hayes Township asked the Michigan Supreme Court to hear the case and is now awaiting that court's answer.

Last week, Charlevoix Township turned down a request for a planned unit development (golf course and housing units) on property adjacent to Hayes Township.

Part of the development would have been in Hayes Township, although that approval was not forthcoming, either.

The Charlevoix Township proposal called for rezoning 143 acres from agricultural to planned unit development, which (in addition to the Hayes Township property of 194 acres) would be turned into a settlement of 304 condominium units, 142 single-family lots and an 18-hole golf course.

The main objections in the 3-2 township board vote rejecting the rezoning were to the numbers of proposed living units.

This had also been the unofficial objection of Hayes Township, as it had also been in the case of Fox & Associates.

There is a feeling among many local government officials that they cannot control planned unit development as easily as they can residential, commercial or agricultural zones because this type of development does not deal with specifics.

Usually all a local unit of government sees is a site plan. In other types of development, everything is spelled out by size, shape and form.

Hayes Township, which is well aware of court costs, recently took steps to delete planned unit development from its zoning ordinance, noting that it was this section that got it into trouble with Fox & Associates.

However, following a public hearing on the elimination of PUD from its zoning ordinance, the Hayes Township Planning Commission voted to table the matter for the time-being.

Township residents, believing that striking PUD from the zoning ordinance would be interpreted as an anti-development gesture, asked for the delay.

At the same time, they agreed that the PUD section allows for arbitrary densities in living units.

Hayes Township Planning Commission chairman William Henne also believes there are ways of solving this problem, such as replacing the PUD with a cluster housing provision.

LOST INCOME

When a plaintiff loses regular income as a result of not being able to return to his job after an accident, any damages he receives will take into account this amount of lost income. Quite simply, it generally can be calculated as weekly earnings multiplied by the number of work weeks missed. However, many accident victims fail to take into account overtime pay when calculating lost income. This is often calculated by showing the amount of overtime pay that was available to other employees in the plaintiff's general job category at the time of his treatment and recuperation. In a situation where a physician will allow the plaintiff to work regular hours but not overtime, compensation should be sought for overtime dollars lost.

Dems to caucus at 4 county sites

Charlevoix County Democrats will be able to participate in the selection of a presidential candidate Saturday, March 26, when Democratic Presidential Caucuses are held in four places around the county.

Lance H. Johnson, chairman of Charlevoix County Democrats, said all Democrats are welcome to attend a caucus in Charlevoix, St. James, East Jordan or Boyne City to cast a secret ballot for one of the five active Democratic candidates (or a write-in candidate).

The Charlevoix area caucus will be held in City Hall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Residents of Charlevoix and the townships of Charlevoix, Norwood, Marion, Bay and Hayes may participate in the Charlevoix caucus.

Those voting must present an identification card showing age and residence. Those who will be 18 years of age and registered to vote by Nov. 9, 1988, will be permitted to take part in the caucus process.

The number of votes cast for each candidate in Charlevoix and other northern Michigan counties will be tallied and reported to 11th Congressional District officials.

Candidates receiving fewer than 15 percent of votes cast will be eliminated from consideration and the remaining votes will be allotted proportionately to the other candidates.

There will be 574 separate Democratic caucuses held in Michigan.

Johnson said the caucuses are important because Michigan is the first industrial state without a "favorite son" in which the candidates' strength is being tested.

Senior citizens group serving spaghetti meal

The Charlevoix senior citizens group will host its third annual spaghetti dinner for the public at the VFW post on Saturday, March 26.

The dinner will include spaghetti, rolls, salad bar and beverage. It will be served from 5 until 8 p.m.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults, $2.50 for children and teens up to 17 years and $10 for family. Children under five years may eat free.

Mesquite begins buoy work

The Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite begins its buoy-tending season this week by setting its first buoy in southern Lake Michigan.

That buoy is a National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Association buoy, one of three set in the Great Lakes for the National Weather Service. The buoy relays by satellite, weather information in the area of the buoy.

Aids to navigation in the Chicago area will be set before the ship returns to northern Lake Michigan to set a second NOAA buoy directly west of Charlevoix before setting buoys in Lake Huron from Alpena to the Straits.

If weather permits and the ship follows its schedule, the Mesquite will return to Charlevoix for Easter weekend, April 2-3.

The ship will then work out of Charlevoix harbor, setting buoys in the area and straits before working in the Green Bay-Sturgeon Bay area of Wisconsin and Escanaba area.

School district says extra tax needed to pay bills

trol over utility and insurance costs, he says.

Another drain on school funds is the Downtown Development Authority, which receives taxes collected from new construction in the downtown area.

Olach says he has nothing against the city-created authority, but wants taxpayers to be aware that about $500,000 in money the school district would normally receive from downtown construction has been siphoned off to the DDA.

Scouts distribute identification tags

Lifesaver Identification tags from Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council will be distributed at Charlevoix schools on Friday, March 25.

The tags, which carry information about the child, can be taped or sewn to shoes or clothing so the child may be identified in an emergency.

A card accompanying each tag tells parents how it can be completed and attached to shoes or garment. The tag carries such information as name, address, parents, blood type and doctor.

Tags will be distributed by scouts at public and parochial schools. Additional tags may be obtained by calling Jeanne Eaton at 347-4577.

Hawaii trip won

Betsy Stewart of Charlevoix owned the winning ticket in as "Hawaii Vacation for Two" drawing sponsored by Charlevoix Children's House.

A representative of Children's House said they sold 400 tickets at $10 each to help pay for operating expenses of the school.

Olach predicts the district will need about $400,000 in "new money" in the coming year to meet its expenses. And the fund equity, if reduced to zero, would only pay about two-thirds of those bills.

The 1.2-mill increase would bring in over one-half million dollars a year, he says, enough to possibly start rebuilding fund equity again.

Cash flow at the district is tight already. Earlier this month, school officials asked the city to write a check transferring collected taxes to the district before the normal date.

Charlevoix schools' millage rate is the lowest among area schools, VanWieren notes, but the area's SEV is among the highest — producing more tax dollars per mill.

Right now, the district levies 26.925 mills — down slightly from its authorized tax because of the state Headlee Amendment which puts curbs on non-voted tax increases.

Of that, 9.1 mills is from a county-wide allocation to all districts. One-half mill is designated for operation of the public library, which the district, not the city, owns.

If the millage increase is not approved, VanWieren says, something will have to be cut from the budget — but he doesn't know what.

"If people want what's offered in our schools and think this is what the educational system should be, it's necessary to have the operating millage," he says. "It's not my millage. It's your schools."

Community survey finds adults, teens agree

A generation gap was not apparent among teens and adults who completed a Keep Charlevoix Beautiful survey of community concerns.

The survey was sent to 600 addresses — half chamber-of-commerce members and half other people who have participated in KCB activities.

The 160 replies were tabulated by KCB board member Richard Rathke of Charlevoix County State Bank.

KCB president Bruce MacArthur presented the survey to two classes of senior government students at Charlevoix High School, where 74 participated.

The survey was a combination of KCB activity-related questions and community issue questions.

"There was a remarkable similarity between the two sets of surveys," MacArthur said.

The most noticeable area of difference of opinion came on a question about possible future uses of the old Inn Hotel garage, for which an 18-unit apartment proposal has been withdrawn following planning commission and neighborhood disapproval.

Given six choices, 61 percent of the students thought the site would be good for an indoor pool and 87 percent picked some recreational use.

The adults also selected the pool first (26 percent) but 21 percent favored multiple-family use and 17 percent single-family use.

Both groups said the confidential settlement of a lawsuit against the city and a private developer over the Park Place condominium should be made public. Eighty percent of the general public and 70 percent of the students favored disclosure.

Both groups also supported construction of a new south pier into Lake Michigan following U.S. Army Corps of Engineers plans for a U-shaped structure. The plan, which is stalled by city council and state Department of Natural Resources opposition, received 66 percent of the adult vote and 54 percent of the student vote.

A straight-line pier received 20 percent of the adult vote and 30 percent from the students, while the city-endorsed U-with-catwalk proposal received 14 and 16 percent, respectively.

Both groups overwhelmingly thought the city sign ordinance, which prohibits interior-lit signs, has helped retain the city's image. And both chose the Burger King sign as their favorite.

By almost identical percentages, both groups preferred retaining the present Christmas tree in East Park over planting a smaller one or putting up a new one each year.

They also favored making the KCB auction open to the general public instead of just to raffle ticket holders, having a cash raffle prize instead of a car and having KCB support efforts to renew the bandshell in East Park.

In another show of uniformity in thinking, both groups added the same problem — drug and alcohol abuse — to a list of the top community concerns which was being ranked.

MacArthur said the civic organization recognized the survey was not a scientific sampling, but thought it an accurate reflection of community opinion.

Tabulations from various questions are being presented to interested organizations or individuals, such as U.S. Rep. Bob Davis and the Corps of Engineers, which asked for results of the pier question.

Corrections

The names of two businesses filing assumed names were inadvertently included among district court cases in the March 9 Courier. V Lavanway Trucking and The Blacksheep Woodcraft were not in district court.

A story on Odyssey of the Mind in the March 9 Courier should have said Charlevoix schools had 11 teams in the regional competition. Also, the Comics team coached by John Hess and Linda Hamilton placed eighth.

Joan M. Cook-Mills was incorrectly identified in the March 9 Courier. Also, her husband's name is James.

Protect your children during National Poison Prevention Week

- Keep all household chemical products and medicines out-of-reach and out-of-sight of youngsters - preferably locked up when not in use.
- When household products are in use, never let them out-of-sight - even for a moment.
- Store all medicines separately from household products and store all household chemicals away from food.
- Keep all items in their original containers.
- Leave the original labels on all products and read the label before using.
- Always turn the light on when giving or taking medicines.
- Avoid taking medicines in front of children since youngsters tend to imitate grown-ups.
- Never refer to medicine as candy.
- Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically and safely dispose of unneeded medicines when the illness for which they have been prescribed is over.
- Use safety packaging properly - close the container, securely after use.
- Contact your local florist or greenhouse to find out if the plants in your home are poisonous.

City-resident committee set up to iron out Ferry Beach parking

Dissatisfaction with proposed changes in parking at Ferry Beach have led to formation of a citizen-city council committee to try to reach agreement.

The parking plan is one element of a proposed ordinance regulating boat launch and parking lot use at the beach.

The ordinance was drawn up in an effort to resolve such problems as traffic congestion and commercial use of the boat ramp area.

The solution proposed by City Manager Mike Wiesner has met with opposition from parents and council members.

Part of the parking plan was to limit parking in the paved lot next to the beach to vehicles with boat trailers and have beach users park across Ferry Avenue.

Parents obtained signatures of others objecting to the proposal, saying it was not safe for children to have to cross the street.

Wiesner said the area designated for beach cars is not large enough for boat trailer parking.

Alternatives discussed included splitting the lot between trailer parking and a beach drop-off and viewing area.

At the suggestion of resident Dave Julleret, a six-person committee was formed to meet with Wiesner. On the panel with Julleret are Jerry Rakocz, Joann Patrick and Kathy Liotta, along with council members Butch Russell and Shirley Roloff.

The council's public hearing on the proposal will be reconvened at the Monday, April 4, meeting.

Other elements of the Ferry Beach plan are intended to smooth out operations around the boat launch and to provide for a temporary fish cleaning station.

The cleaning station would be installed by Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Inc. The idea of the facility met with generally good reviews, but the location at the Ferry Avenue end of the paved lot was greeted less favorably.

Instituting a boat launch and parking fee of $2 a day also met some opposition. The fee is intended to pay for having an attendant at the boat ramp and cleaning station.

Council has approved reapplying for a state grant to pay for some improvements at the beach. The city's application was turned down last year.

About $340,000 is being sought for beach, boat ramp, wetlands filling and other recreation-related activities.

If the city receives the grant, Wiesner said, plans to move Ferry Avenue could be accelerated. Moving the road would increase on-site parking at the beach.

There is a picture hanging in St. Mary's Seminary in Cincinnati, Ohio, near where I grew up, that shows Christ entering Jerusalem riding on a donkey and closely surrounded by a throng of people.

It's a scene all Christians will be remembering, and some even reenacting, during Palm Sunday services this weekend.

Sir Isaac Newton is there as a believer and William Wordsworth as a detached observer. Poet John Keats is present with a bright, amazed look. Many unidentifiable faces are there also, watching and waiting to see the coming of the Prince of Peace.

The point of the painting is that when Jesus comes riding into our life, we all must respond in some way. Some will smile; some will scoff; some will be detached observers; some will be amazed.

The question which the St. Mary's picture silently asks is, "Where are you, and how will you respond to Jesus?"

On this Palm Sunday may you be among the faithful who welcome the Prince of Peace with a glad heart singing, "Hosanna! Hosanna! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord!"

Officers complete anti-drug class

Two Charlevoix county law enforcement officers have been certified as D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) instructors.

They are Deputy Sherry Martin of the sheriff's department and Assistant Chief Randall Howard of the Boyne City Police Department.

They completed an 80-hour course of instruction at the Illinois state police academy.

The officers are now qualified to teach a 17-week course for fifth or sixth graders.

The DARE program, designed by education professionals for this age group, was initiated in 1983 by the Los Angeles school district and police department and is taught by unarmed uniform police officers in the classroom.

Charlevoix county is the second in the state to implement the program. There are presently about eight certified instructors of the program in Michigan.

REFLECTIONS

The days of the one-room school

Early settlers in Charlevoix County, as elsewhere, were intent on seeing that their offspring received an education. A number of their small rural, one-room schools still dot the countryside.

Among these was McGeagh School, which was razed in the 1950s to make way for construction of a kennel near where the Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital stands on US 31 South atop a small hill on the northern edge of Norwood Township.

The school took its name from one of those settlers, William J. McGeagh, who was born in Scotland and who came to this continent with his parents to settle in Ontario as so many of this area's early residents had. As a young man he became an apprentice as a miller.

In 1853 McGeagh left Canada and ended up in Iowa where he worked in flour mill, gaining more knowledge of milling. In the late 1860s, he made his way to northern Michigan, obtained a homestead in Section 18 of what was to become Norwood Township and, after clearing the land and building a cabin, returned to Pickering County, Ontario, to take unto himself a wife.

Because flour was in demand and in short supply he built a mill, damming the nearby stream (McGeagh Creek) for power, and milled flour for homesteaders in the area. He later built a sawmill, cleared his acreage and made lumber to sell in the growing community.

According to Mrs. Clarence Murray (the former Hazel VanDusen, a member of one of the several VanDusen families that settled here) the school was built around the turn of the century.

She and Dick Farmer, who later attended the school, said it was a typical one-room school with students from beginners through eighth grade.

Dick remembers that at times there were only two students in his class. Hazel said that was always true in these small schools, which served a limited area.

"We walked to school in all kinds of weather and the little ones couldn't walk too far over unplowed roads so the schools were never too far apart," she said.

Both remembered teachers they had. Among there were Ruth (Solomon) Withers, Emily (Meggison) Everts, Mrs. Flagg, Vera Belding, Elsa (Bradley) Bogart, Anna (Jones) Holeccheck, Bessie (Baumbach) Coleman, Isabel Tooley, and Arbutus Nordrum.

I mentioned earlier that the school was atop a small hill. Dick recalls that one of the teachers drove a Model-T Ford. She would drive up the hill and turn around to park in front of the school. The bigger boys would gang up on her and before she could get out of the car, push it back down the hill.

"I'm not saying we drove teachers away with our antics but there were one or two who didn't last very long," he said with a grin.

A good many of the teachers weren't too much older than their students. At that time, Charlevoix County had what was known as a County Normal School. Any high school graduate could attend the normal school for one year, receive a teaching certificate and accept a teaching position. Unless you were a strict disciplinarian, the students could make it pretty hard for such a young teacher and often times did.

It was not an easy life being a rural teacher. You boarded at the home of a nearby farmer. You kept your school clean and when the weather was cold you arrived early to build the fire in a pot-bellied stove to warm the building for the students. You carried your lunch as did the students.

As requirements to teach became greater, teachers for rural schools became harder to find. Consolidation of schools was also advocated and, as a result, rural schools were closed.

The McGeagh school closed its doors in 1944.

If you know the history of a rural school in the Charlevoix area and have a picture of the students or the building you would like to share, send it along with any interesting anecdotes you might remember. The picture will be returned to you.

Schools look at alternatives after tax defeat

After a three-mill tax increase was soundly defeated Monday, March 28, school officials are trying to decide what to do next.

District voters turned down the two-year request by a 534-486 vote as 27 percent of the registered voters went to the polls.

Superintendent Gordon VanWieren said, "It will now be up to the board of education to look at the alternatives for the June election."

"They must decide if they want to try again, modify the request or drop the issue completely. They will be asking the general public for input as to what the alternative will be."

Business manager Vince Olach said the board will be looking to balance the budget and find ways to operate during the coming year.

The three mills would have been an increase of 1.2 mills from current levies, because two other taxes expired in December.

The money was intended to help cover increased operating costs and was the first operational millage increase sought since 1977.

Other tax hikes in the interim have been for specific projects.

Police chief Dennis Halverson holds a press conference in front of a confiscated BMW

$500,000 in cocaine seized

An estimated half-million dollars in cocaine was seized by Charlevoix police following the arrest of a California man, chief Dennis Halverson has announced.

Halverson said the cocaine and more than $100,000 in cash and other items were confiscated following the March 11 arrest of Mario John Anderson, 38, of Santa Cruz, Calif.

Halverson said he did not know the specific charges which would be lodged against Anderson, who was arraigned on a felony drug possession charge following his arrest.

Anderson set up drug operations in a local motel, where police kept him under surveillance for four days before the arrest, Halverson said.

He credited the Straits Area Narcotics Team and citizen involvement with helping in the arrest.

Halverson said Charlevoix police do not have the resources or manpower to alone conduct an investigation of this size, but can with the aid of the SANE team.

Halverson said the 650 grams of cocaine would have had a street value of about one-half million dollars.

"Needless to say, we're pleased," he said. "It's nice to win one once in awhile."

Halverson said the arrest was not linked to the grand jury investigation of county drug activities which has led to indictments of 15 people so far.

Homes over boathouses turned down

Two homes cannot be built over boathouses on Round Lake, the state Department of Natural Resources has ruled.

Brad Wilkins of the DNR's Land and Water Management Division in Gaylord said some other elements of both requests were also rejected.

One case, involving the Herbert Dow property on the north side of the lake, drew heavy resident opposition at the city and DNR level.

The other, for the John and June Cross property on the south side of the lake, met no opposition as it was approved by city boards.

"Residences are not a right associated with riparian ownership," Wilkins told the Courier.

In the Dow case, Wilkins said, approval was granted for dredging for the boathouse and for all but one requested pier.

In the Cross case, the DNR last year approved construction of the boathouse that the apartment would have been placed on.

A request to put a new seawall out seven feet from a present seawall was also turned down.

The DNR in the past has approved residences over water, Wilkins said, including renovation of the former Brow marine facility near the Cross property into condominium units.

"Our policy is to no longer approve those structures over water," he said.

Dow's local attorney, Scott Beatty, said he had not yet seen the ruling and had not comment. The Crosses were reportedly out of town.

Jerry Puhl, head of WATCH Inc., said his organization was pleased with the decision because it keeps houses from encroaching on the water.

Bandshell survey: Fix or replace in present spot

Early results of a Courier readers' survey on plans for bandshell replacement in East Park indicate little support for keeping the status quo.

Those approving of fixing the old bandshell held a slight 13-10 lead over those favoring replacement with two people voting to do either. Two votes were for leaving the structure as is.

A question on the fate of the fish pond in front of the stage found 13 readers favoring leaving it where it is, eight for removing it and five for moving it. Two people said it was OK to either more or remove the pond.

Putting a roof on the present or a replacement stage is winning overwhelming approval, with 20 people voting in favor of the idea and seven against.

The present location is the favored spot, according to ballots received by Tuesday morning. Seventeen readers prefer the present spot, six say more the bandshell more along the side of Wharfside Market and one says put it along the marina.

Another reader drew in a suggestion — a barge along the shore in Round Lake. There were four votes for either the present or the Wharfside locations.

Some comments on the proposal:

"Do not put it along marina shore line. It would block view."

"A fountain would be nicer than a pond."

"Why put it in the middle and spoil the view from Bridge Street or when just sitting in the park? It's in a good place now."

"Restrooms below bandshell but eliminate fish pond. Current one looks like 1944."

"I wish the people would stop

Ahead-lines

Camp Charlevoix

A dispute over plans to construct residences on the old Camp Charlevoix site on Lake Charlevoix continues—in two different directions.

Action at the Hayes Township level now concerns a scaled-down plan for 28 single-family homes. Action at the state court level has reached the Supreme Court and concerns the township's refusal to allow 126 housing units access to the lake.

The Hayes planning commission will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 6, on the 28-unit plan.

That proposal, by William Fox, also includes a marina for 28 boats. The marina would be built inland from Oyster Bay and not into the lake.

Fox is requesting planned unit development designation for the property, which allows for flexibility in placement of structures.

The proposal apparently meets the requirements of the Hayes zoning ordinance. Hearings on state and federal approval of plans for dredging have been held by the state Department of Natural Resources and federal Army Corps of Engineers.

Fox's original plan for the 338-acre site locked him in a court battle with the township. He wanted to place 128 condos and 56 boat slips on the property—with all residences having lake access.

The Michigan Court of Appeals declared illegal the "Shoreline Protection" section of the zoning ordinance.

That section prohibits so-called funnel development by saying any development "which shares a common waterfront or stream area" may not have water access for more than one residence for every 100 feet of waterfront.

That would have limited Fox to having lake access for only the 28 units on the 2,800-foot waterfront.

The state Supreme Court last week agreed to hear the township's appeal of the appeals court decision.

The appeal probably will not be heard for several months. Donations are being used to pay township legal costs in the case, which could have statewide ramifications for waterfront communities.

Panel favors bandshell at side of park

A Victorian-style pavilion has been endorsed by a committee of residents spearheading the effort to replace the deteriorating bandshell in East Park.

The concept met no opposition from city council when recreation commission chairman John Hess reviewed the committee's work so far.

The 30-plus member committee has been working for about a month on proposed locations and designs as well as fund-raising.

"We want council's approval but we also want the city's approval. This is a very important part of the city, and we don't want to goof up," Hess told the council.

The plan being supported by the committee places a 35- by 60-foot stage in an enclosure up against the side of Wharfside

A Victorian pavilion is envisioned as the replacement for the East Park bandshell.

Market. The present stage is about half that size.

The enclosure would have a beveled, peaked roof to project sound toward the audience.

Included in the proposed building, drawn by architect Jack Begrow, are off-stage storage space and possible lower-level restrooms and dressing rooms.

In front of the bandshell would be a redesigned fish pond, described by architect Lou Orlowski as a two-tier, interior-lit structure fitted against the front of the stage.

Hess projected the cost of the structure at $110,000, with about $55,000 coming from money specially set aside by the city over the years for East Park improvements.

At an earlier committee meeting, it was estimated the work could cost $120,000 to $160,000, but Mayor Ralph McRae said donations of materials and equipment would keep the costs down.

"This is the first project ever done in this city with 50 percent paid by the city and 50 percent paid by the people," McRae told council.

Hess said about 50 feet of the view, to Round Lake would be lost along the edge of Wharfside because of the height of the bandshell.

"The beauty of the thing offsets what you're going to lose along the lake," said council member Earl Muma.

Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, said a recent KCB survey of community attitudes showed 78 percent of the 160 respondents favored some sort of bandshell work.

He personally questioned the size of the proposed replacement stage, however.

The stage would be designed to hold a band of 50 or more members.

Gary Stutzman, committee co-chairman, told the committee he has contacted several top professional musicians who would be willing to perform in a bandshell-dedication concert.

The bandshell would be named the Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion, committee members decided, in honor of the ailing long-time former high school band director.

AROUND THE TOWN

The old water tower really could be gone in a few weeks.... A Pennsylvania company that offered to take the structure down for a cut-rate price has looked the tower over and is preparing to send in a crew....

The company wanted a quick answer from the city on whether it would accept the $5,500 deal, but then did not show up as fast as the city thought it would to begin the work.... Now the firm says its concerns about how to protect neighboring buildings and how to take the tower off a hill have been resolved and a crew should be here in a week or so.

Marina dock extensions are still being looked at by the state Department of Natural Resources.... But the city is getting ready to seek bids on the work....

A dozen docks would be extended from their present 45- and 60-foot lengths to 75 feet while a handful would be pulled out to make way for docking the new Star of Charlevoix paddlewheel cruise ship....

Because of a tight timeframe for finishing the docks in time for the cruise season, the city will seek bids and hold onto them until DNR approval is granted for the work.... About 45 days is needed to extend the docks....

Phil Lutz, local manager for the Star Line, says the sternwheeler should be towed into Round Lake around Memorial Day, with cruises planned for about June 15.... He says documents are being finalized to set up a local investors' group that would have part ownership of the boat.... An area group convinced the Star Line to bring a boat back to Charlevoix after a one-year absence by agreeing to part ownership.

Supreme Court validation of Tax Increment Financing Authorities such as Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority and Ferry Avenue Beach TIFA may make it quicker for the city to move Ferry Avenue to enlarge the Ferry Beach area....

The top state court last week said TIFA's are constitutional, clearing up one of two questions about the authorities, which capture tax money normally going to schools, counties and other tax-supported entities and use it for area improvements.... Still unresolved is whether TIFA's can operate in downtowns that are not depressed areas....

With the court's ruling, though, it may be possible for Charlevoix's TIFAs to obtain money through municipal bonding and pay it back as tax money comes in.... An opinion may be forthcoming in the next couple weeks.... Right now, the Ferry Avenue TIFA does not have enough money collected to rebuild the road with sewers and water mains underneath.

Mayor Ralph McRae is surrounded by sixth graders who have written letters to students in Moscow. McRae expects to deliver the letters during his upcoming trip.

Mayor taking sixth graders' messages to Moscow students

Mayor Ralph McRae has taken on a new unofficial job—ambassador-at-large, representing the children of Charlevoix's sixth grade to those of the same age in Moscow.

McRae, an indefatigable traveler, has been undeterred by bureaucracy, trans-Atlantic telephone problems or Soviet domestic politics.

He leaves Tuesday, April 5, on the first leg of his three-week trip through western Europe and into the Soviet Union, where he will spend five days in Moscow and five days in Leningrad.

It's in Russia where he hopes to make his contribution to the thaw in Soviet-U.S. relations.

He began planning his trip to the Soviet Union last fall. As the trip took shape, he realized he wanted it to accomplish something.

McRae proposed to school Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren that he set up a school-to-school relationship. Van Wieren and teachers suggested the sixth grade was a natural starting point, as that grade has a major social studies project on the Soviet Union every winter.

Student reaction to the idea has been enthusiastic. Each of the 190 sixth graders has composed a short letter and most have included a photo of themselves or their family. The students hope they will each find a pen pal through McRae's efforts.

McRae's goal is to begin an "interchange of ideas between Charlevoix and Moscow students."

While Charlevoix reacted positively to McRae's initiative,

Fight spread of pornography

Editor,

We, the clergy of Charlevoix, have become increasingly concerned about the effects of all forms of pornography upon our community.

We are appalled that the entertainment media has become a major tool for the degradation of true human sexuality through its emphasis on casual promiscuity and its portrayal of sexual violence.

We have observed the personnel within the pornography industry become honored celebrities. We see the commerce of our nation support this destructive trend by pouring millions of dollars into the advertising coffers of the pornography industry.

Most importantly we see responsible men and women in Charlevoix condone this philosophy by their expression of approval or by their silence.

We call upon the people of Charlevoix to stand in opposition to the growth of the pornography industry and its effect upon our community.

International wedding set for Charlevoix

Guess what! We're having an international wedding on July 30 in Charlevoix. Lisa Wiegner, now of New York City, is marrying Mads Lillelund of Denmark. (Lisa Lillelund does have a certain tilt to it!)

The couple met when they were both students at the American Graduate School of International Management (Thunderbird) in Phoenix, Ariz.

Mads' parents reside in Kuwait, but they've already made reservations in town for themselves and many Danish relatives and friends. Lisa's grandmother, Christel Wiemer, will be here from Dusseldorf, Germany.

If the family is this spread out around the world, you can imagine what the guest list is going to look like. Of course, it will include some of the foreign classmates, who graduates with Mads and Lisa.

The wedding will take place in the precious, but small Episcopal Church, which of necessity limits the guest list — and this is a concern to Lisa's parents.

Lisa's job in New York is to coordinate sales in Europe for Cyber International, a sports medicine equipment manufacturer, in case you're wondering. As for Mads, he checked out Charlevoix last summer and I'm pleased to report that he and his future father-in-law, Hans, split sets on the tennis court. No star-crossed lovers here.

EDITH GILBERT

"Brother, can you spare a dime?" Anyone who lived through the Great Depression will recall those chilling words! There was no minimum wage, no Social Security, no hope for the World War I veterans who marched on Washington to demand the bonus payment promised to them by the government.

But there was art! "New Deal Art of the 1930s" will be on display at Virginia McCune Community Art Center in Petoskey during June.

On loan from Michigan State University, the exhibit will complement the Indian Mural which now hangs in the community room of the Arts Center and was formerly displayed for many years at Little Traverse Hospital.

This mural was one of 2,500 commissioned by the federal government to support artists during the Works Progress Administration project.

Why am I telling you all this? Because we hope that our entire area will turn back the clock during June. Bring out the costumes, advertising, photographs and memorabilia of this period of American history. Use this reflective period in store window displays, and themes for speakers, meetings and social events.

There must be many men and women around who have a story to tell, an experience to relate, a memory to share. It's time to tell it like it was!

Farewell to Capt. Lyons

It was with a mixture of sadness and relief that Charlevoix learned over the weekend of the death of Dick Lyons, 70, one of the most colorful captains on the Great Lakes.

Sadness, because many of us will miss him as a friend; relief, because his long battle with cancer is finally over.

I think what made Lyons such a fascinating person is that he looked the way a ship's captain is supposed to look, right down to the grizzled beard, the greying mane, the officer's cap and the pea jacket.

And if you had any doubts about Lyons' trade, you only had to listen to him for a moment. His language was as salty as the oceans he sailed as a young man.

Yet Lyons was one of the most articulate men in Charlevoix. He read widely, thought deeply and cared immensely about the people and the world around him.

One of his chief concerns was pollution of the Great Lakes and he could click off the places where he used to take on fresh drinking water for his ships directly from the lakes. In most of the same places today the water is so contaminated it is no longer safe to drink.

Lyons was an ecologist long before the rest of us knew what the word meant.

A native of Lorraine, Ohio, on Lake Erie, Lyons was born into a sea-faring family. His father before him was a ship's officer who sometimes took his sons with him on journeys through the Great Lakes.

Lyons said he was about nine years old the first time he navigated a ship — his dad's freighter — through the Soo Locks.

"There I was, standing at the wheel, tears streaming down my face, with my old man standing right behind me bellowing, 'Give 'er nothin' to port and a damn sight less to starboard!'"

When I first met Lyons he was captain of the Mackinac Islander, an ancient cargo boat that used to ferry hardwood logs from Hog Island in Northern Lake Michigan to Charlevoix, where they were relayed by truck to the Manthel Veneer Mill at Walloon Lake. Working with Lyons were Willard Plischnier of Charlevoix, who served as first mate and cook, and one of two deckhands.

The lumberjacks on the island belonged to the old school. They didn't have a great deal of modern equipment and most of the bullwork done by a team of horses which Lyons transported to the island in the spring and back to the mainland in the fall.

On one return trip, Lyons tied the horses securely to a narrow space on the deck next to the pilot house. The brown horse was next to the house, the white horse next to the rail. The Mackinac Islander left Hog Island in the evening and immediately ran into the teeth of a nor'easter that churned Lake Michigan from top to bottom and sent sheets of green water over the pilot house.

When the old ship pitched and yawed into Charlevoix at dawn the next day, Lyons was surprised to find that his tightly tethered horses had somehow managed to change places in the middle of the night. He never figured out how they did it.

Lyons was an superb storyteller, spinning yarns far into the evening at the Town House or the Topside in downtown Charlevoix. He always found willing ears for his tales of deriding-do from Madagascar to Skidagalee.

One of his favorite stories was how he saved the life of a diabetic merchant seaman one stormy night on Lake Superior. When the sailor went into insulin shock, Lyons sought help via radio from a public health doctor who told him he would have to get sugar into the man's system by some means.

Since the sailor could not keep liquids on his stomach, Lyons rigged up an enema using a grease gun and sugar water.

The man lived.

Ashore, Lyons could party with the best of them. But afloat he was all business, as attested by the demanding positions he filled so successfully throughout his long career on the Great Lakes.

Bon voyage, Capt. Lyons. And smooth sailing.

Supercollider, waste dump linked

Editor,

Some area newspapers are receiving news releases from the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) that paint a glowing picture of the Superconducting Supercollider (SCC). The Petoskey News-Review received and published such a release March 11.

Before you take pen in hand, as they suggest, and write to DOE to give your support, you should do a bit of homework. There are serious questions regarding the volume of radioactive waste generated by the SCC and how it relates to future radioactive waste disposal plans for Michigan.

A letter dated March 9, 1987, to Ed Binger, of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission and written by Lawrence R. Jacobi, head of the Texas Radioactive Waste Authority states, "I talked to Mr. Charles Zonick, Manager of Waste Services at the Fermi Laboratory in Batavia, Ill., about the amount of radioactive waste potentially produced by the SCC. According to Mr. Zonick, the Fermi Lab produces 15,000 to 65,000 cubic feet per year and a SCC would be projected to produce 30,000 to 65,000 cubic feet per year, depending on how it is designed and operated."

The DOE says that the waste will most likely be disposed of at a federal low-level waste dump in Washington state. However, disposal at a NRC licensed facility has not been dismissed as a disposal option. Would Michigan be willing to accept SCC waste for disposal in a Michigan radioactive waste dump?

I have attended some of the Michigan Radioactive Authority Siting meetings and am convinced that chairman, David Hales, has a mind-set to place the radioactive waste dump in Michigan. He has the authority to decide where Michigan should locate its dump but his decision must be approved by Congress.

In the same letter Jacobi goes on to say, "since DOE waste facilities are now coming under the scrutiny of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency, the DOE sites may be gradually closed down. If so, that will leave state operated waste sites as the only available alternative. One of the criteria for siting the SCC will be the proximity to working disposal

The two projects are linked together whether it is admitted or not. The SCC-generated waste could nearly double the amount of low-level radioactive waste that is currently produced by Michigan every year.

The cost of construction has been estimated at more than $5 billion for the SCC with an annual cost of about $1 billion including interest payments. How does Congress justify funding an SCC while cutting programs that aid dependent children, that ease the 40 percent unemployment rate among minority youth or that assist in acid rain cleanup? And what about improving school curricula? The SCC would consume about 10 percent of U.S. funds for all basic research each year of its existence according to Frederick I. Scott Jr., consulting editor, American Laboratory.

The Department of Energy's search for permanent storage sites has been marred by inadequate scientific study and political maneuvering. An independent study is needed documenting the issues of radioactive and mixed hazardous waste, generation and disposal. Special interests are too powerful and the consequences are too grave to be left up to politicians and the "experts."

Michigan could build its own storage facility or, as Dr. Gerald Drake, retired Petoskey physician, says: "Nuclear plants generate 99 percent of low-level waste and 1 percent of this waste from medicine could be brought to nuclear plants for storage to await final disposal with the nuclear plant reactor at federal site."

There is a bill introduced in Michigan House of Representatives by Bill Brown (Utica) which would get Michigan out of the Compact that obligates us to take radioactive waste from six other states for 20 years.

This bill is currently being held up by Chairman Tom Scott (Flint) of the conservation committee. "Don't Waste Michigan" recommends your writing to your Representative and Tom Scott with message: Repeal Compact law.

GUARDIANSHIP INSTRUCTIONS

It is estimated that about eight percent of parents do not leave any formal instructions concerning the guardianship of their children in the event of the parent's accidental death. In fact, the matter of guardianship is often neglected even when a parent draws up a legal will. This omission can lead to very negative consequences in the event that both parents die simultaneously. There may also be problems in the event that a divorced parent has sole custody of a child and dies without leaving guardianship instructions. This may be an invitation for surviving relatives to wage a legal battle over the right to raise the child. In this case, it certainly helps to leave specific instructions that will help the court award custody.

Planning for the future also includes the preparation of a will. In this fashion your family as well as your possessions are properly accounted for. Do not leave matters to chance. Call today for assistance with your will and proper documentation of your final wishes.

Lake management plan presented to county board

The Lake Charlevoix Management Plan has been presented to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners by county planner Larry Sullivan.

The plan was put together by the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Committee, which was appointed by the board in 1984.

The board of commissioners was reluctant to go on record as "accepting" or "approving" the plan, so went on record that it "received" the document.

The commission said they look upon the plan as a set of guidelines, not a mandate for cities and townships.

John Haggard, a committee member who objected to sections of the plan, urged a yes or no decision by board members.

The board also chose not to take any action on a recommendation it appoint a commission to administer the plan.

The cities and townships in the county will receive the plan for study.

"These units can then adopt the plan or select sections that apply to their respective units," said Larry Matthew, chairman of the board.

Band players score high at festival

Charlevoix High School's entries in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association-sponsored Solo and Ensemble Festival received I ratings.

In the solo division, Heather Dietrich and Kirsten Joy received Proficiency I ratings for their flute solos.

Two other soloists, both freshmen, received I ratings as first-year entries. They are Matt Stargardt, who played a trumpet solo, and Amy Shupert, who played a piano solo.

A brass quintet composed of trumpeters Lisa Smith and Matt Stargardt, trombonists Bill Crook and Tim Henne, and tuba player Sean Henne also received a first division.

High school group attends Citizens Bee

Three Charlevoix High School government students participated in a "Citizens' Bee" test of knowledge.

"The program has been available to students in this area for at least one year but this was the first time Charlevoix students participated. "We were very fortunate to have one of our students qualify as an alternate," teacher Nelson Green said.

Eric Richardson, a senior, placed fourth to become an alternate in state competition. The others competing were Sean Henne and Hal Chase.

In a game show format students answer questions about economics, history and government.

Richardson went through nine rounds before being eliminated. He was awarded a $200 savings bond as an alternate.

There were 48 students from 17 schools in the event.

Resident complaints heeded on lakeshore law changes

Concerns the zoning ordinance may be too lenient have been replaced by complaints proposed changes are too restrictive.

A planning commission hearing on amendments growing out of last summer's "condo ban" controversy was dominated by questions about lakeshore proposals.

The proposed ordinance changes came from a committee formed late in the debate to try to come up with ways to preserve lake views.

The planning commission indicated a willingness to review and possibly revise some of the amendments before passing them on to council.

Of particular concern to some residents were lot coverage, setback and special use permit requirements for marine-commercial and commercial-scenic zones.

Some amendments appeared to apply mostly — or only — to their specific pieces of property,

Bill Bellinger and David Miles told the planners.

A group of owners of marine-commercial zoned properties — which include owners of several condominium units on the south side of Round Lake — objected to height limits.

They said the proposed heights would transform their buildings into non-conforming structures which could not be rebuilt to present height if destroyed by fire or natural calamity.

Commissioners agreed with their assessment and agreed to amend the law to allow rebuilding. It was noted by city planner Garry Harsch that some of the buildings already have non-conforming heights.

Another problem in marine-commercial, Bellinger said, was view corridor requirements which make it nearly impossible to expand his marine business in a practical manner.

Commissioners agreed the lot coverage restriction was arbitrary and said they would loosen it.

Miles has the only commercial-scenic property not developed beyond single-family use and questioned why a special use permit would be required for him to do as his neighbors had done.

Commission chairman Walt Hufford said Miles may not have ended up in court against the city and the developer of two neighboring lots if special use regulations were in force in commercial-scenic at the time.

With a special use permit procedure, Harsch said, the city could require alterations—in plans which it cannot legally force presently.

The commissioners and Harsch agreed with Miles that a requirement for a 65-foot setback from Pine River Channel was too restrictive when the neighboring condominium project is set back 55 feet.

Blown fuses cut off power

Charlevoix was without electric power for two hours and 40 minutes early Friday.

The power failure was caused by malfunctioning main fuses in the Consumers Power lines that feed the Charlevoix sub-station, city utilities department director Ed Whitley said.

The outage occurred from 3:52 until 6:40 a.m.

Engineer proposal becomes emotional issue

Debate over whether the city should hire an engineer has become personal as well as financial.

A year ago, a move to hire an in-house engineer as a cost-saving move was defeated on a 4-2 vote.

As it stands right now, a vote would probably also be 4-2 against the idea, although one member has switched sides.

Bill Bellows said he has been convinced enough money would be saved to justify hiring a civil engineer.

But Butch Russell, who defeated Bob Timms in last year's election, is against the hiring.

Russell says there are hidden costs in City Manager Mike Wiesner's cost projections and a four-mill tax for work on the city's streets and underground utilities might not be renewed next year.

Shirley Roloff also questioned the cost figures, which upset Wiesner, who is a registered engineer and ran a municipal engineering department for a decade.

"I'm telling you the best way to do it, and you won't believe me," Wiesner said. "I'm not lying to you. I've never lied to you before."

Several residents — including former Mayor Ken Staley and former council member Mike Greeley — suggested the council trust Wiesner's judgment in an area where they hired him for his expertise.

Mayor Ralph McRae said the city could save up to $35,000 a year by hiring an engineer to work under Wiesner, who has been doing preliminary engineering added to his manager's duties.

"You can save $35,000 — that's half a mill," McRae said. "You people want to cut millage."

Council trimmed one mill in taxes from the budget it approved last week after several members lobbied for a two-mill reduction in the 10.6-mill levy.

McRae asked Roloff if she would rather pay an outside engineer $70,000 just to design a relocation of Ferry Avenue or pay $50,000 in salary and other costs to have a full-time engineer.

There is about $255,000 in engineering costs built into this year's budget, McRae said.

Wiesner has estimated in the past that outside engineering can add up to 40 percent to a project, while in-house engineering can account for about 15 percent.

He says a staff engineer could do about $80,000 of work a year at a cost of $50,000. He also says a staff engineer can do a better job, because of familiarity with various projects.

Council member Norm Probert said he was against the proposal because he thought a registered engineer would be necessary to handle the work the city had and the cost of hiring one would be too high.

Earl Muma said perhaps he could go along with a plan to hire a retired or ready-to-retire engineer who wanted to move to Charlevoix and be prepared to not work full-time.

Muma disagreed with a resident's suggestion hiring an engineer would allow Wiesner to better handle his manager's duties.

He said the manager should delegate more functions to department heads and said Wiesner should be engineering small projects.

untangling the bureaucratic procedures to accomplish it has been complex.

McRae began with the office of U.S. Senator Donald Riegle, which provided a contact in the U.S. State Department.

The State Department, in turn, assured McRae a diplomat from the Culture Section of the American Embassy in Moscow would facilitate the effort once McRae arrived. The Soviet Department of Education was to cooperate.

Plans were momentarily set back last week by Soviet domestic politics. The "entire staff of the Soviet Education Department was fired," according to McRae, who received the news from Riegle's office.

Kristen Krahnke, 25, daughter of former Charlevoix resident Charles Krahnke, died Friday, March 25.

She was a passenger in an airplane piloted by her boyfriend, Michael Newell, 29, of Caledonia, Mich., which crashed into fog-enshrouded Fancy Gap Mountain in Carroll County, Va., while enroute to the Florida Keys.

A memorial service for Miss Krahnke will be held at Drummond Island Lutheran Chapel at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 2.

Mrs. Krahnke was employed as a billing assistant at Care Mark, a home-health supply company in Livonia.

She was a graduate of Oscoda High School where her father, Charles Krahnke, had been a teacher until retiring last June to take over a family resort on Drummond Island. He is a former Charlevoix teacher. She was also a graduate of Ferris State University.

Among her survivors are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krahnke, and her grandmother, Florine Krahnke.

"$160,000 is too much for summer activity. We need emphasis on winter activity as indoor swimming pool."

"Put a gazebo style structure on top of stage similar to one in Pennsylvania Park in Petoskey."

"Bulldoze it and fill it in with condos and your troubles will be over."

Undaunted, the mayor added Senator Carl Levin's office to his telephone list and began a telephone marathon, calling Soviet representatives in Washington and New York.

Through the American Citizens Exchange Council, McRae learned the name of a Russian with a "Friendship Society." He has a long-distance telephone date this week with Seigle Romanchenko in Moscow.

Meanwhile, McRae spoke with Andre Parastaer, first secretary at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D.C. on Monday, March 23. The Soviet diplomat assured McRae his InTourist Guide will be "happy to arrange the school-to-school contacts."

Mrs. Bernice M. Smith, 78, died Monday, March 21 at Charlevoix Area Hospital. A memorial service is planned at a later date.

The former Bernice M. Murphy was born in Detroit on Sept. 23, 1909, and graduated from a Detroit high school. She received bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees in English from Michigan State University.

She taught at Waterford Kettering High School until retiring in 1976. She spent the summer months in Indian River for many years and, in recent years lived in Charlevoix.

She was a member of the Michigan Association of Retired Teachers and Michigan State University Alumni Association.

Surviving are a daughter, Doris Lundteigen of Charlevoix; two grandchildren, Nina Murphy of Petoskey and Erik Lundteigen of Charlevoix.

The family suggests

Purchase of city property puts $14,000 in bandshell fund

The proposed renovation of the bandshell in East Park is $14,001 richer because of the sale of a piece of city property.

At the urging of recreation director Ike Boas and Mayor Ralph McRae, the city council decided proceeds from the sale would go into a fund for bandshell work.

The property is one of two approved for sale by city council.

Bob Kern, who recently purchased a cluster of rental houses adjacent to city property, approached council to see about buying the property. Sealed bids were solicited.

The 137-by-104-foot city parcel on Stover Road across from Brookside Cemetery adjoins Kern's property.

In soliciting bids, council said it was following a policy used in former city property sales. A $14,000 minimum bid was asked at the urging of city assessor Bob Potter.

North Point effort passes 3/4 mark with $550,000

Contributions to the Preserve North Point project have passed $550,000 in cash and pledges, 75 percent of the way toward the overall goal of $700,000.

The Little Traverse Conservancy has an option to purchase North Point, a 28-acre parcel near Charlevoix with a half mile of Lake Michigan frontage, if $700,000 can be raised before August 1989.

The property would be turned over to Charlevoix Township for use as a public preserve. It is adjacent to the city's Mount McSaba recreational area.

Tom Lagerstrom, project manager and associate director of the Conservancy said much of the recent contribution activity is a result of Mary Ann Chew's fourth grade class in Charlevoix which sparked nearly $4,000 in contributions with its "Snow White" presentation.

Preserve North Point has now received over $150,000 in cash or pledges from Charlevoix area residents and visitors. This is half way toward the local goal of $300,000. The state Land Trust Fund is providing the remaining $400,000.

Fundraising started only four months ago.

"It puts the project in an excellent position as the summer season approaches. We still must raise another $150,000, but I think when people have an opportunity to see North Point this summer they will recognize that $700,000 is a small price to pay for this beautiful resource that will remain in a natural state for future generations to use and enjoy," he said.

Norwood OKs budget with roads top item

Norwood Township adopted a $64,837 budget at its annual meeting attended by three residents other than board members.

The budget is up $92 over that of last year. The major expenditure will again be roads, for which $30,000 has been earmarked, an increase of $5,000.

"Roads are always the major expenditure. We will decide in coming weeks if we will put this issue on the ballot again in the August primary election. It lost by only a few votes the last time," clerk Judy Carey said.

Other budgeted items include fire protection and ambulance service from Charlevoix, an annual audit, insurance, salaries and the township park.

The only major increase in salaries was for the zoning administrator which was increased from $180 to $300. Tom Carey has been appointed Zoning Administrator.

Anticipated revenues are $22,000 in state revenue sharing and $11,000 from the one-mill allocated property tax and lesser amounts from other sources such as swamp tax and delinquent taxes and $21,342 balance on hand.

Funeral mass was scheduled at St. Mary's Church on Wednesday morning, March 30, with the Rev. James Kenzioriski as celebrant, with interment in St. Mary's Cemetery. A rosary service was held at Winchester Funeral Home on Tuesday, March 29.

Born in Germany on Oct. 17, 1899, the former Elizabeth Libera, daughter of John and Ida Libera, married Paul H. Lietz in Germany in 1920.

In 1924, she and their two children came to the United States to join Mr. Lietz, who had settled in Detroit. In 1947 the family moved to Norwood Township.

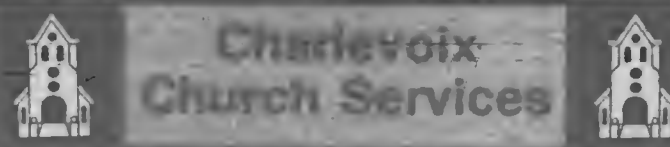

Mr. Lietz preceded her in death on June 24, 1972. She was a member of St. Mary's Church and a life member of St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society.

She is survived by two sons, Paul and Hubert of Charlevoix; a daughter, Klara Scheffler of Roseville; three grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and a sister, Sister Elphrasiz (Kathryn) Libera of Trier, West Germany.

We proclaim that you are the Messiah! We shout with joyful voices, "Alleluia! The Lord has risen and is with us!"

Prayer: O Lord, crucified and risen, are the content of my life. You are the bringer of love, the one who gives meaning to my life. Amen.

JACQUIE MERTA

Jacqui Merta is executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

On June 10, 11, and 12, the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Committee will sponsor its fourth Annual Trout Tournament.

Last year over 600 persons registered to participate in this event, and tournament officials are predicting that there will be at least 750-800 entries in 1988.

As an added incentive, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is sponsoring its third annual free fishing weekend at the same time. Michigan travelers will be able to fish free anywhere in the state Saturday and Sunday, June 11 and 12.

You don't have to buy a fishing license or a trout-salmon stamp during the two-day free fishing festival, but normal fishing rules and regulations will apply. The Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament also includes a drawing for a new boat which will be held 6-9 p.m. on June 11 in East Park.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is presently applying for a raffle license to conduct this event. Proceeds will go to the Lake Charlevoix Area Tourist Tournament.

In order to comply with qualifications to obtain a raffle license, the chamber must amend its bylaws to add a dissolution clause.

Members will vote on this amendment at the meeting on Wednesday, March 30, being held in conjunction with Business After Hours, 5-7 p.m. at the Edgewater Inn.

OF BLESSINGS

Prepared weekly by the members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

by The Rev. David Yingling
United Methodist Church

Life is, at times, loose ends. There is something to tidy up, put away, or keep until tomorrow.

Church on Sunday may be the same: the "Saints" gather around the word of God and wonder if God notices us — our undoers, not yet, or even our undoings, dissolving.

Songs distract or soothe us. Still, we come to prayer, "forgive us, Lord, my trespasses."

"Please read Matthew 5 — 'how blessed we are.'"
Easter dawns and God surprises us! We've met before, my God and I am in awe. Nothing can contain you, O Lord! You are with the living! How painful it was for you, O Lord, on the hill of hatred. Death and darkness overcome me. And, then you break the stones around you and push through the darkness of death, to the light of resurrection. Once again, you are among us!

We proclaim that you are the Messiah! We shout with joyful voices, "Alleluia! The Lord has risen and is with us!"

Prayer: O Lord, crucified and risen, are the content of my life. You are the bringer of love, the one who gives meaning to my life. Amen.

REFLECTIONS

FRAN MARTIN

I couldn't resist.
Ed and Mary (LaBlance) Fochtman of Elmhurst, Ill., sent a program from the "Peter Rabbit Operetta" presented by the students of the kindergarten, first and second grades sometime in the mid '20s.

The teachers were Eleanor Finucan and Rowena Wilson and probably Lillian Swinton, though she was not listed as one of the directors.

Because it's Easter and a time to think of bunnies I thought you might enjoy the names of the participants. Knowing them as adults, as parents and grandparents, try to imagine them in the roles they played in the operetta and you'll understand why I couldn't resist.

The scene: Charlevoix Elementary School where the classrooms were to the right and left of the front entry that faced the tennis courts. The year: between 1924-26.

Teddy Mattison played Peter Rabbit, Betty Withers was Flopsy, Mary LaBlance Mopsy, Donald Tillotson Cottontail, Edith O'Neill Mother Rabbit and Jimmy Hiller Mr. McGregor.

The peas in the garden were Marion Cross, Patty Hyers, Virginia Miller, Clara Hoslar, Lee Hiller, Leroy Plum, Bertram Pearl, Leroy Genia, Ned Wagner, Francis Solder, Bruce Withers and Gladys Barnhard.

Carrots: Douglas Bird, Lee Scott, Jimmie Levinton, Georgia King, Hilda Whitley, Franklin Olmstead, Lewis Brown, George Bissell, Helen Ikens, Jimmie Whitley, Beatrice Beardsley, Harry Boak.

Lettuce: Helena Isaksen, Ormiston Bergeon, Roale O'Neill, Margaret Young, Helen O'Neill, Vernice Holland, Ruth Heise, Anetta Livingston, Billie House, Albert Russell, John Jones, Leonard Oliver.

Beans: Muriel VanAllesburg, Philip Howe, Martha E. Craig, Junior White, Edward Thorp, Marcelita Denny, Marcella Denny, Almata Vosburg, Shirley McCann, Donald Bartlett, Marjorie Radle, Bobby Pearl, Stella Livingston, Gilbert Powers, Betty Jean Taylor.

Camp Fire Girls were the ushers at the event.

Jimmie Levinton was the reader, Lola Fessenden did something in one of the scenes and accompanists were Mrs. Swinton and Miss Finucan.

The home of the rabbits and Mr. McGregor's garden were the sites of the action, with the cast participating in songs and dances.

The only paid advertiser, listed on the back of the program, was Charlevoix County Bank, the oldest bank in Charlevoix County, which paid four percent interest on savings accounts.

As you enjoy Easter think of members of the cast in their roles in Mr. McGregor's (Jimmie Hiller's) garden.

Charlevoix Yesterday

In the mid-1920's, Charlevoix had a winter carnival that rivals today's festivals. This picture apparently was taken at that time. George Roderick, who was county clerk, is pictured at left and Frank Bird, register of deeds, at right. One of the others is thought to be Frank Courier and the fourth is unidentified. In the background is the Majestic Theater. (Picture courtesy Devere Bird)

City voids permit for Park Place

The city has withdrawn its approval of construction of the second phase of the Park Place condominium project.

One element of the site plan — described as a walk-out basement — violates a mediated agreement in a lawsuit, the city planner said in a letter to the developer.

Another item in the site plan — a pool between the project and Pine River Channel — also is a violation of the settlement, lawsuit plaintiffs say.

The developer, Don Berlage, told the Courier he would have no comment.

Terms of the agreement have remained secret since the lawsuit was settled in early February. A separate lawsuit has been filed against the city by a federal judge in an attempt to make the settlement public.

In attempting not to reveal terms of the agreement, people involved are answering questions by referring to what was not in the accord.

Neighbor David Miles sued the city of Charlevoix and Northern Michigan Realty Services Inc. after the city approved construction of an 11-unit condominium at 105 and 107 Park Avenue.

The firm had also sought approval to use the building as a 21-unit hotel.

WATCH Inc., an area environmental group, at first agreed to fund Miles' suit, then joined as a plaintiff.

At the urging of a group of residents who wanted the city to avoid a long, expensive court fight in a dispute which drew considerable community interest, the parties involved agreed to meet with a mediator.

After a one-day session with a Southfield mediator, a statement was issued saying construction of the condominium would continue but that all other terms of the settlement would remain confidential.

A revised site plan submitted March 16 at first met with city planning department approval and was passed on to the county building department.

Then, after questions were raised by Miles, city planner Gerry Harsh met with city attorney Jeff VanTreese and on

Lost and found

Sisters reunited after 4-decade separation

by SARA GAY DAMMANN

Forty-five years of love, determination and patience have paid off for Katie Wade of Charlevoix this month. She received phone calls from two sisters she had not seen since 1941.

The story began in 1939 with the suicide death of the girls' mother. The tragedy was compounded in 1941 when their father was sent to Jackson Prison, for an offense about which Katie still remains unclear.

Five Recknall sisters were left homeless when their immediate family fell apart: Maxine, 14; Frances, 10; Kate, 7; Cynthia, 5; and Leona 4.

They were divided between two aunts' homes, with Maxine and Kate going to one aunt, the other three to her sister.

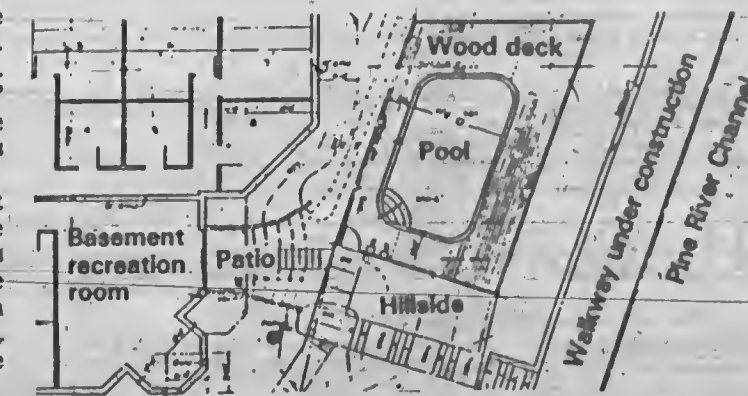

The only consolation, Katie remembers, was that they all went to the same school, "except for little Leona. But I talked to her on the phone or went to see her a lot."

"Each day I used to run all the way to school ... this was a ritual ... and on weekends we got to spend time together so we wouldn't be lonely ... Then one day, the girls never came to school. I waited and waited, the teacher had to call me into class. I even waited at lunch time ... but they never showed up."

Katie wrote in a long letter she sent to the Flint Journal this January. When she returned to her Aunt Grace's home, she learned the other aunt had given "the girls up for adoption because she didn't want to take care of them anymore" the letter continued. "That day a little bit of me died."

The two little girls, Cynthia

South pier catwalk controversy

A dispute over replacement of the south pier into Lake Michigan appears far from over: If anything, it may be heating up.
 At issue is the loss of space for fishermen along a reconstructed pier.

Drawn into the dispute — and a similar one in Holland — are local officials, the state Department of Natural Resources, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and at least two congressmen.

The city is adamant a catwalk be constructed across the open end of a U-shaped wave trap the Corps of Engineers wants to include in a rebuilt pier.

The corps says it cannot spend its money on recreational facilities — such as a fishing walkway — when building navigational devices.

The Department of Natural Resources says it won't issue water quality permits to the corps if it doesn't retain recreational facilities.

And the two congressmen are trying to get the two sides together. Area Rep. Bob Davis has been talking to corps officials about the present impasse, and St. Joseph Rep. Fred Upton has introduced legislation aimed at avoiding future rows.

DNR director Gordon Guyer called Charlevoix city officials Monday, April 4, to confirm that the city council is sticking to its insistence on a catwalk.

Council members and the mayor took an informal vote that night and indicated 4-2 their

Mayor Ralph McRae and council member Bill Bellows, who was not present at the original vote, indicated they were willing to accept any solution that got the pier rebuilt.

But council members Earl Muma, Butch Russell, Shirley Roloff and Norm Probert said the catwalk was necessary to get their approval of the project.

Guyer indicated he was not sure the project would get done this year if the DNR and city continue to push for the catwalk, City Treasurer Rick Brandt said. But Guyer wasn't sure it would get done if they didn't, either, he said.

Corps' official Ross Kittelman has said the project should begin soon or funding, OK'd for this fiscal year, could be lost.

Bid solicitation has been held up by the dispute.

Davis has been in contact with corps officials, who have reiterated their position that recreational concerns are out of their jurisdiction.

Upton's proposed legislation would require the corps to consider "present and future recreational uses and commercial development" when reviewing projects.

The corps has labeled the south pier a "failed" structure and says it could collapse. The wooden cribs holding up the concrete pier and the wood lighthouse are crumbling, and the lighthouse is tilting.

Electric co-op could save city $100,000 a year

Charlevoix expects to save about $100,000 a year in wholesale electricity costs in a cooperative effort with other cities.

This year the city is saving about $80,000.

The city is part of a power generation and transmission cooperative called Michigan Public Power Agency.

By using electricity generated by some of the 14 municipal members, the city anticipates generous savings compared to buying power from Consumers Power Co.

The cooperative includes five cities which generate their own power and nine municipalities which have their own transmission systems — such as Charlevoix.

The cooperative also has part ownership in the Belle River generating plant near St. Clair owned by Detroit Edison and in the Campbell No. 3 plant near Holland owned by Consumers Power.

It can also tie in with Wolverine Power Supply Cooperative and can purchase power from outside sources if the price is right.

The main generator among the MPPA members is Lansing, which makes so much more electricity than it needs that it now sells some to Consumers Power, which in turn sells it to places such as Charlevoix.

Under the cooperative agreement, power from Lansing, Holland, Zeeland, Grand Haven and Traverse City will go into a "coordinated pool" of producers.

That power would then be sold to the transmission members for the average cost of generation plus 10 percent.

Power from Belle River and Campbell will also go into the generators' pool, from which power can also be sold to outside interests.

City utilities chief Ed Whitley estimates that the nine transmission cities will be using about six megawatts daily, about the projected output from Campbell and Belle River being fed into the pool by 1994.

A study of electrical power needs done for the city a couple years ago indicated about one-half of the city's electricity came from Consumers Power in July 1986.

By 1990, the city would be getting three-fourths of its power from outside sources, the study said, with Campbell and Belle River providing two-thirds of the city's capacity in 1995.

And by the mid-1990s, the study predicted, the city would be looking for a market for surplus non-peak load energy from its share of the two plants' output.

Through the MPPA, surplus power is sold back into the pool. The city is working on a $1.8 million electrical system upgrading, which includes expansion, improvements and replacement of elements.

There is presently a $900,000 cash reserve in the electric fund for improvements.

Readers responding to a Courier questionnaire favor the present location of the East Park bandshell for a replacement or repaired facility.

Readers favor present bandshell spot

Replacement or repair of the bandshell in East Park is OK with most readers responding to a Courier request for opinions.

But two-thirds of those responding say the bandshell should remain in its present location whether rebuilt or replaced.

And nearly one-half say the fish pond should remain where it is.

A citizen committee working with the blessing of city council is putting together a proposal to replace the structure with a pavilion along the side of Wharfside Market.

The committee is also working on fund-raising for the estimated $120,000 to $160,000 project. About $55,000 that could be used on a bandshell exists in city and private bank accounts.

Readers were split evenly between those who favored repair of the 30-year-old stage and those who wanted replacement. There were 16 votes for fixing it, 14 for repair and two for either. Two readers voted for leaving the structure alone.

Three-quarters of the readers favored putting a roof on the structure, with 24 votes for and 8 opposed.

Six readers said it was OK to move the fish pond and nine said it was OK to remove it altogether, while three said to do either. But 17 said to leave it alone.

The present location was far-and-away the favorite site, with 23 votes. Along the side of Wharfside garnered seven votes, along the marina got one vote and on a barge in Round Lake got one write-in vote. Four voters said either the present site or the Wharfside site was OK.

The questionnaire appeared in the March 23 Courier.

Sidewalks remain top priority for downtown panel

Reconstruction of downtown sidewalks remains the No. 1 priority of members of the Downtown Development Authority, even though financing is delaying the work.

The authority is an advisory body to city council and gets its money through a method known as tax increment financing, which uses tax money from new construction in the business district to make improvements in that area.

Some members of city council have criticized the authority's spending plans for the coming fiscal year, but city officials say not enough money will be available to complete the sidewalk project this year.

Engineering for the replacement is expected to be completed this year. One problem that must be overcome, City Manager Mike Wiesner has said, is determining what work must be done to shore up under-sidewalk cavities.

These voids in the fronts of several buildings' basements are often left over from the days when deliveries were lowered to storage areas with dumbwaiter-type lifts in storefront sidewalks.

Periodically, DDA members are asked to rank projects which have been discussed as possible downtown improvements. With this prioritizing, city planner Gerry Harsch and the DDA are able to whittle the lists down to those items considered most important.

The DDA is presently going through this process again. The downtown sidewalk replacement received the highest priority in the rankings of all DDA members who completed a survey containing 61 possible projects.

Second on the list was completion of Hoffmann Park, which is being held up while Michigan Bell again attempts to drill under Pine River Channel and install seven utility cables.

Bel attempted in the fall to place the cables under the channel by using a state-of-the-art oil drilling technique, but encountered problems. Only one of the seven cables was usable. After Bell returns this spring for another attempt, the DDA plans to finish the Park Avenue park.

The third and fourth highest-ranked items on the DDA list are removal of a limited number of parking spaces at Clinton and Mason intersections with Bridge to allow for traffic flow improvements.

A year ago, a right-turn lane was established on east-bound Clinton at the traffic light. City officials agree the change improved traffic flow and allowed more cars to turn north on Bridge Street during a traffic light cycle.

Other items included in the top 12 on the DDA members' list: — Replace public directional signage, particularly directional signs to parking lots in street rights-of-way.

— Improve walkway along Round Lake, particularly from Park to South Channel walkway and construct under-bridge walkway.

— Construct new walkways in Bridge Park.

— Work out an agreement with business owners at the Oleson's shopping center for better placement of and collection from waste receptacles.

— Install new low-level street lighting fixtures on Bridge Street.

— Reconstruct, with a new layout, the parking lot between the channel and Clinton Street along Round Lake east of Bridge Street.

— Remove parking spaces to improve traffic flow at Park Avenue and Bridge Street.

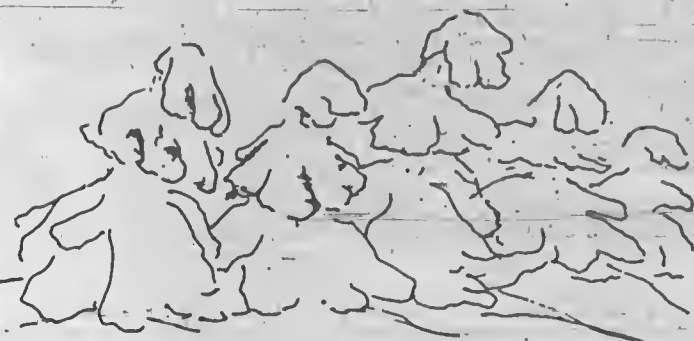

— Renovate the parking lot between Mason and Clinton.

Sixth graders ask questions

The following letters were written to Charlevoix city council members by sixth graders in Pat Miller's class at Charlevoix Middle School.

Letters to the editor:

Dear Sirs and Madam,

The people of Charlevoix have admired our community but we are getting disgusted with all the condos. We would like the condos stopped. A solution is to stop building them and put parks, houses, or a family restaurant in their place. Take down condos that do not have people living in them and make them into hotels. If you build any more, make them a lot smaller.

Will you please respond to this letter?

Sincerely yours,
Gary Potter
Harry Houlden

Dear City Council,
I'd like to ask you a question. Why isn't there a swimming pool in Charlevoix? We need some place to swim because in the summer time the beaches are packed. In the winter time there is no place to swim for practice, Boy Scouts and for the handicapped people to learn to swim for Special Olympics.

I would appreciate it if you would answer my letter.
Sincerely Yours,
Dan Dixon

Engineering a problem

Several months ago, I had an opportunity to cover a meeting of the Charlevoix City Council and I was disturbed to learn that Charlevoix's city-manager form of government wasn't working.

I mentioned later in this column that — a decade after our first, home-rule charter was adopted — the council is still afraid to let go and let the manager manage. The council apparently thinks it still has, a better grasp of the nitty-gritty problems of running the city than the fellow they have hired to do the job.

Some members of the council weren't too happy with my observations and even City Manager Michael Wiesner thought I had received the wrong impression.

On March 28 I had a chance to cover a work session of the council and was disappointed to find that things haven't changed one iota. In fact, a new element has been added to council-manager relations — downright belligerence toward the manager on the part of some council members, namely Earl Muma, Norm Probert and Shirley Roloff.

For example, Wiesner has recommended that the city hire an engineer to handle some of the engineering projects that have multiplied by quantum leaps in recent months because of the city's determination to rebuild parts of its deteriorating infrastructure.

Such work is now done by private engineering firms hired by the city. But Wiesner feels that the city will be able to save large sums of money by doing the work itself and his arguments make sense, at least they do to Mayor Ralph McRae and Councilmen Bill Bellows and William Haggard.

But Muma, Probert and Roloff don't see it that way. Neither does Councilman Butch Russell, but he is not as vociferous as the others.

The problem seems to stem, at least in part, from the fact that Wiesner himself is a licensed engineer. In fact, when Wiesner was hired his engineering background was a big factor in his selection. But I do not recall anyone suggesting that Wiesner assume the duties of city engineer in addition to his duties as city manager.

However, Wiesner has undertaken some engineering projects, including the new Clinton Street parking lot, which certainly is a credit to his skills at the drafting board.

But Wiesner said that job entailed several 70-hour weeks last spring and he is not about to undertake other projects of the same magnitude. He will be willing, however, to oversee the work of a young engineering graduate if the council ever sees fit to hire one.

He thinks he can find such a person within a $25,000-$30,000 salary range — a mere pittance compared to the amount that could be saved if the work didn't have to be farmed out.

Now here is a proposal that I think makes a lot of sense. So does the mayor. So do Bellows and Haggard.

Furthermore, the hiring of a city engineer has been proposed by the city manager, the only fellow in town who really knows what kind of staffing he needs to run the city the way it should be run.

In fact, it is astounding that a municipal corporation the size of Charlevoix, with an annual general fund budget in excess $4 million (plus a $2 million electric budget), can function at all with such a skeletal staff.

Then why the opposition? Search me. As a news reporter, who also happens to be a Charlevoix taxpayer, I got the distinct impression that Muma, Probert and Roloff are not exactly against hiring an engineer, but they are irked that the proposal came from Wiesner — the man they have hired to make such recommendations.

Several years ago, the Charlevoix Board of Education was unwilling to hire a business manager to assist Superintendent Rex Milligan in the handling of a great groundswell of paperwork required by the state.

The board apparently thought that Milligan, who was an educator first and a bean-counter second, should be able to carry the whole load himself.

But the task was too much. Instead, Milligan quit and went back to the classroom.

I hope we don't lose Wiesner in a parallel scenario. With his experience, he is worth far too much to Charlevoix.

Big Rock siren retest set

The monthly test of the Big Rock Point warning system will be re-run at noon Saturday, April 9.

The siren and loud-speaker system did not properly activate April 2.

Paul Slaughter, project manager from Consumers Power Co.'s Palisades plant, said there are a number of possible reasons for the failure.

He said the system is activated by a tape cassette and, any number of minor problems could have occurred.

The warning system is activated from the county emergency services office at the sheriff's department.

An identical back-up system at the Charlevoix fire department would be used in an emergency if the main system did not activate, Slaughter said.

Art classes set at library

THE LAW AND YOU

TRADEMARKS

Many companies create an identification between themselves and their products by using trademarks. These take the form of names, logos, or symbols. Under common law, a product must simply display a trademark consistently in order that it be valid and recognized. However, situations occur when litigation arises over similar or prior use of a trademark. To afford additional protection, then, many companies register their trademarks. This involves submitting a common-law trademark to the Federal Patent and Trademark Office. If after thirty days no one objects to its registration, the trademark is approved. Once registered, a trademark carries more formidable exclusive rights of use which eventually become incontestable.

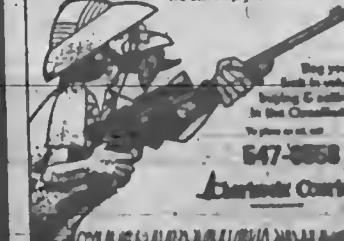

For matters of business as well as civil concern in the area of legal rights and responsibilities, I welcome your call. Let us help you understand the legal implications of your action or those of others so that your best interest will be served and protected. For the security of yourself, your family and your financial future, call me with your questions.

Sisters reunited after four decades

and Leona, were adopted quickly, disappearing from Katie's life.

The older sister, Frances had less good fortune. She was shuffled from foster home to foster home.

Frances was returned to a detention wing of the orphanage where the two remaining sisters, Maxine and Katie, then 11, found her one Thanksgiving. Then, Frances ran away from the detention home again.

Within a few years, Maxine moved to northern Michigan leaving Katie alone. When she turned 16, Katie took off. Fleeing serious family problems, she hitchhiked north to live with Maxine in Petoskey.

She also began her search for her baby sisters. "At 16 I went to the court in Flint and asked for help. They told me to come back when I was 21. When I was 21, I went back to the court in Flint. They told me no, they could do nothing for me."

Meanwhile, married at 17, Katie endured an unhappy marriage for 10 years - all the time seeking information about her sisters.

Court officials in Charlevoix helped her with forms which would be posted in Flint. Officials in Flint promised that if the sisters sought information they would be reunited. Katie has since learned the sisters did go to the Flint courts for information but were brushed off.

Remarried to Elwood Wade, now retired from the Coast Guard, Katie made her home in Charlevoix. As her children grew, they joined her quest for their lost aunts, especially her oldest daughter Valerie.

In desperation, this Jan. 23, Katie wrote the Flint Journal, sending pictures of the sisters with an open letter, requesting they get in touch if they recognize their story. The Journal responded with a major story on Sunday, March 6.

That day Cynthia called Katie. Cynthia was tentative, worried, Katie recalls. "We had a good long talk, but she wishes to remain private for now. I think she needs time to accept all this. But I do know that she is well and happy, and this I cherish very much."

A second phone call that Sunday, from a friend of sister Leona provided a telephone number. Katie called repeatedly. No one was home. Monday evening Katie's phone rang. It was Leona.

"We cried and cried. We talked for hours on the phone. Then Leona called back to say good night."

Leona and Katie arranged to meet. It was a successful reunion, each marvelling at each other.

"Leona's husband, a retired policeman, watched us all night. Finally I asked him, 'What are you looking at.' He said he couldn't believe how much alike we are."

As she describes the transition from 45 years of searching to "rebuilding our family," Katie's voice changes. "I can't believe all this is happening to me. I can't believe God can be so good to you."

"Leona has also talked with Cynthia. Now we are planning a reunion for the three of us in Edmore in April. Cynthia wasn't sure at first. Her life has not been easy. I think she's had a rough life. I'm only sorry I wasn't there for her."

AROUND THE TOWN

Here's your chance for a taste of immortality.... Your design could end up on the front of this year's Venetian Festival T-shirts....

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the 58th annual mid-summer event, is looking for an original design to grace the shirts.... There's a $100 prize for the winner....

To submit a design, draw it in black on white letter-sized paper (other colors and sizes cannot be accepted).... Complete an entry form available at the chamber office and submit the design by Wednesday, June 1.... There is no special theme for the festival this year.

Spring cleanup could soon be a thing of the past.... The annual collection of items too big or bulky for weekly trash pickup is being replaced - by weekly trash pickup of big or bulky items....

In the past, city crews made the once-a-year pickup, and last year it was made by a private collector contracting with the city.... This year, the private contractor will collect most large items during its regular runs through the city....

Among the items that will be picked up: Bundled newspapers and magazines, toys and clothing, household appliances and furniture.... Also, yard refuse, passenger car and pickup truck tires, branches less than four feet long and two inches in diameter, and up to six 30-gallon bags of leaves and grass clippings....

The city's contract with Waste Management Inc. will cost the same as last year - $11,213.... Collections will be made separately from privately contracted general waste pickups.... The only holdup in approving the contract is city council curiosity over why the Belvedere and Chicago Club resorts are excluded from the pickup contract.... Once that question is resolved, council appears ready to make spring cleanup as year-round affair.

Homeowners no longer will have to pay for repair of damaged and dangerous sidewalks.... A provision that property owners pay 60 percent of replacement costs has been scrapped....

With property owners paying an extra four mills in taxes for reconstruction of streets, sewers and sidewalks, city council members thought it was unfair to make them pay separately for repairs, too.... Property owners still pay 60 percent for new sidewalks.... Sidewalk replacement is planned this summer.

Alumni association being re-activated

The Charlevoix High School Alumni Association, organized in 1948, is being re-activated by a group of people headed by Janice (Burns) Raecke.

A meeting of interested alumni will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 13, in the cafeteria of Charlevoix Middle School.

"We chose the middle school as a meeting place because all of us who graduated from high school between 1927 and 1960 attended what is now the middle school," said Raecke.

"As a result, it has more memories for us than the recent high school. Those who graduated since then went through the eighth grade at the middle school. Added to that, the old high school was located in the same area so the location is more meaningful than the other schools."

Interested persons may send their names and addresses to the Charlevoix High School Alumni Association, in care of Jan Raecke, Charlevoix Elementary School.

Chamber founders honored

Three of the original officials of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce receive plaques from executive director Jacquie Merta during a 30th anniversary party. Robert Lieberman (top) and Robert Fochtman (bottom) were on the first board of directors. I. Lee Moerland was among the signers of incorporation papers.

Mayor makes appointments

Mayor Ralph McRae has made appointments to several city boards and commissions.

None of the appointments required city council approval. Council members informally acknowledged their acceptance of the appointments.

Named to the planning commission were Russell Lewis and Nancy Wood.

Lewis replaces Walt Hufford, commission chairman, who chose not to seek re-appointment after six years on the board.

Wood was named to her first full three-year term. She filled a vacancy left by the resignation of Don Meggison in September. Named to the Downtown Development Authority were Michael Hilligan and Alyce Lesser.

Lesser, who has been a member since 1984, was appointed to another four-year term.

Hilligan also fills a full term, replacing Hans Wiemer, who McRae said will serve as an advisor to the panel.

Named to the housing commission was Harold Krutsch. He replaces Claude Pearsall, who served a five-year term which began in 1983.

Landfill expansion rejected by county waste planners

A request to expand the only licensed landfill in northwest Michigan has been turned down by a county committee.

The county solid waste management committee also refused to allow trash from anywhere except Charlevoix and Emmet counties to be dumped at the Eveline Township site.

Charlevoix County Landfill Inc.'s new owner, Waste Management Inc., wants to expand the landfill from its present 40-acre site to 100 acres.

Waste Management, the largest disposal firm in the country, purchased the landfill in November from Dawson Way.

Waste Management has said it will be turning the facility into a state-of-the-art dumping site with upgraded monitoring, draining and lining.

In order to keep the facility profitable, the service area and landfill area must both be expanded, company officials have said.

The citizens committee rewriting the state-mandated area waste disposal plan last week took two actions which would prevent expansion if the state approves of the county plan.

The committee has been working for nearly two years on the plan update. The 14-member panel expects to finish the plan in April, county planner Larry Sullivan said.

The committee's work will be reviewed by the county planning commission and county board of commissioners before going to all 18 local units of government for review.

Two-thirds approval must be obtained or else the state Department of Natural Resources could step in and write its own plan for the county, Sullivan said.

The deadline to have a plan to the state is next Jan. 1.

The solid waste committee has been debating landfill size and service area since before Waste Management purchased the site. Former owner Way is a member of the update committee.

At last week's meeting, the committee rejected on an 8-4 vote a motion to notify Waste Management that its request for expansion of the landfill was denied.

The panel later approved 7-5 a motion to not include expansion in the plan.

Also approved was a motion to enter an agreement with Emmet County that would allow Emmet to dump in the Charlevoix landfill and allow Charlevoix to use a transfer station in Emmet.

The solid waste committee will be meeting twice in April to try to finalize its plan, Sullivan said.

Fish unit endorsed at beach

The installation of a temporary, donated fish cleaning station at Ferry Avenue Beach has been endorsed by city council.

Action on a proposed parking ordinance for the beach area has been postponed, however, until questions about a boat-trailer fee schedule are answered.

The fish cleaning station will be provided by Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Inc., which will build the facility at the Ferry Avenue end of the beach-launch ramp parking lot.

The city will install utility service and will be responsible for maintenance of the facility.

Questions about the facility have been raised during council meetings on the parking ordinance. Questions mainly concerned possible problems with sanitation and seagulls.

Members of the trout tournament board and city officials visited fish stations in other parts of the state before the block and screen facility was designed.

Jim Withers, president of the tournament board, said there was no guarantee problems would be avoided but said they could be worked out.

The plan is to see if a permanent station is needed by operating the temporary one for a couple years. A permanent station could cost the city $50,000 or more, based on what other cities have spent.

Council voted 3-2 to put in the temporary facility. Voting yes were Shirley Roloff, Bill Bellows and Norm Probert. Voting no were Earl Muma and Butch Russell. Bill Haggard was absent.

Good Friday tradition

Members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association carry a replica of the cross Jesus Christ died on before Good Friday services at First Baptist Church. In front is the Rev. Duane Nelson, at right is the Rev. Philip Scharbaum and at rear of photo is the Rev. Bruce Hamilton.

Sheriff getting new radio system

The Charlevoix County Sheriff Department is operating a portion of its new communications system on a temporary federal license.

The department is still awaiting Federal Communications Commission approval of its full-system license.

The network will consist of low-band and high-band communications apparatus. Under the temporary license, only the low-band frequencies can be used.

With the new system, the Sheriff's Department will be able to send and receive communications from law enforcement and emergency bases throughout the county.

The system includes a microwave transmitter from the sheriff's office in Charlevoix to a tower on Richardson Hill in Wilson Township.

Through use of the radio tower, heretofore "silent" areas of the county will be accessible despite the hilly landscape.

In addition to being able to serve a larger area, a new console will make it possible for law enforcement and emergency units, including patrol cars, to communicate among themselves.

The new system replaces equipment installed in 1971. It was purchased from Motorola Co. at a cost of over $100,000.

Undersheriff Dale Boehm and county planner Larry Sullivan represented the county in a year of detail work involved in setting up the system.

Park Place permit pulled Hats in the ring

March 31 withdrew the zoning permit.

"The walk-out basement was not a part of that settlement," said Harsch's letter to Berlage, who is president of Northern Michigan Realty Services. Inclusion of the basement also violates the city zoning ordinance's height restrictions, Harsch's letter said.

VanTreese told the Courier the city needs to obtain some direction from the zoning board of appeals on questions raised by inclusion of the basement.

"When does a stairwell become an additional floor?" he asked. "When does a stairwell become a walk-out basement?"

There are prior instances in the city which support arguments that a basement exit should be counted in building height and that it shouldn't be, he said.

VanTreese said he agreed with Harsch's letter halting approval until the zoning board makes an interpretation.

Harsch said he is attempting to call a special meeting of the zoning board to address the question.

Neither Harsch nor VanTreese indicated a problem with the pool shown on the site plan, but both plaintiffs and their lawyer did.

"The pool is not at this point an issue with me," said Harsch. Said VanTreese, "The pool that was shown on the site plan was approved."

Ward Kuhn was the attorney for Miles and WATCH. He told the Courier the pool "certainly wasn't part of the deal we talked about nor was the pool in that configuration."

Kuhn said Berlage is raising new issues not addressed in the settlement agreement. "The question would be: Is there some prohibition against what's being proposed?"

VanTreese said it might be possible at this time to "get variances that would not otherwise affect other areas of the settlement agreement."

No variances from zoning or dinance provisions were sought in submission of the revised site plan.

"I knew nothing about this type of pool when I went into the mediation, and I knew nothing about it when I came out," Miles said.

"When I saw the plan and saw the pool was 20 feet from the channel, I was shocked and disgusted."

Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH, also said he was surprised to learn about the pool's inclusion on the site plan.

"That doesn't sound like what we agreed to in mediation," he said. He said, however, as the others did, that he was prevented from saying what they did agree to.

Avern Cohn, a Detroit federal district judge who owns a condominium unit near the Park Avenue site, has filed a lawsuit trying to force the city to disclose the terms of the agreement.

His suit was filed after the city denied his request for settlement data through the state Freedom of Information Act.

An assistant state attorney general told the Courier anyone involved in the Miles lawsuit could be found in contempt of court if they revealed the terms of the settlement.

There apparently also are penalties within the settlement for disclosure.

Kuhn has signed a legal document on behalf of Miles and WATCH asking for the secrecy provision to be lifted from the settlement.

Neither Berlage nor the city has agreed to the request. Berlage says he is considering signing the request, and Mayor Ralph McRae says the city favors it. City council passed on an opportunity to vote to release the details after Cohn's lawsuit was filed.

If all parties in the suit did sign the request, it would also have to be approved by Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas, whose signature made the mediation agreement valid.

She graduated from East Jordan High School in 1949 and attended Ferris State College where she graduated with a two-year secretarial degree, then went on to earn a four-year bachelor of science degree and teaching certificate in business subjects.

She also attended the University of Michigan and earned some graduate credits toward a master's degree in business.

Dvoracek taught three years of high school in Fremont. She then worked for four years at Hess Furniture Co. as bookkeeper and credit manager.

Dvoracek has lived in Marion Township since her marriage to Anthony, and they have three grown children.

The filing deadline for partisan and non-partisan county, city and township posts is 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 31.

Linderman is a Harbor Springs native who graduated from Harbor Springs High School in 1965, North Central Michigan College in 1967 and Eastern Michigan University in 1969.

Ralph McRae

Mayor will seek re-election

Mayor Ralph McRae plans to run for a second term — after he returns from a trip to the Soviet Union.

On the eve of his trip, the mayor said he would like to try to complete some projects he has begun in his 15 months in office.

"I have attended almost three hundred meetings with individuals, groups, organizations and various boards and commissions," he said. "Actually I have not been very successful in completing any single project. But I have been trying. I would like the opportunity to finish some of the ideas I have on my list."

He said there are 11 items on that list. McRae's projects have ranged from attempting to get a nursing home and day care facilities in the city to promoting the industrial park and fighting condominium development on the waterfront.

So far, no other city residents have announced their intentions to run in the mayoral election. The filing deadline for the August primary is 4 p.m. Tuesday, June 7.

He received a juris doctorate degree from the University of Minnesota Law School in 1972 and a master's degree in business administration from Indiana University.

He has practiced law in Charlevoix and Emmet counties since 1974, specializing in probate and real estate law. He was an assistant prosecuting attorney in Emmet County and managed a five-county area of office for Northern Michigan Legal Services.

The attorney is married and has one son. The family lives in Harbor Springs.

The field will be narrowed to two candidates in the August primary and a judge elected in the November general election.

Bottled gas shortage hurries island boat season

With Beaver Islanders running short of bottled gas and other supplies, boat service is resuming more than a week earlier than normal.

The Beaver Island Boat Co. was scheduled to open its 1988 navigation season Wednesday, April 6, ice conditions permitting, said business manager Lynn DeGrow.

The season normally opens April 15.

The early opening was made possible when the U.S. Coast Guard icebreaker Biscayne Bay out of St. Ignace entered St. James harbor and broke up the ice after opening the Grey's Reef passage east of the island.

The Biscayne Bay broke up the ice after Coast Guard Base Soo was informed the island was running low on bottled gas.

"The icebreaker was in the area and broke out the ice so the Beaver Islander could get out of the harbor and open navigation early rather than have the Coast Guard transport the bottled gas for the island residents. This is the one thing that cannot be transported by plane," DeGrow said.

Both the Beaver Islander, a 96-foot motorship, and the 65-foot South Shore were berthed in St. James harbor for the first time in recent years. They are usually docked in Charlevoix.

The Beaver Islander was scheduled for its Coast Guard inspection Tuesday to begin operating Wednesday if the 32-mile route from the harbor to the mainland was fairly clear of drift ice, DeGrow said.

William McDonough, of McDonough's Market at St. James and president of the boat company, said Sunday "The island is running short of bottled gas as well as other supplies. We (the Market) had to fly in about 10 tons of supplies in recent weeks when we ran out of various items. There's a lot of lumber on the dock waiting to be 'exported' to the mainland so we're anxious to get the season underway."

McDonough said as much as 400,000 board feet of lumber cut by the mill during the winter is waiting to be shipped to the mainland and trucked to companies in mid-Michigan.

"The 40 to 50 tons of supplies we brought in last December before the boat was laid up at holiday time are mostly gone," he said.

"That's why we had to have some flown in. From now on we will be able to get regular shipments from our suppliers. The other businesses on the island are in much the same position."

McDonough said there is a lot of building going on on the island, and builders are awaiting supplies.

Until May 1, the Beaver Islander will make three trips per week with freight, mail and passengers. Starting May 1, it will make five trips a week, operating every day except Tuesday and Sunday. Beginning June 1, the boat will operate every day except June 7 out of the harbor of St. James.

From June 20 until Sept. 6, the boat will operate out of Charlevoix. During July and August the Beaver Islander will make two trips daily except on Friday and Saturday when it will make three trips per day. In the fall it will again operate out of the island harbor.

The South Shore is scheduled to go to the shipyard for repairs about May 1.

"This boat will undergo some fairly minor repairs this year and will go to the shipyard for its five-year Coast Guard inspection in 1989," DeGrow said.

The South Shore is operated when needed to supplement the work of the Beaver Islander.

During the winter the passenger area of the Beaver Islander was redecorated with new floor coverings put down, individual reclining seats installed and the concession area re-built.

Since Dec. 23 when the navigation season to the island closed, passengers, freight, food and mail have been flown to and from the island.
